ABSTRACT

Clear standards of professional conduct and integrity in the judiciary were set with the adoption of Codes of Conduct for all jurisdictions. There have been no steps taken with regard to the involvement of the judiciary in the appointments of the highest positions of the Greek judiciary, in line with European standards. Efforts to improve the quality of the justice system, in particular as regards digitalisation, continue. The revision of the judicial map for administrative justice aims at balancing the uneven distribution of cases and reducing delays. The establishment of the Judicial Police and the recruitment of judicial clerks is expected to improve the administration of justice. The system of legal aid is comprehensive, though its effectiveness could be jeopardised by delays in settling overdue lawyer's fees. Serious challenges remain regarding the efficiency of justice, in particular the length of proceedings, which have further increased. Efforts to address the backlog before the highest administrative courts are made, including by adopting an accelerated procedure to deal with specific types of cases before the Court of Audit, which is already applied in practice.

The implementation of the National Anti-Corruption Action Plan for 2022-2025 is under way. The activities of the National Transparency Authority are progressing well and its cooperation with private and public entities continues. A new law aiming at increasing the verifications of asset declarations entered into force. Progress towards achieving a robust track record of prosecutions and final judgments in corruption cases has been relatively limited. Measures on the integrity of civil servants continue to be taken forward and efforts to improve integrity and conflicts of interest within the police force are ongoing. Rules to regulate lobbying are in force, while progress to implement an effective transparency register has been slow. The rules on political party financing were codified and subsequently amended with a reduction of political fines. A new law on the protection of whistleblowers who report breaches of EU law was adopted. Guidance was issued to ensure that direct awards of public contracts are only used in exceptional cases.

The Government has taken further steps to enhance transparency of media ownership through new legislation. Safeguards are in place to ensure the independence of public service media, but the fact that board members of the Radio and Television Corporation are appointed by the Minister responsible for media continues to raise concerns with regard to their effective independence and potential political influence. A new procedure to hire new staff members of the audiovisual media regulator has been launched, but challenges persist with regard to the adequacy of the regulator's resources. The creation of a Task Force for the protection and empowerment of journalists is an important step. Nevertheless, concerns persist and more concrete steps are needed to improve the working environment of journalists, including as regards abusive lawsuits against journalists and their safety.

Despite efforts improving the quality of the legislative process in practice, challenges remain. While draft bills are consistently subject to public consultation and follow-up reports address the comments submitted, concerns regarding the lack of effective and timely consultation of stakeholders persists. Civil society organisations (CSOs) have criticised the practice of adopting omnibus legislation and last-minute amendments. Independent authorities are playing an active role in the system of checks and balances. An initial step has been taken towards amending the regulatory framework governing the registration requirements for civil society organisations. The situation of civil society raises concerns, in particular in relation CSOs working in specific areas.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Overall, concerning the recommendations in the 2022 Rule of Law Report, Greece has made:

- No progress on addressing the need for involvement of the judiciary in the appointment of President and Vice-President of the Council of State, the Supreme Court and the Court of Audit taking into account European standards on judicial appointments.
- Significant progress on ensuring the effective and systematic verification of the accuracy of asset disclosures filed by all types of public officials.
- Some progress on increasing efforts to establish a robust track record of prosecutions and final judgments in corruption cases.
- Some progress in establishing safeguards to improve the working conditions and physical safety of journalists in line with the Memorandum of Understanding, but legislative safeguards are still to be established, taking into account European standards on the protection of journalists.
- Some progress on ensuring that registration requirements for civil society organisations are proportionate in view of maintaining an open framework for them to operate.

On this basis, and considering other developments that took place in the period of reference, and in addition to recalling the commitments made under the national Recovery and Resilience Plan relating to certain aspects of the justice system and the anti-corruption framework, it is recommended to Greece to:

- Take steps to address the need for involvement of the judiciary in the appointment of President and Vice-President of the Council of State, the Supreme Court and the Court of Audit taking into account European standards on judicial appointments.
- Step up efforts to establish a robust track record of prosecutions and final judgments in corruption cases, including high-level corruption.
- Take forward the process of adopting non-legislative safeguards and start the legislative process in relation to the protection of journalists, building on the activities initiated by the Task Force, in particular as regards abusive lawsuits against journalists and their safety, in line with the adopted Memorandum of Understanding and taking into account European standards on the protection of journalists.
- Ensure the effective and timely consultation in practice of stakeholders on draft legislation, including by allowing sufficient time for public consultation.
- Take further steps to evaluate the current registration system for civil society organisations, including by initiating a structured dialogue with CSOs, and assess whether there is a need to amend it.

I. JUSTICE SYSTEM

The Greek judicial system consists of 217 first instance courts (154 magistrate courts and 63 first-instance courts of general jurisdiction)¹. There are 19 second instance courts (courts of appeal) of general jurisdiction and the Supreme Court as the highest court of general jurisdiction². Mixed criminal courts are composed by professional and lay judges³. Within the courts of first instance and courts of appeal of large cities, there are special chambers, tasked with adjudicating in special categories of law (e.g. family law, commercial law, etc.)⁴. Administrative courts are organised into 30 administrative courts of first instance, 9 administrative courts of appeal and the Council of State⁵ which exerts retrospective control over ‘enforceable acts’ of administrative authorities regarding their constitutionality and legality, with the exception of the Acts of Government⁶. The Court of Audit is the Supreme Financial Court and Audit Institution auditing the use of public funds in Greece, the jurisdictional, auditing and advisory competences thereof being grounded on the Constitution⁷. Judges and prosecutors form a consolidated body subject to a system of recruitment, career, rights and obligations, which is largely homogeneous for all. Judges are appointed to civil and penal jurisdictions and to administrative courts. Promotions, assignments to posts, transfers and secondments, are effected by presidential decree and issued after prior decision by the Supreme Judicial Council⁸. As regards prosecution authorities⁹, they are organised into 63 prosecution offices at the courts of first instance, 19 prosecution offices at the courts of appeal and the General Prosecutor of the Supreme Court. Greece participates in the European Public Prosecutor’s Office (EPPO). There are 63 bar associations in Greece, one at the seat of each court of first instance.

Independence

The level of perceived judicial independence in Greece continues to be average among both the general public and companies. Overall, 46% of the general population and 54% of

The military, navy and air force courts are under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of National Defence. These councils decide on appointments, promotions, transfers and secondments of judges in the respective branches of the judiciary and prosecutors. companies perceive the level of independence of courts and judges to be ‘fairly or very good’ in 2023¹⁰. According to data in the 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard, the perceived judicial independence among the general public and companies has consistently decreased in the last years. Both figures have decreased in comparison with 2022 (53% for the general public and 59% for companies). In comparison with 2016, the perceived judicial independence among the general public has decreased slightly (47%), while the perceived judicial independence among companies has increased (37%).

Clear standards of professional conduct and integrity in the judiciary were set with the adoption of Codes of Conduct for all jurisdictions. In October 2022, the Supreme Court published the Code of Conduct for Judges and Prosecutors of the Civil and Criminal Justice¹¹, which follows the codes already adopted by the Court of Audit and Council of State, as reflected in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹². It draws inspiration from best practices and international texts in this area, including the 2002 United Nations Judicial Group on Strengthening Judicial Integrity, the so-called ‘Bangalore Principles of Judicial Conduct’¹³. It aims to provide guidance to judges and prosecutors on ethical issues and strengthen society’s confidence in the institution of justice. The Plenary of the Supreme Court has decided in favour of the establishment of an ethics committee which would be responsible for the implementation of the code¹⁴.

