

2023 Rule of Law Report - targeted stakeholder consultation

Fields marked with * are mandatory.

Introduction

The annual Rule of Law Report lies at the centre of the European rule of law mechanism, which acts as a preventive tool, deepening multilateral dialogue and joint awareness of rule of law issues. So far, three editions of the Rule of Law Report have been published in 2020, 2021 and 2022.

In the preparation of the first three editions of the Rule of Law Report, the Commission has relied on a diversity of relevant sources, including from Member States, country visits, and stakeholders' contributions collected through the targeted stakeholder consultation [1]. The information provided has informed the Commission's country-specific assessments in preparing the Report. Building on the positive experience from the first three editions of the Rule of Law Report, the Commission is now inviting stakeholders to provide written contributions for the preparation of the 2023 Rule of Law Report through this targeted consultation.

The contribution to be provided should include (1) information on measures taken to implement the recommendations addressed to the Member State in the 2022 Rule of Law report, as well as developments with regard to the points raised in the respective country chapter and (2) any other significant developments since January 2022 [2] falling under the 'type of information' outlined in the next section.

The input should be short and concise and summarise information related to one or more of the areas referred to in the template. You are invited to focus on the areas that relate to the scope of work and expertise of your organisation. Existing reports, statements, legislation or other documents may be referenced with a link (no need to provide the full text). Stakeholders are encouraged to make references to any contributions already provided in a different context or to Reports and documents already published. Contributions should focus on significant developments both as regards the legal framework and its implementation in practice.

If you wish to submit information concerning several Member States, you will have to fill-in the questionnaire separately for each Member States (due to the size of the questionnaire). There is no limit to the number of contributions submitted by a single participant. In such cases, you are not required to repeat the information in the section "about you" that is non-mandatory nor the information on horizontal developments.

Please provide your contribution by 20 January 2023. Should you have any requests for clarifications or encounter difficulties in filling in the questionnaire, you can contact the Commission at the following email address: rule-of-law-network@ec.europa.eu.

[1] For the consultation for the 2022 Report, see https://ec.europa.eu/info/publications/2022-rule-law-report-targeted-stakeholder-consultation_en

[2] Unless the information was already submitted in the consultation for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Type of information

The topics are structured according to four pillars: I. Justice system; II. Anti-corruption framework; III. Media pluralism; and IV. Other institutional issues related to checks and balances. The replies could include aspects set out below under each pillar. This can include challenges, current work streams, positive developments and best practices:

Legislative developments

- Newly adopted legislation
- Legislative drafts currently discussed in Parliament
- Legislative plans envisaged by the Government

Policy developments

- Implementation of legislation
- Evaluations, impact assessment, surveys
- White papers/strategies/actions plans/consultation processes
- Follow-up to reports/recommendations of Council of Europe bodies or other international organisations
- Important administrative measures
- Generalised practices

Developments related to the judiciary / independent authorities

- Important case law by national courts
- Important decision/opinions from independent bodies/authorities
- State of play on terms, nominations and expired mandates for high-level positions (e.g. Supreme Court, Constitutional Court, Council for the Judiciary, heads of independent authorities included in the scope of the questionnaire[1])

Any other relevant developments

- Respondents are free to add any further information, which they deem relevant; however, this should be short and to the point.

If there are no changes, it is sufficient to indicate this and the information covered in the contributions for the previous Rule of Law Reports should not be repeated.

[1] Such as: media regulatory authorities and bodies, national human rights institutions, equality bodies, ombudsman institutions, supreme audit institutions and, where they exist, transparency authorities.

The European Prison Litigation Network defends and advances prisoners' fundamental rights across the continent and advocates for the reduced use of incarceration. We research and analyse changes in the law and their impact on prisoners' rights and life in prison. Our network of 29 civil society organisations and bar associations involves prisoners and their defenders in penal and prison policymaking at domestic, European and international institutions.

Questions on horizontal developments

In this section, you are invited to provide information on general horizontal developments or trends, both positive and negative, covering all or several Member States. In particular, you could mention issues that are common to several Member States, as well as best practices identified in one Member State that could be replicated. Moreover, you could refer to your activities in the area of the four pillars and sub-topics (an overview of all sub-topics can be found below), and, if you represent a Network of national organisations, to the support you might have provided to one of your national members.

Overview topics for contribution

list of topics 2023 Report.pdf

Upholding the rule of law in European prisons is of utmost importance for the EU. First of all, as rightly pointed out in the European Commission's (EC) recommendation on detention conditions (C(2022) 8987 final), fundamental rights-compliant prison systems are key to the mutual recognition of judgments and judicial cooperation in criminal matters between EU member states (see also CJEU, Aranyosi and Căldăraru, C-404/15 & C-659/15 PPU, 2016).

Furthermore, in the longer term, the "high level of security" the EU shall "endeavour to ensure" (Art. 67 TFEU) requires that European prison systems, whose ultimate aim shall be the "reformation and social rehabilitation [of prisoners]" (ICCPR, Art. 10), be law abiding environments.

