

2026 Rule of Law Report - targeted stakeholder consultation

Fields marked with * are mandatory.

Introduction

The annual Rule of Law Report lies at the centre of the Annual Rule of Law Cycle, which acts as a preventive tool, deepening multilateral dialogue and joint awareness of rule of law issues. So far, six editions of the Rule of Law Report have been published since 2020.

As every year, the Commission would like to invite the stakeholders to provide contributions to the 2026 Rule of Law Report. On the basis of these contributions and on-going developments, further targeted questions may be shared at a later stage of preparation of the 2026 Rule of Law Report, in particular in the context of country visits, or bilateral contacts.

The Commission invites stakeholders to provide contributions which include:

(1) developments and measures taken in relation to the recommendations in the 2025 report, (2) developments related to topics covered in the 2025 country chapters, as well as any other new developments related to the rule of law.

The input should consist of a short summary, if possible in English, covering the areas referred to below. Legislation or other documents may be referenced with a link. Contributions should focus on significant developments since the last Rule of Law Report both as regards the legal framework and its implementation in practice.

This questionnaire also integrates the separate questionnaire on the single market from last year. In addition to these specific questions, respondents to the questionnaire are invited to consider the Single Market dimension, including any relevant cross-border issues, in all their answers.

Where questions of particular relevance under the single market dimension, this is indicated before the relevant question.

[1] Unless the information was already submitted in the input for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Type of information to be included:

Under each of the four pillars, the replies should include references to the following types of information:

A) Legislative developments

- Newly adopted legislation
- legislative drafts currently discussed in Parliament
- legislative plans envisaged by the Government

B) Policy developments

- Implementation and enforcement of legislation
- evaluations, impact assessment, surveys
- white papers/strategies/actions plans/consultation processes
- follow-up to reports/recommendations of Council of Europe bodies or other international organisations
- important administrative measures
- generalised practices

C) Developments related to the judiciary / independent authorities

- important case law by national courts
- important decision/opinions from independent bodies/authorities
- state of play on terms, nominations and expired mandates for high-level positions (e.g. Supreme Court, Constitutional Court, Council for the Judiciary, Prosecutor General, heads of independent authorities included in the scope of the request for input[2])

D) Any other relevant developments

- National authorities are free to add any further information, which they deem relevant; however, this should be short and to the point.

Where relevant, please also indicate whether the developments reported are linked to the implementation of reforms and investments under the national Recovery Resilience Plan. To simplify your answers to the questionnaire, if there are no developments, it is sufficient to indicate this and the information covered in the contributions for the previous Rule of Law Reports does not need not be repeated.

[2] Such as: media regulatory authorities and bodies, national human rights institutions, equality bodies, ombudsman institutions, supreme audit institutions and, where they exist, transparency authorities.

Questions on horizontal developments

In this section, you are invited to provide information on general horizontal developments or trends, both positive and negative, covering all or several Member States. In particular, you could mention issues that are common to several Member States, as well as best practices identified in one Member State that could be replicated. Moreover, you could refer to your activities in the area of the four pillars and sub-topics (an overview of all sub-topics can be found below), and, if you represent a Network of national organisations, to the support you might have provided to one of your national members.

Questions for contribution

Under each pillar, you are invited to provide information on measures taken to implement the recommendations addressed to the Member State in the 2025 Rule of Law report, as well as developments with regard to the points raised in the respective country chapter of the 2025 Rule of Law Report and any other significant developments since January 2025 and up to the date of submission[3]. Please always include a link to and reference relevant legislation/documents (in the national language and/or where available, in English). Significant developments can include challenges, positive developments and best practices, covering both legislative developments or implementation and practices.

Information provided in reply to the first question under each pillar, related to the follow-up to the recommendations, does not need to be repeated in subsequent parts of the questionnaire, but can be cross-referenced in the subsequent questions, where relevant. All other questions are not limited to the recommendations, but as in previous years, cover the entire scope of the Report.

[3] Unless already covered in the input for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Member State/enlargement country covered in contribution [only one choice possible]

If you wish to submit information concerning several Member States/enlargement countries, please fill in the questionnaire separately for each country. There is no limit to the number of contributions submitted by a single participant.

On 7 August 2024 Bulgaria's National Assembly adopted a law which amends and supplements the Preschool and School Education Act (PSEA), conceptually amending and expanding the prohibitions in the system of pre-school and school education to ban "the carrying out of propaganda, promotion and incitement in any way, directly or indirectly, of ideas and views related to non-traditional homosexual orientation and/or the determination of gender identity other than biological."

In Bulgaria, individuals cannot file direct complaints to the Constitutional Court. The following administrative bodies can do so: one fifth of the Members of the National Assembly, the Council of Ministers, Supreme Court of Cassation, Supreme Administrative Court, Prosecutor General. The Ombudsman may approach the Constitutional Court with a request to declare as unconstitutional any law that violates rights and freedoms of citizens. This is a constitutional prerogative outlined in Article 150 of the Constitution and related provisions. The Supreme Bar Council can also submit constitutional requests concerning laws that purportedly violate citizens' rights and freedoms.

In July 2025 Deystvie's team submitted requests to the Ombudsman and the Supreme Bar Council for the unconstitutionality of the Pre-school and School Education Act. However, no further actions and communication have been taken by either of these bodies. Notably, the request to the new Ombudsman was submitted on her second day of work, and no response has been received so far, five months later.