There have been no steps taken with regard to the involvement of the judiciary in the appointments of the highest positions of the Greek judiciary. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Greece to ‘address the need for involvement of the judiciary in the appointment of President and Vice-President of the Council of State, the Supreme Court and the Court of Audit taking into account European standards on judicial appointments’¹⁵. The Government stated that it was not in a position to implement the recommendation, because this would require a revision of the Constitution, which cannot take place until a number of years has elapsed¹⁶. In particular, the Government referred to three opinions delivered by the Council of State and the Court of Auditors, between 2010 and 2019, considering that the involvement of any other organ in the appointment procedure would run contrary to the Constitution¹⁷, which provides that the appointments of the highest positions of the Greek judiciary are done by presidential decree, following a recommendation by the Council of Ministers¹⁸.

¹⁰ Figures 49 and 51, 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard. The level of perceived judicial independence is categorised as follows: very low (below 30% of respondents perceive judicial independence as fairly good and very good); low (between 30-39%), average (between 40-59%), high (between 60-75%), very high (above 75%).

Nevertheless, the current system of appointments already provides, since 2010, for the involvement of a parliamentary body in the appointment procedure¹⁹ and sets some conditions for candidates to the highest positions of the judiciary, notably a seniority criterion, since 2022²⁰. According to European standards, where the constitutional or other legal provisions prescribe that the head of state, the government or the legislative power take decisions concerning the selection and career of judges, an independent and competent authority drawn in substantial part from the judiciary should be authorised to make recommendations or express opinions which the relevant appointing authority follows in practice²¹. The lack of reform means that there has been no progress on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2022 Rule of Law Report.

Quality

Efforts to address shortcomings in the digitalisation of all branches of the judiciary continue. There is progress in certain areas as reflected in the 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard, including with regard to the availability of secure electronic channels of communication for prosecution services and the possibility to carry out specific steps electronically in civil and administrative proceedings²². Also in administrative justice, digitalisation is further advancing. For instance, the upgraded Legal Information Database and the electronic register of the Court of Audit are operational since November 2022²³. In addition, the installation of an information system, interacting with the information systems of the audited bodies facilitates the interoperability of systems and allows the Court of Audit to collect and exchange audit data electronically²⁴. The digital upgrade of the Integrated Administrative Court Case Management System is ongoing²⁵. In criminal and civil justice, following the completion of Phase I of the project, the Integrated Judicial Case Management System for Civil and Criminal Cases is being upgraded regarding the Appeal Court Districts of Athens, Thessaloniki, Piraeus, and Evia, while the roll-out to all civil and criminal courts and prosecution offices is under way (Phase

²⁰ Article 59, para 3 of Law 4938/2022 provides that the selection shall be made from among the ten most senior judges who have the formal qualifications, when the post to be filled is one. For each additional post, the number of candidates to be selected shall be increased by four. According to the Greek authorities, the seniority criterion is a limitation to the discretionary power of the Council of Ministers and shall be perceived as a validation of the decisions of the judicial councils on the promotion of judges and the order of seniority formed as a result. In its opinion 7/2019, the Council of State had also expressed a positive view on the introduction of a seniority criterion. (Input from Greece for the 2023 Rule of Law Report).

²² 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard. There is a significant improvement in (i) the adoption of procedural rules allowing the use of digital technology in proceedings (Figure 41); (ii) the availability of secure electronic communication for prosecution services (Figure 44); and (iii) the possibility to carry out specific steps in civil and administrative proceedings electronically (Figure 45).

²³ The project ‘Upgrading the digital services of the Court of Audit’ was included in the Operational Program Public Sector Reform 2014-2020 of the National Strategic Reference Framework (NSRF) 2014-2020.

²⁴ The project Support of the internal function of the Court’s audit remit was concluded in October 2022

²⁵ The project, funded by the Partnership Agreement for the Development Framework (PA) 2014-2020 and 2021 – 2027, is also part of the Greek Recovery and Resilience Plan and provides for the improvement of the architecture of the information system, the redesign of applications, the introduction of AI tools and the renewal of equipment for all administrative courts.

II). The implementation of the reform shall be completed by the end of 2025²⁶. Other measures to improve the level of digitalisation include the electronic serving of procedural documents²⁷ and the possibility for parties to submit procedural documents in electronic form throughout the procedure, both of which could improve efficiency²⁸. However, some of the shortcomings previously identified persist²⁹, notably as regards the limited possibilities for courts to communicate electronically between themselves in a secure manner as well as with legal professionals and other institutions³⁰, the lack of digital solutions to initiate and follow proceedings in criminal cases³¹ and the limited availability of various digital tools, adequate infrastructure, and equipment at the disposal of judges, prosecutors, and judicial staff³².

Delays are observed in the operation of the Office for the Collection and Processing of Judicial Statistics, which is not yet fully functioning. As referred in the 2022 Rule of Law Report³³, the Office for the Collection and Processing of Judicial Statistics was established at the end of 2020 with the objective of systematic collection of qualitative and quantitative statistical data³⁴. However, the Office is still not fully operational. No statistical data have been produced yet under the new mechanism and new procedures³⁵. The presidential decree relating to its organisation and functioning was adopted in July 2022 and its steering committee was established in October 2022³⁶. The procurement procedure for its information system is still in progress³⁷, while the procedures to fill in the ten posts established to cover the staffing needs of the office are not expected to start immediately³⁸. Both the Bar association and CSOs have criticised the effective functioning of the office, as there has been no visible improvement in the quantity of the statistical data becoming publicly available³⁹.

²⁶ The Greek Recovery and Resilience Plan, under the Digital Transformation of Justice reform contains a corresponding milestone which requires Greece to upgrade and provide support services for the “Integrated Court Case Management System for the Civil and Criminal Courts (OSDDY-PP A)” and the roll-out of the system to all Civil and Criminal Courts of the country (OSDDY-PP B). Following the conclusion of the relevant public tender, the implementation of the OSDDY-PP B is in progress.

The effectiveness of the legal aid scheme could be jeopardised by the long delays in settling the lawyers' fees. The system of legal aid to persons lacking the financial means is comprehensive and well established⁴⁰. In certain cases, legal aid is also provided irrespective of financial criteria⁴¹. Each Bar association creates a list of lawyers on duty to provide legal aid services. Compensation is paid through the Ministry of Justice. However, in November 2022, the long delays in settling the lawyers' fees have triggered the Bar associations' decision to abstain from further taking up legal aid cases⁴². Following the introduction of a simplified expedited procedure to settle the major part of the compensations⁴³, the Bar associations decided to resume providing legal aid services⁴⁴. The settling of pending claims is progressing⁴⁵.

The revision of the judicial map in administrative cases and the introduction of remote hearings aim to balance the uneven distribution of cases, improve efficiency, and enhance access to justice. In February 2023, the revision of the judicial map in administrative justice reached an important milestone with the adoption of Law 5028/2023⁴⁶. The reform contains a series of measures for the redistribution of judicial posts and competences between existing courts⁴⁷ as well as the implementation of new remote forms of litigation. The territorial jurisdiction of the Piraeus Administrative Court of First Instance was extended to alleviate workload from the Administrative Court of First Instance of Athens. The territorial jurisdiction for disputes with the Organisation of Welfare Benefits and Social Solidarity and the National Social Security Fund is now determined based on the place of residence of the beneficiaries, thereby ensuring the principle of proximity and enhancing efficiency⁴⁸. Furthermore, 20 transitional court seats⁴⁹ will become court offices to be used for remote hearings. The parties

⁴⁶ Redeployment of districts and decentralisation of competences of ordinary administrative courts, organisation of telematics meeting, conversion of transitional seats and establishment of judicial telematics offices, Law 5028/2023. The Greek Recovery and Resilience Plan contains milestone 226 requiring Greece to enact primary legislation for the revision of the judicial map for administrative justice.

will be able to participate in the hearings using remote access technologies: they will be physically present at the transitional court office and connect to the court by electronic means⁵⁰. This is intended to facilitate access to justice for citizens in remote areas and on islands. The full implementation of the reform is envisaged for January 2027, after a two-year pilot phase (2024-2026)⁵¹. The Bar associations expressed opposition to the reform, considering that hearings without the physical presence of the parties do not meet the guarantees of a fair trial and the principle of oral and public hearings⁵².

