

2026 Rule of Law Report - targeted stakeholder consultation

Fields marked with * are mandatory.

Introduction

The annual Rule of Law Report lies at the centre of the Annual Rule of Law Cycle, which acts as a preventive tool, deepening multilateral dialogue and joint awareness of rule of law issues. So far, six editions of the Rule of Law Report have been published since 2020.

As every year, the Commission would like to invite the stakeholders to provide contributions to the 2026 Rule of Law Report. On the basis of these contributions and on-going developments, further targeted questions may be shared at a later stage of preparation of the 2026 Rule of Law Report, in particular in the context of country visits, or bilateral contacts.

The Commission invites stakeholders to provide contributions which include:

(1) developments and measures taken in relation to the recommendations in the 2025 report,
(2) developments related to topics covered in the 2025 country chapters, as well as any other new developments related to the rule of law.

The input should consist of a short summary, if possible in English, covering the areas referred to below. Legislation or other documents may be referenced with a link. Contributions should focus on significant developments since the last Rule of Law Report both as regards the legal framework and its implementation in practice.

This questionnaire also integrates the separate questionnaire on the single market from last year. In addition to these specific questions, respondents to the questionnaire are invited to consider the Single Market dimension, including any relevant cross-border issues, in all their answers.

Where questions of particular relevance under the single market dimension, this is indicated before the relevant question.

[1] Unless the information was already submitted in the input for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Type of information to be included:

D) Any other relevant developments

- National authorities are free to add any further information, which they deem relevant; however, this should be short and to the point.

Where relevant, please also indicate whether the developments reported are linked to the implementation of reforms and investments under the national Recovery Resilience Plan. To simplify your answers to the questionnaire, if there are no developments, it is sufficient to indicate this and the information covered in the contributions for the previous Rule of Law Reports does not need not be repeated.

Amnesty International welcomes efforts to abolish the possibility of political interference in the work of public prosecutors and replace it with a federal public prosecutor's office. The current system of directives, which is particularly effective in high-profile cases, conflicts with the requirement under international law for independent investigations. Amnesty International has been calling for such a reform for many years. However, Amnesty International would like to note that, in the interests of the separation of powers between the legislature and the judiciary, ongoing investigations must not be subject to parliamentary control.

5000 character(s) maximum

In Austria, there is no effective legal protection against prohibitions of assemblies issued by the district administrative authority (Bezirksverwaltungsbehörde) or the state police directorate (Landespolizeidirektion), as appeals to the competent administrative court against such bans typically result in decisions that arrive too late, after the planned date. Organizers can lodge such appeals, but the process takes time, making it ineffective for short-term bans. Amnesty International advocates for legal reforms introducing proceedings, enabling swift judicial review of a prohibition's lawfulness.

[single market relevance] Safeguards (other than judicial review) regarding decisions or inaction of administrative authorities, including remedies (e.g. administrative review)

Oversight, including by courts, of the use of intrusive surveillance software by national authorities

5000 character(s) maximum

In 2025 there was an Introduction of investigative powers to monitor communications, including encrypted communications. The law provides for judicial approval by the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) and ongoing monitoring by the Legal Protection Officer. To this end, authorities and independent courts, among others, would need to have full access to and control over the source code of the software used, in addition to sufficient IT expertise and resources. In general, however, it can be assumed that it is not in the interest of spyware manufacturers or sellers to disclose the source code of their product to their customers. If spyware is purchased from a private company or another state, the controlling authorities have no way of seeing what the spyware actually does without the source code. They would not be able to check whether the spyware is limited to the functionalities provided for by law and what data it actually reads, stores, deletes, etc. Without the source code, it is also not possible to effectively verify whether the spyware has actually been removed or rendered inoperable after the investigation has been completed. Due to a lack of transparency and insight into the technical circumstances, effective control by courts or legal protection officers is not possible. In particular, there is a lack of protection against potential data transfer to third parties, which constitutes an infringement of the right to privacy. The authorities would not be able to check or see whether data is being misused in the background or whether the loophole in the system that is necessary for the spyware to be introduced is also being used for other purposes. In the absence of effective control, the state is also unable to fulfil its accountability obligations to the public.
