

2026 Rule of Law Report - targeted stakeholder consultation

Fields marked with * are mandatory.

Introduction

The annual Rule of Law Report lies at the centre of the Annual Rule of Law Cycle, which acts as a preventive tool, deepening multilateral dialogue and joint awareness of rule of law issues. So far, six editions of the Rule of Law Report have been published since 2020.

As every year, the Commission would like to invite the stakeholders to provide contributions to the 2026 Rule of Law Report. On the basis of these contributions and on-going developments, further targeted questions may be shared at a later stage of preparation of the 2026 Rule of Law Report, in particular in the context of country visits, or bilateral contacts.

The Commission invites stakeholders to provide contributions which include:

(1) developments and measures taken in relation to the recommendations in the 2025 report,
(2) developments related to topics covered in the 2025 country chapters, as well as any other new developments related to the rule of law.

The input should consist of a short summary, if possible in English, covering the areas referred to below. Legislation or other documents may be referenced with a link. Contributions should focus on significant developments since the last Rule of Law Report both as regards the legal framework and its implementation in practice.

This questionnaire also integrates the separate questionnaire on the single market from last year. In addition to these specific questions, respondents to the questionnaire are invited to consider the Single Market dimension, including any relevant cross-border issues, in all their answers.

Where questions of particular relevance under the single market dimension, this is indicated before the relevant question.

[1] Unless the information was already submitted in the input for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Type of information to be included:

Under each of the four pillars, the replies should include references to the following types of information:

A) Legislative developments

- Newly adopted legislation
- legislative drafts currently discussed in Parliament
- legislative plans envisaged by the Government

B) Policy developments

- Implementation and enforcement of legislation
- evaluations, impact assessment, surveys
- white papers/strategies/actions plans/consultation processes
- follow-up to reports/recommendations of Council of Europe bodies or other international organisations
- important administrative measures
- generalised practices

C) Developments related to the judiciary / independent authorities

- important case law by national courts
- important decision/opinions from independent bodies/authorities
- state of play on terms, nominations and expired mandates for high-level positions (e.g. Supreme Court, Constitutional Court, Council for the Judiciary, Prosecutor General, heads of independent authorities included in the scope of the request for input[2])

D) Any other relevant developments

- National authorities are free to add any further information, which they deem relevant; however, this should be short and to the point.

Where relevant, please also indicate whether the developments reported are linked to the implementation of reforms and investments under the national Recovery Resilience Plan. To simplify your answers to the questionnaire, if there are no developments, it is sufficient to indicate this and the information covered in the contributions for the previous Rule of Law Reports does not need not be repeated.

[2] Such as: media regulatory authorities and bodies, national human rights institutions, equality bodies, ombudsman institutions, supreme audit institutions and, where they exist, transparency authorities.

Systemic Barriers for Foreign Investors in Hungary

Over recent years, Hungary has developed a consistent pattern of legislation and administrative practice that disproportionately affects foreign-owned companies and cumulatively undermines legal certainty, market access and the freedom of establishment. These measures span multiple sectors, notably food retail and construction materials, and have resulted in sustained de-investment, distortion of competition and a progressive deterioration of investor confidence.

A core concern is the persistence of tailor-made sectoral legislation and special taxes that effectively destroy the financial base of foreign investors. These measures are often formally neutral but in practice target multinational groups through turnover thresholds, aggregation rules and selective scopes of application. The resulting burdens apply regardless of profitability and lack predictable expiry timelines.

In the food retail sector, the progressive retail tax continues to impose a maximum rate of 4.5 percent of turnover on multinational retailers, while Hungarian cooperatives benefit from significantly lower effective taxation due to preferential treatment of their store networks. The law prevents foreign companies from reducing their tax burden through restructuring, even if they adopt identical business models to domestic competitors. Despite explicit commitments under the Recovery and Resilience Facility to phase out the tax and reduce the maximum rate, no reform has been implemented. In June 2025, the European Commission issued a reasoned opinion calling on Hungary to abolish the tax for violating the freedom of establishment. The compliance deadline has expired without corrective action.

Price and margin regulation regimes further exacerbate the situation. Current margin caps restrict pricing to historical reference margins, impose rigid stockholding obligations, prohibit contractual adjustments with suppliers and freeze assortment structures. These measures apply only above specific turnover thresholds, predominantly affecting foreign operators. Although presented as temporary crisis tools, they have been repeatedly extended and expanded. Infringement procedures were initiated in June 2025, followed by reasoned opinions in December 2025, yet the margin caps remain in force until at least February 2026. Preliminary ruling proceedings concerning earlier price caps remain pending before the Court of Justice.

Foreign retailers also face systematic restrictions on expansion. Under the long-standing Plaza Stop regime, permits are required for construction, renovation, leasing or acquisition of retail space above 400 square metres. In practice, permits for multinational retailers are routinely denied without transparent reasoning. A 2025 tightening invalidated existing permits upon ownership or tenancy changes, effectively blocking all expansion. Additional limitations under the TÉKA law restrict maximum store size to 400–800 square metres, rendering modern and efficient retail formats impossible.

Comparable discriminatory patterns exist in the construction materials industry. Measures include export restrictions, mandatory production volumes, supplementary mining royalties of up to 90 percent of turnover and a CO<sub>2</sub> quota tax combined with a transaction fee on free EU-ETS allowances. These measures create permanent loss situations and discourage investment in decarbonisation. On 22 January 2026, the Court of Justice of the European Union issued a judgment on the supplementary mining royalties, confirming their incompatibility with EU law and ruling in favour of the affected companies and against Hungary. However, it remains unclear whether and how Hungary intends to comply with this judgment, as the contested rules had previously been transferred unchanged into permanent legislation and continue to be applied in practice.

Across sectors, enforcement practices intensify discrimination through excessive inspections, unpredictable fines and questionable regulatory decisions, including the denial of building permits. A visible correlation exists between state budget financing needs and the legislative imposition of financial burdens on foreign investors. When individual measures become subject to EU scrutiny, they are frequently replaced by substantively similar successor regulations.

Taken together, these developments demonstrate a systemic pattern of indirect discrimination through legislation and enforcement, disregard of EU commitments and persistent legal uncertainty. Close monitoring and decisive enforcement by the European Commission remain essential to restore equal treatment and safeguard the functioning of the internal market.