The establishment of the Judicial Police is expected to improve the administration of justice and enhance the assistance to judges. In July 2022, the Judicial Police was established with the aim to assist the work of judges and prosecutors, as well as to assume police tasks linked to the judicial services⁵³. The Greek Recovery and Resilience Plan contains a milestone which requires Greece to enact further legislation for the full implementation of the law on the Judicial Police⁵⁴. The Judicial Police will have a scientific/civil branch and a police branch. The ‘scientific personnel’, including lawyers, economists, IT specialists, translators, environmental and public health specialists, would conduct preliminary inquiries, investigative acts and would provide scientific and technical assistance to judges and prosecutors. The ‘police branch’ would be responsible for the security of courtrooms, the execution of court decisions and the serving of procedural documents. The number of staff members is envisaged at 600 for the police branch and at 150 for the scientific branch⁵⁵. Both judges and lawyers have welcomed the reform as a positive development that would increase the quality and efficiency of the justice system⁵⁶.

Additional recruitments of judicial clerks and further investments in court buildings are expected to positively impact the quality of justice. According to the EU 2023 Justice Scoreboard⁵⁷, Greece’s relative total expenditure on law courts is above the EU average and has been steadily increasing in the last four years. Furthermore, procurement procedures for the construction of new and the renovation of existing court buildings are ongoing⁵⁸. In particular, a tender has been launched for the construction of the Athens Courthouse and the Courthouse of Piraeus; the renovation of several court buildings is also foreseen⁵⁹. Plans to recruit 311 judicial clerks before the end of the year are in progress, while 200 additional recruitments are planned for 2024⁶⁰. The judicial clerks will be selected and trained by the National School of Judges⁶¹. The high number of envisaged new recruitments forms part of the efforts to increase the ratio between judges and judicial clerks⁶².

⁵⁰ It is at the discretion of the parties to attend the hearing either from the remote location or in the courtroom where the judges are physically present.

⁵¹ A similar reform in civil and criminal justice is ongoing. The Greek Recovery and Resilience Plan contains milestone no. 232 which requires to revise by end 2023 the judicial map in civil and criminal justice. The project also receives technical assistance from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Efficiency

Serious challenges remain regarding the efficiency of justice, in particular the length of proceedings, which has further deteriorated. According to the 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard, the disposition time in civil and commercial cases at first instance courts was the highest in the EU, as it reached 728 days in 2021⁶³. For administrative cases, the disposition time in 2021 at first instance courts increased to 595 days (551 days in 2020)⁶⁴. Furthermore, the disposition time for administrative cases in the Council of State reached the very high level of 1 324 days in 2021 (1 107 in 2020)⁶⁵. In 2021, the clearance rate for litigious civil and commercial cases decreased to 82%, one of the lowest of the EU⁶⁶. On the other side, the clearance rate in 2021 for administrative cases was 130%⁶⁷, one of the highest of the EU - this means that more cases were resolved than came in - although the number of pending administrative cases at the end 2021 remained the most substantial in the EU⁶⁸. Stakeholders have underlined the significant delays and backlogs in the administration of justice and identified the length of proceedings as the most important challenge for the judicial system⁶⁹.

Efforts to address the backlog and reduce the length of proceedings before the highest administrative courts are made, including by adopting an accelerated procedure to deal with specific types of cases before the Court of Audit, which is already applied in practice. The Court of Audit proposed an accelerated procedure to deal with the very high number of pending cases relating to reductions of pensions during the period that Greece was under financial supervision, for which the Court's Plenary already dealt with the underlying legal issues in pilot judgments⁷⁰. The proposal led to an amendment to the Statute of the Court of Audit⁷¹. According to the new procedure, which is already in place since March 2023, the President of the Chamber assigns the cases to a single-member panel to deal with them without a public hearing⁷², while the time-limits for submissions of documents and delivery of the decision are also very short.

II. ANTI-CORRUPTION FRAMEWORK

The National Transparency Authority (NTA)⁷³ oversees the implementation of the National Anti-Corruption Action Plan (NACAP) for 2022-2025, conducts investigations on corruption cases, monitors the implementation of provisions related to asset declarations and lobbying activities, takes the necessary actions to ensure the coherence and effectiveness of the national strategy, with particular emphasis on coordination of control bodies and the efficiency of their operations⁷⁴, and provides relevant instructions. The Directorate General of the Financial and Economic Crime Unit is the law enforcement agency of the Ministry of Finance, whose focus is the detection of fraud and corruption cases. The Directorate of Internal Affairs is tasked to tackle corruption within the Independent Authority for Public Revenue. The Internal Affairs Agency for Law Enforcement Bodies⁷⁵ exercises internal control and investigates crimes, including corruption, committed by various entities⁷⁶. The Court of Audit is the Supreme Financial Court and Audit Institution auditing the use of public funds.

The perception among experts and the business community is that the level of corruption in the public sector is relatively high. In the 2022 Corruption Perceptions Index by Transparency International, Greece scores 52/100 and ranks 21st in the European Union and 51st globally⁷⁷. This perception has significantly decreased over the past five years⁷⁸. The 2023 Special Eurobarometer on Corruption shows that 97% of respondents consider corruption widespread in their country (EU average 70%) and 56% of respondents feel personally affected

⁷⁴ The NTA chairs the meetings of the National Coordinating Body for Audit and Accountability (ESOEL) established by Article 103 of Law 4622/2019. ESOEL tasks include the dissemination of good practices and developing common standards and tools for the prevention, detection and control of fraud and corruption. Fifteen public bodies active in the field of law enforcement participate in ESOEL. Input from Greece for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, p. 12.

by corruption in their daily lives (EU average 24%)⁷⁹. As regards businesses, 95% of companies consider that corruption is widespread (EU average 65%) and 74% consider that corruption is a problem when doing business (EU average 35%)⁸⁰. Furthermore, 25% of respondents find that there are enough successful prosecutions to deter people from corrupt practices (EU average 32%)⁸¹, while 16% of companies believe that people and businesses caught for bribing a senior official are appropriately punished (EU average 30%)⁸².

The implementation of the National Anti-Corruption Action Plan (NACAP) for 2022-2025 is underway. The implementation of the NACAP for 2022-2025, approved last year as reported in the 2022 Rule of Law Report⁸³, falls under the remit of the NTA. The NACAP is a strategic plan that includes a coherent framework of actions, interventions and projects aimed at preventing and fighting corruption, strengthening transparency, integrity, and accountability. It also includes actions that make up the National Integrity System that focuses on strengthening public integrity and accountability, including the setting up of Integrity Advisors⁸⁴, in public sector bodies. In 2022, out of 129 actions envisaged under the NACAP, 23 were completed⁸⁵, 84 started and are being implemented and 22 have not yet started⁸⁶. Implementation is on track within the specified timeframes⁸⁷.

