

2026 Rule of Law Report - targeted stakeholder consultation

Fields marked with * are mandatory.

Introduction

The annual Rule of Law Report lies at the centre of the Annual Rule of Law Cycle, which acts as a preventive tool, deepening multilateral dialogue and joint awareness of rule of law issues. So far, six editions of the Rule of Law Report have been published since 2020.

As every year, the Commission would like to invite the stakeholders to provide contributions to the 2026 Rule of Law Report. On the basis of these contributions and on-going developments, further targeted questions may be shared at a later stage of preparation of the 2026 Rule of Law Report, in particular in the context of country visits, or bilateral contacts.

The Commission invites stakeholders to provide contributions which include:

(1) developments and measures taken in relation to the recommendations in the 2025 report,
(2) developments related to topics covered in the 2025 country chapters, as well as any other new developments related to the rule of law.

The input should consist of a short summary, if possible in English, covering the areas referred to below. Legislation or other documents may be referenced with a link. Contributions should focus on significant developments since the last Rule of Law Report both as regards the legal framework and its implementation in practice.

This questionnaire also integrates the separate questionnaire on the single market from last year. In addition to these specific questions, respondents to the questionnaire are invited to consider the Single Market dimension, including any relevant cross-border issues, in all their answers.

Where questions of particular relevance under the single market dimension, this is indicated before the relevant question.

[1] Unless the information was already submitted in the input for the previous Rule of Law Reports.

Type of information to be included:

Under each of the four pillars, the replies should include references to the following types of information:

A) Legislative developments

- Newly adopted legislation
- legislative drafts currently discussed in Parliament
- legislative plans envisaged by the Government

B) Policy developments

- Implementation and enforcement of legislation
- evaluations, impact assessment, surveys
- white papers/strategies/actions plans/consultation processes
- follow-up to reports/recommendations of Council of Europe bodies or other international organisations

- important decision/opinions from independent bodies/authorities
- state of play on terms, nominations and expired mandates for high-level positions (e.g. Supreme Court, Constitutional Court, Council for the Judiciary, Prosecutor General, heads of independent authorities included in the scope of the request for input[2])

D) Any other relevant developments

- National authorities are free to add any further information, which they deem relevant; however, this should be short and to the point.

Where relevant, please also indicate whether the developments reported are linked to the implementation of reforms and investments under the national Recovery Resilience Plan. To simplify your answers to the questionnaire, if there are no developments, it is sufficient to indicate this and the information covered in the contributions for the previous Rule of Law Reports does not need not be repeated.

Media Freedom Rapid Response - MFRR's flagship Mapping Media Freedom (MapMF), recorded 1481 press freedom violations affecting 2377 journalists and other media professionals during 2025 across the European Union member states and candidate countries. The rise in the number of alerts in 2024 and small discrepancies with the numbers in 2025 show that this has become a consistent trend. The main difference compared to 2024 lies in the severity of attacks, with 2025 marking four deaths of journalists, compared to one in 2024. Although three of these cases occurred in Ukraine and one in Turkey, they highlight that impunity remains high, as crimes against journalists and murders often remain unsolved for years.

According to MapMF data, government and public officials were responsible for approximately one in five (21%) of all recorded incidents in EU member states during 2025. This marks a sharp increase from 2021, when such officials were implicated in just 10% of incidents. The online environment remains the most common setting for attacks, with incidents steadily rising in recent years. In 2025, 23.5% of all recorded incidents in the EU occurred online, with spoofing, identity disguise, and deepfakes emerging as growing concerns. Intimidation and threats were the most frequent types of attacks, accounting for 19% of cases documented by the MFRR. Another alarming trend, which surged in 2024 and persisted through 2025, is the proliferation of foreign-agent laws inspired by Russian models. These laws have raised significant concern among media organisations, with repeated threats of adoption and troubling reports emerging across both EU member states and candidate countries. MapMF recorded 72 threats of foreign agent laws in 2025, with a rise of alerts in EU member states - 34 in 2024, escalating from 20 incidents in 2024. This legislation risks silencing and exiling independent media entirely. While Hungary and Slovakia have intensified their push for these laws, similar threats from political figures have been observed in other EU countries. The spread of foreign-agent laws reflects growing illiberal influences in Europe, and the EU must firmly oppose any such proposals.