The ECtHR has played a decisive role in extending the application of key rule of law principles to prisons – such as the protection against arbitrary exercise of power, legal certainty and effective judicial review (see COM(2019) 163 final).

As justice does not "stop at the prison gate" (ECtHR, Campbell and Fell v. United Kingdom, No. 7819/77, 1984, § 69), the ECtHR requires that the Contracting Parties set up a system of remedies against prisoners' fundamental rights violations and that fair trial guarantees apply under ordinary conditions (ECtHR, De Tommaso v. Italy [GC], No. 43395/09, 2017).

Despite the long-standing affirmation of these principles, the establishment of procedural safeguards in Europe's prisons took place in a piecemeal fashion – between the 1970s (in the Netherlands, Germany or Spain) and the first decade of the 21st century (in France, Belgium and Central and Eastern Europe). In addition, although legal theories that had in common to deprive prisoners of their rights as a result of their incarceration are in decline ('special subjection', 'implied powers', 'hands-off doctrine'), the judiciary has remained reluctant to exercise control over the prison administration (on the French case: Habouzit, F. (2022), "Le contrôle des décisions de l'administration pénitentiaire relatives aux conditions d'exécution de la peine", Revue de science criminelle et de droit pénal comparé, 2/2, pp. 275-288).

Consequently:

- in many states, decisions having a strong impact on the situation of prisoners cannot be appealed (e.g. maintenance of family ties or preparation for release from prison);
- complaints filed by prisoners through the remedies put in place at domestic level (often under the constraint of the ECtHR) are handled in a formalistic manner and are massively rejected;
- in some countries, violence committed by prison staff is rarely investigated and even more rarely punished, possibly resulting in systemic impunity (ECtHR, Cirino and Renne v. Italy, No. 2539/13, 2017; OIP, Omertà, opacité, impunité. Enquête sur les violences commises par des agents pénitentiaires sur les personnes détenues, 2019)
- cases of non-enforcement of court decisions by national public authorities have been documented (i.a. ECtHR, Clasens v. Belgium, No. 26564/16, 2019, §§ 43-47 and ECtHR, J.M.B. v. France, No. 9671/15, 2020, §§ 219-221).

Two factors make it difficult for the judge to intervene in prison. First, the vulnerable situation of detainees, placed in a position of total dependence on the prison administration and exposed reprisals for the procedures undertaken. Second, the ability of prisoners to effectively use the remedies put in place is also hindered by both the material reality of life in detention (e.g. difficult access to legal information or to pieces of evidence), and general features of the prison population (e.g. insufficient legal literacy, lack of knowledge of the national language). While the ECtHR's solution proposed to these serious challenges has been the simplification of judicial procedures, increasing prisoners' procedural rights in the form of improved access to a lawyer and to legal aid would have been a more effective path to follow.

Furthermore, the effective implementation of European courts' judgments may be in turn hampered by several factor such as the structural nature of the problems affecting prison systems, on which the limited powers of the judge have little impact (in the context of structural overcrowding, see ECtHR, Polgar v. Romania, No. 39412/19, 2021, § 107).

As an extension of the EC's recommendation mentioned above (which contains pertinent elements, such as the recommendation that detainees have "effective access to a lawyer" (§ 58) and "effective access to a procedure enabling [them] to officially challenge aspects of their life in detention" (§ 62) before an "independent authority or tribunal empowered to order measures of relief" (§ 63), or the access to translation and interpretation services for detainees with particular linguistic needs (§ 67)), and within the scope of EU's competences, upholding the rule of law in EU prisons warrants the establishment of minimum rules on prisoners' right to access a lawyer and courts.

Questions for contribution

The following four pillars (I.-IV.) are sub-divided into topics (A., B., etc.) and sub-topics (1., 2., 3., etc.). For each of the topics and sub-topics, you are invited to provide (1) information on measures taken to implement the recommendations addressed to the Member States in the 2022 Rule of Law report, as well as developments with regard to the points raised in the respective country chapter of the 2022 Rule of Law Report and (2) any other significant developments since January 2022^[1]. Please include a link to and reference relevant legislation/documents (in the national language and/or where available, in English) if relevant. Significant developments can include challenges, positive developments and best practices, covering both legislative developments or implementation and practices.

If there are developments you consider relevant under each of the four pillars that are not mentioned in the sub-topics, please add them under the section "other - please specify". Only significant developments should be covered.

Information provided in reply to the first question under each pillar, related to the follow-up to the recommendations, does not need to be repeated in subsequent parts of the questionnaire, but can be cross-referenced in the subsequent questions, where relevant. All other questions are not limited to the recommendations, but as in previous years, cover the entire scope of the Report.

[1] Unless already covered in the input for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Member State covered in contribution [only one choice possible]

If you wish to submit information concerning several Member States, please fill in the questionnaire separately for each Member State. There is no limit to the number of contributions submitted by a single participant.