The activities by the National Transparency Authority are progressing well, and its cooperation with private and public entities continues. In 2022, the NTA already carried out several investigations under the new action plan. It received 3 513 complaints on alleged corruption, fraud, and maladministration (3 057 in 2021); and it carried out 575 audits and

The main objectives are the prevention and tackling of corruption and the strengthening of transparency, integrity, and accountability in the public administration, as well as public information and awareness-raising. Law 4795/2021 includes provisions to institute Integrity Advisors in the Greek public sector to provide support, information and advice on ethics and integrity matters and to receive reports of integrity breaches at the workplace, which may include whistleblowing reports. Input from Greece for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, pp. 14, 16, 18 and 24. Written contribution from the NTA in the context of the country visit to Greece.

inspections (393 in 2021), of which 13 (21 in 2021) were referred for criminal prosecution to the judicial authorities. In addition, 55 cases were referred to the competent disciplinary authorities (42 in 2021) and 41 of these cases (28 in 2021) were referred for both criminal and disciplinary prosecution. A total of 186 civil servants and elected officials (137 in 2021) were referred to disciplinary boards⁸⁸. The NTA is making efforts to ensure an adequate level of resources⁸⁹ and to recruit staff to fill the 103 unoccupied posts (out of a total of 503) through both regular recruitment and secondments⁹⁰. Improving the occupancy of its posts as soon as possible is crucial to enable the NTA to carry out its tasks. In 2022, building on efforts reported last year⁹¹, the NTA signed 15 memoranda of understanding (MoUs) with several agencies⁹² and universities⁹³ aimed at developing integrity actions⁹⁴. This included an MoU with the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) in February 2022 to improve cooperation⁹⁵. In the same year, the Directorate of Internal Affairs of the Independent Authority for Public Revenue conducted 92 audits of its employees' funds, and found 15 breaches of disciplinary rules, while suspicious criminal offences were forwarded to the Court of Audit within the context of the latter's competence, as well as of its Advocate General competence⁹⁶.

Following the recent entry into force of a law on asset declarations, significant progress has been made to increase the verifications of asset disclosures. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Greece to “ensure the effective and systematic verification of the accuracy of asset disclosures filed by all types of public officials”⁹⁷. The 2022 Report had noted that while asset declarations are filed in great numbers, only a limited percentage of them are verified on their accuracy⁹⁸. On 28 February 2023, a new law on asset disclosures entered into force⁹⁹. The new law aims to systematise the current rules and streamline the asset declaration process through the following tools and processes: digitalisation¹⁰⁰; simplification of the list of filers¹⁰¹; higher percentage of verifications (to a target of minimum 7% that will be achieved over a three-year period which is almost a doubling of the current 4%)¹⁰²; a uniform methodology for all types of audits, with one central Audit Committee¹⁰³ (assisted by an audit coordinator) to supervise and coordinate the work of the specialised audit bodies¹⁰⁴, in order to reduce fragmentation¹⁰⁵; and uniformity on violations and appropriate sanctions¹⁰⁶. The Audit Committee is obliged to publish annual activity reports¹⁰⁷. The second part of the law redefines the status of competences between the domestic prosecutorial authorities and the EPPO. The entry into force of a law on asset disclosure is a milestone under Greece's recovery and resilience plan (RRP). Milestone no. 209 states: 'Entry into force of the new legislation regarding: (i) Asset Declarations; (ii) and the codification of legislation on political parties.' The RRP envisages the revision of the legal framework for asset declarations (Law 3213/2003), the simplification of the electronic submission process and an upgrade of the IT platform for asset declaration and management by the end of 2023.

¹⁰³ The Audit Committee set up under Article 25 of Law 5026/2023 will have independent, administrative, and financial autonomy. It will be chaired by the head of the Committee of Parliament for the Investigation of Declarations of Assets (CIDA), the so-called Committee 3-A established under Law No. 3213/2003. The CIDA will remain responsible for the oversight and sanctioning of the political financing of both parties and persons, and on asset declarations of politicians and judicial officials. Information also received from the Parliamentary Committee for the Investigation of Declarations of Assets (CIDA) in the context of the country visit to Greece.

¹⁰⁴ The three Special Audit Bodies under Article 27 of Law 5026/2023 are essentially the same three out of the four authorities responsible for auditing asset declarations under the previous system, namely the 'C Unit for the Control of Asset Declarations' of the Anti-Money Laundering Authority, the National Transparency Authority, and the Internal Affairs Service of the Security Forces. It appears that the fourth authority, the CIDA or Article 3 Committee, will be replaced by the Audit Committee, while the special asset declarations audit service of the parliament will be maintained.

¹⁰⁶ Input from Greece for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, p. 10.

¹⁰⁷ Article 25 of Law 5026/2023 obliges the Audit Committee to submit an annual report by 31 March on its activities for the previous year to the Special Standing Committee on Institutions and Transparency of the Parliament and to the Ministers for Finance and for Justice. It will incorporate the reports of the special audit bodies. It will be posted on the Parliament's official website and remain posted for three years.

law was adopted by May 2023¹⁰⁹. Therefore, there has been significant progress on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2022 Rule of Law Report.

Some progress can be noted in relation to establishing a track record of prosecutions and final judgments in corruption cases. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Greece to “increase efforts to establish a robust track record of prosecutions and final judgments in corruption cases”¹¹⁰. Prosecutions and final judgments related to corruption are still limited, including for high-level corruption. In 2022, the Financial Crime Prosecutor opened 650 cases (560 in 2021) covering all crimes of financial and economic crimes, including corruption. Of these, 229 were closed and 421 are pending preliminary examination¹¹¹. Until the results of the preliminary investigation are ready, it is not possible to extrapolate the number of corruption cases¹¹². Available statistics¹¹³ on the prosecution of active and passive bribery indicate that in 2022 there were 80 ongoing criminal investigations (compared to 66 in 2021), 74 investigations concluded (53 in 2021) and 30 cases referred to a hearing (compared to 17 in 2021). This shows a relatively positive development. There were 32 convictions at appeal and first instance levels combined (compared to 24 in 2021) and 15 acquittals (compared to 21 in 2021), which also shows a positive development. However, of the 32 convictions, imposed sanctions of imprisonment were suspended in 28 cases (compared to 20 in 2021). Overall, the increase in the level of prosecutions and final judgments related to bribery offences is offset by the relatively high level of acquittals and suspended sanctions which raises concerns on the deterrent effect of Greece’s criminal justice response in relation to bribery¹¹⁴. Cooperation between the police and EPPO is considered to be good¹¹⁵. The Financial Crime Prosecutor has referred eleven cases to EPPO since it was set up¹¹⁶. The Internal Affairs Unit of Law Enforcement Bodies systematically collects statistics, including on corruption cases within the Hellenic Police, Hellenic Coast Guard, Hellenic Fire Brigade and employees of the wider public sector¹¹⁷. Therefore, some progress has been achieved in relation to the 2022 recommendation concerning prosecutions and final judgments in corruption cases.

The rules of procedure of the audit special service and a decision by the Audit Committee on the audit methodology and procedure will be adopted upon formation of the Parliament that will emerge from the forthcoming elections.