5000 character(s) maximum

[single market relevance] Safeguards (other than judicial review) regarding decisions or inaction of administrative authorities, including remedies (e.g. administrative review)

5000 character(s) maximum

[single market relevance] Rules and practices related to the application by all courts, including constitutional jurisdictions, of the preliminary ruling procedure (Art. 267 TFEU)

5000 character(s) maximum

[single market relevance] Implementation of final judgments by the public administration and State institutions and follow-up given to supranational judgments, including decisions from the European Court of Human Rights, as well as available remedies in case of non-implementation

5000 character(s) maximum

LGBTI Deystvie is leading a series of cases on behalf of LGBTI individuals seeking international protection in Bulgaria. In all cases submitted to the State Agency for Refugees, the applicants have been refused protection and have been required to provide statements from psychologists and psychiatrists regarding their sexual orientation, a practice that is incompatible with international human rights standards and EU law.

Although these cases have been successfully litigated before the Supreme Administrative Court, and despite the Court's clear and detailed reasoning on how the State Agency for Refugees should rule, the Agency has repeatedly issued new refusals. In doing so, it has entirely disregarded the binding decisions and guidance of the highest judicial authority in the country.

Legal complaints filed last year against two LGBTI CSOs which both have licenses to work with children and young people, requesting a revision of their licenses based on the new anti-LGBT law, were dropped. In December 2024, a new bill was submitted by a group of MPs which supplements the Child Protection Act with provisions undermining rights for trans people and introducing another layer of censorship with vague definitions. This bill has been making its way through parliamentary committees in 2025 and remains in the committees currently. The proposal aims to ban, alongside the sale of tobacco, alcohol and laughing gas to children:

1. The display, presentation, offering, or any other form of distribution within preschool and school institutions, as well as in other public places visited by children outside of school hours, of informational or other materials containing content that does not conform to the understanding of gender as a biological category;
 2. The presentation to children of lectures containing content that does not conform to the understanding of gender as a biological category, the presentation or advertisement of gender identity as an alternative to biological sex, its early determination, or other related topics, as well as the application, presentation, or advertisement of medical activities using methods or technologies for changing the biological sex of children."
- The proposal introduces fines for breaches of these provisions, as well as an amendment to the Health Act to ban "the direct presentation, advertisement, and performance of medical activities using methods or technologies for changing the biological sex of persons under 18 years of age". Another amendment also introduces a penalty of imprisonment for any person who "issues a medical prescription or performs a medical activity using a method or technology for changing the biological sex of a person under the age of 18".

The banning of "content that does not conform to the understanding of gender... as a biological category" does not reflect contemporary scientific knowledge on sex and social theories' conceptualisation of gender and is a form of censorship. This bill and the anti-LGBT propaganda law passed in 2024, directly violate teachers' and students' right to freedom of expression, including to seek, receive and impart information and ideas with regards to human rights, SRHR, sexual orientation, gender identity and their rights to equality and non-discrimination.

Additionally, the absence of a meaningful legal definition regarding content deemed "non-conforming" to understandings of gender identity aligned with biological sex may lead to legal uncertainty, creating a risk of arbitrary interpretation and application of the law. This could result in the establishment of vague legal obligations while simultaneously allowing for discriminatory practices or unintended censorship of content that promotes the human rights and fundamental freedoms of individuals with diverse ("non-traditional" as per the language of the law) gender identities and sexualities. For instance, in Hungary, the vaguely worded provisions of the 2021 anti-LGBTI propaganda law have led to high degrees of caution and self-censorship. Such legal uncertainty risks violating the principles of the rule of law and human rights.

The amendment fails to specify what constitutes these "other public places visited by children outside school hours," thereby creating legal uncertainty and leaving room for arbitrary interpretations. By deliberately leaving this term undefined, the sponsors of the bill are attempting to create legal grounds for sanctions and penalties against a broad range of events related to LGBTI people including Prides and other public events raising awareness of LGBTI people and promoting their rights. Such a broad scope inevitably presents significant risk for civil society organisations involved in the working on equality and fundamental rights for LGBTI people, particularly trans people.

Regarding the amendment providing for prison sentences for any person who "issues a medical prescription or performs a medical activity using a method or technology for changing the biological sex of a person under the age of 18", at present, no sex reassignment surgeries are performed in Bulgaria, either for adults or minors. Such a medical intervention can be qualified as a crime under the provisions of Article 128 of the Criminal Code. The attempt to ban a medical procedure that is not being practiced not only on minors but also on adults due to existing legal restrictions, shows an intention to cause deliberate harm to trans and intersex people and will produce a 'chilling effect' by further deterring them from seeking the medical services they need. It raises concerns that the actual motives of the proponents of the bill are rather driven by a desire to target and oppress a specific social group and engage in political demagoguery.

Cross-pillar elements: cross-border rule of law issues related to the Single Market

If there are any significant challenges concerning the Single Market you have been facing in a cross-border context relating to any of the four pillars of the report, including for example issues with market access and the conditions for economic activities, that you would like to highlight, please do so here.

Given the cross-cutting nature of this question, it is included as a separate section in the questionnaire. Information collected under this question will however be integrated under the relevant existing pillar(s) of the Report.