These types of threats tap into already existing legal threats, such as Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation (SLAPP) and criminalisation of defamation, one of the largest and most powerful tools used to intimidate journalists and media outlets. The MFRR submission and the upcoming monitoring report aim to emphasise the importance of timely and robust transposition of the Anti-SLAPP Directive by highlighting concerning cases.

Elections and protests were among the most dangerous environments for journalists in 2025. MFRR has registered 110 election-related alerts throughout the year. In terms of protests, Serbia serves as a stark example, recording the highest number of alerts last year (208), which affected 358 journalists and media workers. In April, the MFRR organised an urgent mission to Serbia to draw attention to the challenges journalists face during protests. The incidents reported there are wide-ranging, including spyware abuse, raids on newsrooms, intimidation, violence, and media capture. While most of these incidents are not directly linked to protest coverage, Serbia's case illustrates how governments are intensifying their crackdown on independent journalism amid nationwide unrest.

Last, but not least, discriminated groups remain most vulnerable to different types of attacks. Recognising that many of them go unregistered due to a distrust in official institutions, it is important to emphasise that they contribute to a general sense of insecurity among independent journalists. Thus, gendered-based attacks remain a concern, with 56 gender-based attacks recorded in 2025, compared to 38 in 2024, and 16 attacks related to the sexual orientation of journalists or media workers. Journalists in exile are particularly vulnerable, and MFRR has started recording cases specifically related to them. With many cases still to map out, MapMF has registered four such cases in 2025.

This text is part of Media Freedom Rapid Response (MFRR) joint input to the Rule of Law Report, and is submitted by the following consortium members: European Centre for Press and Media Freedom, Article 19, European Federation of Journalists, Free Press Unlimited, International Press Institute, Osservatorio Balcani Caucaso Transeuropa.

Please always include a link to and reference relevant legislation/documents (in the national language and/or where available, in English). Significant developments can include challenges, positive developments and best practices, covering both legislative developments or implementation and practices.

Information provided in reply to the first question under each pillar, related to the follow-up to the recommendations, does not need to be repeated in subsequent parts of the questionnaire, but can be cross-referenced in the subsequent questions, where relevant. III. Media pluralism and media freedom

Please provide information on measures taken to follow-up on the recommendations received in the 2025 Report regarding media pluralism and media freedom (if applicable)

5000 character(s) maximum

In the 2025 Report on the Rule of Law, the European Commission recommended that Spain continue to improve access to information, particularly by reforming the Official Secrets Act. In July 2025, the government approved the draft Classified Information Act to replace the 1968 Official Secrets Act, which is still in force and was approved during the Franco dictatorship. This new bill, which has been controversial because it sets very long deadlines for declassifying certain official documents, was submitted to the Congress of Deputies on July 23, 2025, and has since been stalled in the Constitutional Committee, with no progress made in its processing.

A. Media authorities and bodies

(Cf. Article 30 of Directive 2018/1808)

Measures taken to ensure the independence, enforcement powers and adequacy of resources (financial, human and technical) of media regulatory authorities and bodies

5000 character(s) maximum

Conditions and procedures for the appointment and dismissal of the head / members of the collegiate body of media regulatory authorities and bodies

5000 character(s) maximum

There have been no significant changes in legislation in this regard. The Presidency and the Board of Directors of the National Commission on Markets and Competition (CNMC) - the body designated to be the media regulatory authority under the European Media Freedom Act (EMFA) - act autonomously and independently of the Government and public administrations, but are appointed by the Government on the proposal of the Ministry of Economy and Competitiveness.

Because these appointments are approved by the government, the Federation of Journalists' Unions (FeSP) stated from the outset that the CNMC could not be the regulatory authority for the media. The people who occupy its Presidency and Board of Directors may be highly prestigious and independent, but they will always be subject to suspicion because they have been appointed by the government.