Measures on the integrity of civil servants continue to be taken forward, while efforts to improve integrity and conflicts of interest within the police force are ongoing. In the second half of 2022, the NTA issued a Code of Conduct for Elected Officials of Local Government Entities, covering mayors, regional governors and similar¹¹⁸, and a Code of Ethics and Professional Conduct for Public Sector Officials¹¹⁹. Following last year's adoption of Law 4940/2022¹²⁰, a Decision of the Ministry of Interior was published in April 2023¹²¹ containing the details for the establishment of a Code of Conduct for Political Advisors that will be drafted by the NTA and is expected to be published by the end of 2023¹²². The NACAP 2022-2025 envisages an update of the Code of Conduct for Members of the Government and Members of Parliament, although work on this action has not yet started¹²³. In 2022, the Ethics Committee of the National Transparency Authority examined and decided on three cases¹²⁴. Additional actions are also envisaged under Greece's Recovery and Resilience Plan¹²⁵. GRECO has recommended addressing integrity in the police force, including by updating the Code of Ethics for the Police¹²⁶. The current Code of Police Ethics¹²⁷ dates from 2004 and has not been amended since. There are plans to amend the current Code and to introduce provisions with detailed guidance on issues of moral integrity (prevention of conflicts of interest, non-acceptance of gifts, official confidentiality, and sound management of public resources). The competent service responsible for this exercise¹²⁸ has circulated an informative memo on possible amendments to the Code or other alternatives for consideration by the Police hierarchy¹²⁹. No decision has been taken yet pending possible changes in the civilian leadership of the Police following the recent general elections¹³⁰. There are other efforts underway, such as enhancing the electronic complaints monitoring system by the addition, since last year, of corruption cases as a special category¹³¹. The Police also issued in April 2023 an order to define the concept of corruption and indicatively mention some criminal and disciplinary offences that fall within that concept, to ensure impartiality and transparency during the conduct of administrative inquiries for corruption cases¹³².

Rules to regulate lobbying are in force but progress to implement an effective register has been slow. A regulatory framework for lobbying activities entered into force in Greece for the first time in 2021¹³³. The law regulates the contact between officials with high executive and legislative functions and lobbyists and mandates the setting up of a Transparency Register¹³⁴. The Transparency Register was, however, launched and became operational only in December 2022¹³⁵. It contains very few entries so far¹³⁶, but the numbers are expected to increase by the end of the year, including through awareness-raising activities planned by the NTA to clarify and improve the implementation and application of the law¹³⁷. In December 2022, the NTA issued a Code of Conduct with practical guidelines to assist lobbyists in their behaviour when communicating with institutions and to ensure transparency and integrity in the public decision-making process and avoid conflicts of interest or any undue influence¹³⁸. Both interest representatives and members of the legislature and executive branches are required to submit a publicly available annual activity report to the NTA.

Information received from Transparency International in the context of the country visit to Greece. Under Law 4829/2021, registration of NGOs in the Transparency Register is not mandatory and until now no NGO has applied, according to input from Greece for the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

¹³⁷ As of the beginning of June 2023, there were 14 registrations and applications pending for approval. Through the recent inclusion of the register on the GOV.GR platform and through awareness-raising activities planned during the year, the NTA expects approximately 40-50 lobbyists by year end. has also created a more specialised website with all the pertinent information on lobbying provisions and instructions for entering the lobbying registry¹³⁹. As the lobbying law also regulates gift policy¹⁴⁰, the NTA has prepared a draft opinion and Ministerial Decision on the technical specifications, content and procedures for an electronic gift registry and rules for the management and utilisation of the gifts. The drafts are currently under consultation with the Government¹⁴¹.

The rules on political party financing were codified and subsequently amended with a reduction of political fines. In March 2022, the provisions of the legislation on the financing by the state of political parties and the audit of their finances were codified in a single text through a Presidential Decree, which was required as part of Greece's Recovery and Resilience Plan¹⁴². In July 2022, the Presidential Decree was again amended¹⁴³ with the stated purpose of clarifying definitions, updating the procedures, and amending the sanctions that could be imposed by the President of the Parliament following a proposal by the Parliamentary Audit Committee (the CIDA) in cases of violation by the audited parties¹⁴⁴. These changes include a reduction of political fines compared to the previous law¹⁴⁵ as well as changes to the oversight powers of the Audit Committee¹⁴⁶. The choice of audits depends on certain criteria such as how active a party is, if it receives state grants¹⁴⁷, and on information received about possible illegal activities. In 2022, CIDA completed the audits (2020 fiscal year) on 18 political parties, ¹⁴⁵ For instance, the fine for failure to publish the annual balance sheet and the special report on election revenues and expenditures of a party or coalition within the deadline has been reduced from 5% to a range from 1% to 5%. Fines for political parties and coalitions that channel revenues or expenditures in violation of the law have been reduced from 50% to 20% of the last regular funding paid to them. For parties that did not receive state funding, the fine has been reduced from EUR 150 000 to EUR 50 000. Elected representatives who fail to submit a detailed or incomplete statement of election revenues and expenditures within the deadline will now be subject to a fine of EUR 1 000 instead of up to 10% of the annual parliamentary allowance.

¹⁴⁶ While the Audit Committee will continue to assess financial statements of the cash valuation of in-kind contributions, it will not itself carry out and record the valuation anymore as previously. Rather, the valuation will be carried out and recorded by the beneficiaries themselves who may be less impartial than the Audit Committee.

¹⁴⁷ There are several political parties in Greece, but several only exist on paper, so these are not prioritized. out of which it proposed penalties¹⁴⁸ for four parties and sent letters of compliance to three parties¹⁴⁹.

The new law on the protection of whistleblowers who report breaches of EU law was adopted. The law entered into force in November 2022¹⁵⁰ and aims to transpose the EU Whistleblowers Directive¹⁵¹. It designates the NTA as the external reporting channel competent for receiving, managing, and monitoring reports on violations falling within the scope of the law¹⁵². Public sector officials and private sector employees will be able to submit, in writing, orally, or through an online platform¹⁵³, eponymous or anonymous reports, covering all types of the submission of complaints¹⁵⁴. The NTA is contributing to the preparation of four ministerial implementing decisions (one of which has already entered into force) as well as designing the technical specifications of the electronic communication platforms¹⁵⁵. Civil Society Organisations (CSOs) consider that the legislator's decision not to extend the scope of the law also to breaches of national law¹⁵⁶ is a missed opportunity for encouraging more reporting of corruption¹⁵⁷. The OECD had urged Greece to implement new legislation for whistleblowers, for cases of foreign bribery¹⁵⁸.

Guidance was issued to ensure that direct awards of public contracts are only used in exceptional cases. To facilitate the work of contracting authorities in the correct application of the negotiated procedure without prior publication, the Hellenic Single Public Procurement Authority issued a communication¹⁵⁹ clarifying, amongst other things, the exceptional nature of and conditions for the use of the negotiated procedure without publication of a contract notice, its own advisory competence on requests for consent to use the negotiated procedure, and the obligations of the contracting authorities and entities that arise following recourse to that procedure¹⁶⁰. The Greek recovery and resilience plan adopted in July 2021 contains two measures for a total amount of 20 million EUR aiming at the professionalisation of staff for better handling of public contracts, the restructuring of the National Central Purchasing Authority (N.C.P.A.) for goods and services to promote centralisation of procurement and improvements in the digital tools for public procurement to avoid understaffing in the future and modernise the process. Having identified a need for specialized knowledge in this sector, the Financial Crimes Prosecutor is looking to hire two experts to assist in cases relating to public procurement offences¹⁶¹. The NACAP 2022-2025 includes the development of an ethics code for civil servants working on public procurement¹⁶².

III. MEDIA PLURALISM

The Greek legal framework concerning media pluralism and media freedom is based on a set of constitutional safeguards and legislative measures. The Constitution guarantees freedom of expression and press freedom and provides for a right of access to information. Audiovisual media is regulated by Law 4779/2021, which also implements the Audiovisual Media Services Directive (AVMSD)¹⁶³.

There have been no significant changes in the legal framework concerning the regulator for audiovisual media services, and the procedure to hire new personnel is ongoing, while challenges persist with regard to the media regulator’s human resources. The National Council for Radio and Television (NCRTV) supervises and regulates the radio and television markets both off-line and on-line. Its independence is enshrined in the Greek Constitution and its legal framework set out in the Media Law. As described in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹⁶⁴, the independence of NCRTV has been strengthened in the law transposing the revised AVMSD¹⁶⁵, which contains provisions aimed at reinforcing the independence of the NCRTV from the Government and other state bodies¹⁶⁶. According to the law, the NCRTV exercises its power with impartiality and transparency, serving in particular the objectives of pluralism, cultural diversity, consumer protection, accessibility for people with disabilities, equal treatment, the proper functioning of the internal market and the promotion of healthy competition¹⁶⁷. Following two ministry cabinet decisions¹⁶⁸, a national procedure organised by the National Council of Staff Selection to hire 15 new staff members for the NCRTV is ongoing¹⁶⁹. However, the NCRTV¹⁷⁰ emphasises that, while the hiring of new personnel is welcome, this will not solve the problem of understaffing, as reported in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹⁷¹, and will not be sufficient for the new tasks, assigned to the NCRTV by the AVMSD, in particular related to the monitoring activities¹⁷². As in the previous year, the Media Pluralism Monitor (MPM 2023) considers the independence and effectiveness of the media authority to be an area of medium risk¹⁷³

A new law aiming to enhance transparency of media ownership has been adopted. Legal safeguards are in place to ensure transparency of media ownership. Law 4779/2021¹⁷⁴ establishes the obligation for media service providers to register in the NCRTV Business Register¹⁷⁵. The recently adopted Law No. 5005/2022¹⁷⁶ aims to strengthen transparency and publicity in the field of printed and electronic press. The law set up a Registry for Print Media (MET) as well as a Registry for Electronic Press (MHT) and reserves eligibility for state advertising to registered companies. Additionally, the recent Law No.4915/2022 concerning press accountability entered into force, aiming at further enhancing transparency in the press¹⁷⁷. The MPM 2023 has maintained its medium risk score for transparency of media ownership since the full impact of recent laws and initiatives is yet to be seen¹⁷⁸. Media legislation contains specific ownership limitations to prevent horizontal concentration in the media market¹⁷⁹New conditions for holding a license for the provision of pay radio and television services have been introduced by the recent Law No. 5014/2023, which amended Law No. 2644/1998¹⁸⁰.

Safeguards are in place to ensure the independence of public service media, but concerns persist with regard to the appointment procedure of the board members of the Hellenic Radio and Television Corporation (ERT). As described in the 2022 Rule of Law Report, the editorial independence of public service media is guaranteed by the Law on the Hellenic Radio and Television¹⁸¹ which provides that ERT is independent of the State, of all public or private authorities and political parties¹⁸². ERT is a legal entity under private law in the form of a limited liability company which belongs to the public sector and is supervised by the State. ERT's board members are appointed by decision of the Minister responsible for the media, following the opinion of the Committee on Institutions and Transparency of the Parliament. As highlighted in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹⁸³, and indicated by the MPM 2023¹⁸⁴, while the involvement of the Parliamentary Committee seeks to ensure independence and transparency, the fact that the board members are appointed by the Minister responsible for the media continues to raise concerns about the effective independence and potential political influence.

¹⁶⁷ In particular, according to art. 15 of the Constitution, the objectives are: “equal transmission of information and news, as well as products of speech and art, ensuring the quality of programs required by the social mission of radio and television and the cultural development of the country, as well as respect for the value of the human being and the protection of childhood and youth”.

The legislative framework safeguards the right to information. In Greece access to information is a Constitutional right. The Greek Constitution guarantees the right of access to administrative documents and the right of citizens to obtain information. Restrictions to this right may be imposed only insofar as they are absolutely necessary and justified for reasons of national security, combating crime or protecting the rights and interests of third parties¹⁸⁵. The MPM 2023 reports a medium risk with regard to the protection of right to information¹⁸⁶.

Threats and attacks against journalists remain an issue. Since the publication of the 2022 Rule of Law Report, the Council of Europe's Platform to promote the protection of journalism and safety of journalists recorded 16 alerts¹⁸⁷. The registered incidents relate to physical aggressions, verbal insults, arbitrary detainment and use of spyware against journalists. Moreover, journalists continue to face abusive lawsuits¹⁸⁸ and to work in precarious working conditions¹⁸⁹. It was also reported that several journalists have been targeted by the spyware Predator¹⁹⁰. The surveillance of journalists was highlighted as a matter of concern also by the Media Freedom Rapid Response, as a major violation of the journalists' privacy, journalistic source protection, and press freedom¹⁹¹. The Greek parliament last December passed a bill banning the sale of spyware: the bill criminalises the sale or possession of spyware and makes the private use of spyware a felony from a misdemeanour, punishable by up to 10 years' imprisonment. The 2023 Media Pluralism Monitor continues to rate the journalistic profession, its standards and protection at a high risk¹⁹², but registers a decrease compared to last year's assessment, which was connected with the murder of the Greek journalist, Giorgos Karaivaz¹⁹³.

¹⁸² According to European Parliament's Flash Eurobarometer: News & Media Survey 2022, 34% of respondents in Greece stated that they trust public TV and radio stations, below the EU average of 49%.

A new Ethics Committee and a Directorate for Media Oversight, in charge of overseeing the compliance of online media with journalistic ethics have been established by the law¹⁹⁴ which set up the new registries for printed and electronic press. The Ethics Committee also has the power to exclude media from receiving state advertising funds for up to two years. While the promotion of media ethics was welcomed also by the journalists' associations, some concerns were raised by stakeholders on the risk that the new rules might lead to effective control of the content published by registered outlets and be misused to arbitrarily exclude certain media from receiving state advertising funds¹⁹⁵.

The controversial provision of the Criminal Code on the spread of disinformation was amended to address the concerns previously identified. In December 2022, Article 191 of the Criminal Code aiming at preventing the spread of disinformation, which, as reported in the 2022 Rule of Law Report, raised serious concerns about the risks for the right of journalists to disseminate information of general interest¹⁹⁶, was amended¹⁹⁷. According to the Government, for an offence to be committed, the concrete "effect" of "causing fear is required" and not merely the abstract risk of "causing fear in citizens", which is a concept difficult to prove and not easy to evaluate. Moreover, the amendment removed the aggravating circumstance of repeated offence. The amendment has been considered as a positive development from the journalists' union¹⁹⁸.

Some progress has been made on the 2022 recommendation to establish safeguards to improve the working conditions and physical safety of journalists. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Greece to "establish legislative and other safeguards to improve the physical safety and working environment of journalists, in line with the recently adopted Memorandum of Understanding and taking into account European standards on the protection of journalists"¹⁹⁹. Following the signing of the Memorandum of Understanding between the Secretariat General for Communication and Media of the Presidency of the Government, and other competent Ministries²⁰⁰, on 27 July 2022 a Task Force was created for the protection and empowerment of journalists²⁰¹. The members of the Task Force include representatives of the journalistic associations, university, ministries, public service media, news agencies and other relevant stakeholders. The Task Force convenes once a month and the stakeholders cooperate under a mandate that covers a range of topics (such as analysis and reporting on attacks against journalists, secure working conditions and security of journalists in conflict situations, digital safety, regional press, strategic lawsuit against public participation (SLAPPs), women journalists). A progress report on the activities of the Task Force was submitted by the Greek authorities to the Commission in March 2023. Among the initiatives taken by the Task Force are the introduction of a course on the Safety of Journalists at the Greek Universities, the creation of an observatory to record events and violations against journalists, and the establishment of an international training centre for the safety of journalists and media professionals²⁰². The establishment of the Task Force is evaluated as a positive step, also by the journalists' union²⁰³. However more concrete steps are needed to improve the working environment of journalists, including as regards abusive lawsuits against journalists and their safety²⁰⁴. Therefore, there has been some progress on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2022 Rule of Law Report.

IV. OTHER INSTITUTIONAL ISSUES RELATED TO CHECKS AND BALANCES

Greece is a parliamentary democracy with a unicameral Parliament. The separation of powers is enshrined in the Constitution with legislative power vested in the Parliament and the President. The right to introduce legislation belongs to the Parliament and the Government²⁰⁵. All courts, irrespective of their position in the judicial hierarchy, have the right and the duty to review the constitutionality of laws. They are bound not to apply a law whose content they deem contrary to the Constitution²⁰⁶. A number of independent authorities and bodies aim to protect and safeguard human rights, including the Greek Ombudsperson and the Greek National Commission for Human Rights, which is accredited with A status by the Global Alliance of Human Rights Institutions²⁰⁷.

Remaining challenges lessen the efforts improving the quality of the legislative process in practice, particularly regarding the consultation of stakeholders. Law 4622/2019 on the Executive State introduced reforms in the law-making procedures, based on better regulation principles, and strengthened the institutional framework²⁰⁸. There is progress in the intensive programme on codification of legislation²⁰⁹. In 2022, for the first time since 2009, Parliament did not use the expedited legislative procedures²¹⁰. Omnibus laws used for the adoption of disparate provisions stemming from the same Ministry, including amendments to existing provisions, create legal uncertainty to both citizens and businesses as they cannot always detect the applicable law for a given regulatory subject²¹¹. The Government considers the practice to be a solution to reduce the high number of parliamentary amendments²¹². According to the Government, contrary to amendments, such bills follow the normal steps of the legislative procedures, in particular public consultation, and full parliamentary debate, thus further enhancing the quality of law-making²¹³. Civil society organisations point out that omnibus bills are used too often and frequently cover unrelated issues within the competence of different ministries, reducing legal certainty²¹⁴. The Government considers that the practice of last-minute amendments to draft bills has almost ceased in 2022. This is not, however, the view shared by civil society organisations, which consider the figure closer to 50% of all introduced amendments²¹⁵. According to the OECD, better implementation of the legal requirements, including in the area of stakeholder engagement, are advisable²¹⁶. Draft bills are consistently subject to public consultation²¹⁷ and follow-up reports on the results of consultations address the comments submitted²¹⁸. The National Commission for Human Rights notes that proposals by interested parties are often taken into consideration resulting in the amendment or repeal of relevant draft provisions²¹⁹. However, the concerns already expressed by stakeholders in the previous Rule of Law Reports as to the insufficient time for public consultation persist²²⁰. In some instances, reduced time for public consultation means less than a week, including weekends and public holidays and may also concern legislation of increased public interest²²¹.

²⁰⁸ The General Secretariat of Legal and Parliamentary Affairs has an active role in the legislative process, including on issuing guidance. An interdisciplinary body, the Committee for the Evaluation of the Quality of the Law-making Process carries out quality control of each draft law against the law-making principles as well as the constitutionality of draft legislative provisions. A Central Codification Committee has been established to coordinate the legal codification and to develop an annual codification plan (2021 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Greece, p. 11).

²¹¹ An omnibus bill is a law that seeks to regulate a number of often unrelated matters affecting different areas. The practice of omnibus laws has been often criticised as being contrary to Article 74 para. 5 of the Constitution, which provides that a draft law containing provisions not related to its main subject matter shall not be introduced for debate (see Dianeosis, Sotiropoulos, Christopoulos (2017) Polynomia and Kakonomia in Greece, p.80; Hellenic Parliament (2017), Conference on Good legislation as a necessary condition for the proper and efficient functioning of the State).

²¹² According to the Government, in 2022, the total number of amendments to draft bills approved by the Government was quite significantly reduced to 165 (compared to 222 in 2020 and 227 in 2022), partially thanks to the introduction of omnibus laws.

²¹³ Input from Greece for the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

²¹⁷ Law 4622/2019 on the Executive State, Article 61. The ordinary law-making process requires, as a mandatory step, that a public consultation has taken place on the provisions of the proposed bill prior to its submission to Parliament. The main tool for public consultation is an online platform.

²¹⁸ Hellenic Parliament, Standing Orders, Article 85 para 3 (c).

²¹⁹ National Commission for Human Rights, Impact of 2022 ENNHRI rule of law reporting, p. 27.

²²⁰ According to data from the opengov.gr, between July 2022 and June 2023, 62 public consultations were carried out, out of which 32 were open for the ordinary two weeks' time limit; 25 for a shorter period (on average between 7 to 10 days, while in some cases for even shorter periods); and 5 were open for a longer period of time three to four weeks). Article 61 paras 2 and 3 of Law 4622/2019 on the Executive State stipulate that consultation lasts two weeks but can be reduced to one week for duly justified reasons, which are mentioned in the report on the public consultation. The invitation to public consultations published on the dedicated website does not include information on the reasons for reducing the duration of a given consultation. See also, 2021, 2022 Rule of Law Reports, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Greece, p. 11 and p. 19.

²²¹ The consultation on the draft bill on the Code on Migration lasted one week, an issue that was highlighted by both CSOs, the Ombudsman and the National Commission for Human Rights during the country visit.

Furthermore, both the Ombudsperson and the National Commission for Human Rights expressed their regret that they are not always consulted in respect to draft legislation that falls within their area of competences, although the Guide on drafting of impact assessment reports foresees their prior opinion²²². They often provide comments on their own initiative²²³. The quality of law-making and frequent changes in legislation remains a significant reason for concern about the effectiveness of investment protection among companies in Greece (53%, same percentage as in 2022)²²⁴.

The Ombudsperson and the National Commission for Human Rights have an active role in the system of checks and balances. Despite the high number of complaints received²²⁵, the Ombudsperson considers the overall compliance rate of the administration with his recommendations satisfactory, notwithstanding an increase in the cases of refusal to comply with recommendations in relation to previous years²²⁶. Given its broad mandate²²⁷, the Ombudsperson conducts investigations and publishes several special reports focusing on specific areas of interest or vulnerable social groups. To achieve better accessibility and visibility, the Ombudsperson inaugurated a regional office in Thessaloniki²²⁸. Following the revision of its regulatory framework, the National Commission for Human Rights enjoys functional independence, and administrative and financial autonomy²²⁹. In 2022, its mandate was strengthened, and its administrative capacity was reinforced²³⁰. In January 2023, the National Commission for Human Rights presented the first interim report of the Recording Mechanism of Informal Forced Returns²³¹. The mechanism's existence is a positive ²²² The Guide on drafting of impact assessment reports issued by the Secretariat General for Legal and Parliamentary Affairs provides that conducting a comprehensive impact assessment presupposes seeking the prior opinion of certain authorities on legislative provisions within their competence; the National Commission for Human Rights is expressly mentioned therein.

²²⁶ Out of the cases, in which the Ombudsman found an instance of maladministration: 62% were resolved by the administration (83% in 2021); 14% were resolved thanks to complainants' initiatives (2% in 2021); in 13% the administration refused to comply (7% in 2021); and in 11% compliance was not possible due to legislative gaps or organisational malfunctions (8% in 2021). Greek Ombudsperson (2023), Annual report 2022.

²²⁷ The Ombudsperson has the task of mediating between citizens and public services, local authorities and bodies governed by public law to protect civil rights, combat maladministration and ensure compliance with due process. 2020 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter Greece on the rule of law situation in Greece, p. 11.

²³⁰ The National Commission for Human Rights became voting member of the monitoring committee on EU Migration Funds. It has also been entrusted with the monitoring of the compliance of EU development funds with the provisions of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights. National Commission for Human Rights, Impact of 2022 ENNHRI rule of law reporting, p. 20.

²³¹ In September 2021, the National Commission for Human Rights decided to establish the Recording Mechanism, given: a) the absence of an official and effective data collection mechanism of informal forced returns; and b) the need for coordination among organizations who record on their own initiative any alleged development aiming to boost accountability for reported human rights violations alleged to have occurred during informal forced returns of third country nationals from Greece to other countries.

The issue of surveillance by means of wiretapping (i.e., through telecommunication providers) and spyware, has been subject to investigations by judicial and independent authorities. Following allegations and complaints or applications for information related to wiretapping and the use of Pegasus spyware against politicians, journalists, and high-ranking army officers, both the Authority for the protection of confidentiality of communications (ADAE)²³² and the Data Protection Authority (DPA)²³³ initiated investigations. Both ADAE and the DPA²³⁴ continue their investigations into the matter and have referred their findings to the judicial authorities²³⁵. The judicial authorities have launched investigations after reports by persons allegedly affected. These investigations are still ongoing. A new law amended the rules on wiretapping for the fight against crime and the protection of national security, including the applicable procedures for lifting confidentiality of communications and informing the individuals subject to the lifting, modified the structure and operation of the National Intelligence Service and amended the criminal code to include the development, selling, possession and use of surveillance software within the scope of application of crimes relating to the breach of privacy of communications²³⁶. The law has been subject to criticism from the bar associations, academic circles, and independent authorities, including on the information provided to the individuals subject to surveillance for national security purposes²³⁷ and the restriction of the powers of ADAE²³⁸. The new law also refers to the use of spyware by public incidents of informal forced returns from persons who recourse to their services, National Commission for Human Rights, Impact of 2022 ENNHRI rule of law reporting, p. 30.

²³² The Authority for the protection of confidentiality of communications (ADAE) has been established according to article 19 para 2 of the Constitution with the purpose of protecting the free correspondence or communication in any possible way. Its founding law is Law 3115/2003.

²³⁶ Law 5002/2022 Waiving of communication privacy, cyber security and citizens' data protection.

²³⁷ Criticism mostly focused on Article 4 para 7 of Law 5002/2022. The provision stipulates that: (i) individuals under surveillance for national security purposes are informed upon request after three years from the time the measure has ceased to apply; and (ii) the decision to inform the individual is taken by a three members committee consisting of the president of ADAE and two prosecutors who previously approved the measure.

authorities for the performance of their tasks, it, however, requires a Decree setting out the conditions of use. The Decree has not yet been adopted.

On 1 January 2023, Greece had 27 leading judgments of the European Court of Human Rights pending implementation, a decrease of seven compared to the previous year²³⁹. At that time, Greece's rate of leading judgments from the past 10 years that remained pending was at 34% (compared to 35% in 2022) and the average time that the judgments had been pending implementation was 6 years 7 months (compared to 6 years and 5 months in 2022)²⁴⁰. The oldest leading judgment²⁴¹, pending implementation for 18 years, concerns the access to and the efficient functioning of justice due to the lack and the delayed enforcement of domestic judicial decisions²⁴². On 15 June 2023, the number of leading judgments pending implementation has increased to 28²⁴³.

An initial step has been taken towards amending the regulatory framework governing the registration requirements for civil society organisations. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Greece to 'ensure that registration requirements for civil society organisations are proportionate in view of maintaining an open framework for them to operate'²⁴⁴. There are currently nine different registries²⁴⁵, and their parallel existence remains an issue²⁴⁶. The planned operation of a public database and the new central registry for civil society organisations (CSOs) under the responsibility of the Ministry of Interior²⁴⁷ is a positive

²⁴¹ Judgment of the European Court of Human Rights of 27 March 2003, Satka and Others v. Greece, 55828/00, pending implementation since 2003.

²⁴⁵ Written contribution from the Ministry of Interior in the context of the country visit.

²⁴⁷ Law 4873/2021, Protection of volunteerism, strengthening civil society, tax incentives to strengthen public benefit activities and other provisions. The Registry, which is expected to become fully operational within the third quarter of 2023, provides for two main categories based on the amounts of funding. The first category concerns funding up to EUR 50 000 and the second category funding over EUR 50 000. For the first category, the registration requirements are simpler, whereas in the second additional documents are requested. The CSOs registered in the second category get immediate support by targeted tax exemptions and additional tax incentives. CSOs are not compelled to register, but only registered organisations will be able to request state funding and benefit from tax exemptions. The registration needs to be renewed annually and is subject to certain conditions and administrative requirements, including the payment of a registration fee. The details regarding its functioning are set out in secondary legislation, adopted in April 2023 (KYA 6216/2013). Written contribution from the Ministry of Interior in the context of the country visit.

development aiming to strengthen transparency and protect public funds. In June 2023, the Government commissioned a study for the simplification and digitalisation of the administrative procedures relating to the functioning of the public database and the new central registry for CSOs and their interoperability with other existing public registries²⁴⁸. CSOs dealing with international protection, migration and social integration are concerned by the fact that they have to register in the Registry of Greek and Foreign Non-Governmental Organisations as well as to register their members in the Registry of NGO Members²⁴⁹. According to the Government, all CSOs that are actively working in the structures of the Ministry of Migration and Asylum, or in the structures funded by EU programmes are registered in the Registry²⁵⁰ and can therefore access refugees' reception facilities and receive state funding. In relation to delays in the process, the time-limit to process applications has improved dropping from 120 to 60 days on average²⁵¹. The Council of State has not yet delivered its ruling on the pending judicial review of applications challenging some aspects of the legality of the legislation²⁵². Concerns have been raised in relation to the implementation of the regulatory framework, including in relation to the registration process²⁵³. While the commissioning of the study on the simplification of the procedures is a positive first step, more concrete steps are needed to evaluate the current system, including by initiating a structured dialogue with CSOs, and reflect on the need to amend it. There has been thus some progress on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2022 Rule of Law Report.

²⁴⁸ Contract 55/2023 was signed in the framework of the National Program for the Simplification of Administrative Procedures (EPAD). The study is expected to be delivered within 3 months after signature.

²⁵⁰ According to data from the Ministry of Migration and Asylum, between September 2020 and March 2023, 82 CSOs have been registered in the Registry of the Ministry of Migration and Asylum and 11 applications have been pending for evaluation. 42 CSOs are actually active in the field of migration, their number being close to 50% of the number of those registered in the Registry, while the rest of them are either not particularly active or they focus on other social groups or they are registered for possible future activities. Written contribution from the Ministry of Migration and Asylum in the context of the country visit in Greece.

²⁵¹ Information received from Ministry of Migration and Asylum in the context of the country visit to Greece.

The Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights defenders was first established by the UN Human Rights Commission in 2000. The mandate was most recently renewed by the Human Rights Council in 2020 with decision 43/115 and resolution 43/16.

The situation of civil society raises concerns, in particular in relation to CSOs working in specific areas. The civic space has been downgraded from narrowed to obstructed due to concerns in relation to civil society organisations working with refugees and asylum seekers, and failure to tackle the protection of journalists²⁵⁴. According to the Special UN Rapporteur on the situation of human rights defenders, while in other areas there is a generally favourable environment for civil society, human rights defenders working in the area of migration have been subjected to smear campaigns, threats and attacks and the misuse of criminal law against them²⁵⁵. Concerns have been reported in relation to the legislation on assembly²⁵⁶, including the liability of organisers for any damages incurred during protests²⁵⁷. The Council of Europe Commissioner for Human Rights referred to the hostile environment in which human rights defenders work in Greece and urged the authorities to ensure that human rights defenders and journalists can work safely and freely, by providing an enabling environment for their work and publicly recognising their important role in a democratic society²⁵⁸.