Europe accepted that the CNMC should be the regulatory authority, so the FeSP has asked the government to provide this body with the material and human resources it currently lacks in order to carry out its duties properly.

However, the government has not yet provided the CNMC with the material and human resources it needs to perform its role as a supervisory and regulatory body for the media. For this reason, the CNMC has not yet created the media registry that would allow the ownership of each media outlet to be known, as established by the EMFA.

Existence and functions of media councils or other self-regulatory bodies

5000 character(s) maximum

There is no self-regulatory body for the media. The only thing that exists is an agreement between the different television channels to protect minors, which almost all private television stations do not comply with.

B. Safeguards against government or political interference and transparency and concentration of media ownership

[single market relevance] Measures taken to ensure the fair and transparent allocation of state advertising

5000 character(s) maximum

Two years ago, the government announced that it would amend the law on institutional advertising to ensure that its distribution would be fair and transparent, but it has not yet approved the bill for it to be processed in Parliament. Some media outlets have complained and asked the government to explain the criteria it uses to distribute this advertising, but the ministries concerned have only given very generic responses. After receiving a generic response to its questions, the digital newspaper El Español appealed to the Council for Transparency and Good Governance—the independent administrative authority that ensures access to public information—and this body has ordered the government to provide this information. The digital newspaper has also appealed to the United Nations Human Rights Committee, which has not yet issued a ruling.

Safeguards against state / political interference, in particular:

- safeguards to ensure editorial independence of media (private and public)
- specific safeguards for the independence of heads of management and members of the governing boards of public service media (e.g. related to appointment, dismissal), safeguards for their financial and operational independence (e.g. related to reporting obligations and the allocation of resources) and safeguards for plurality of information and opinions
- [single market relevance] information on specific legal provisions and procedures applying to media service providers, including as regards granting /renewal/termination of licenses, company operation, capital entry requirements, concentration and corporate governance

There has been no change in legislation to guarantee the editorial independence of public media, let alone private media.

Nor has there been any change in the law regarding the appointment of senior management in public media. In 2017, Parliament passed “Law 5/2017, of September 29, amending Law 17/2006, of June 5, on state-owned radio and television, to restore the independence of the RTVE Corporation and pluralism in the parliamentary election of its bodies.” This law provided for a public merit-based competition to elect the President and Board of Directors of RTVE. After a long and tortuous process, the leadership of public radio and television was finally appointed by Parliament, with names proposed by the political groups in Congress and the Senate, most of them with clear links to the party that proposed their names. In addition, so that all parliamentary groups could propose candidates, Parliament increased the number of members of the Board of Directors from 10 to 15 and granted them a substantial monthly salary, because until then they had only received an allowance for attending a monthly meeting.

[single market relevance] Transparency of media ownership and public availability of media ownership information, including on direct, indirect and beneficial owners

5000 character(s) maximum

There is no transparency regarding the actual ownership of the media. Only a few modest media outlets voluntarily disclose all the information about who their shareholders are, the percentage of institutional advertising they receive, etc. But in general, as they are not yet required to do so because the European Regulation on Media Freedom has not yet been implemented, the actual identity of most media outlets is unknown.

C. Framework for journalists' protection, transparency and access to documents

Rules and practices guaranteeing journalists' independence and safety, including as regards protection of journalistic sources and communications, referring also, if applicable, to follow-up given to alerts lodged with the Council of Europe's Platform to promote the protection of journalism and safety of journalists

5000 character(s) maximum

There are no specific rules aimed at protecting the independence and safety of journalists. On the contrary, journalists frequently suffer pressure in their work from political and economic power, from their own companies, and increasingly from society through social media.

Sources are protected, since journalists can invoke professional secrecy in order not to reveal them, but judges often summon journalists to testify and ask them who the source of certain information they have published is. To prevent this from happening, the Federation of Journalists' Trade Unions (FeSP), together with other organizations, discussed with the Government in 2022 a draft bill to protect journalistic professional secrecy, a mandate of the 1978 Spanish Constitution that has still not been fulfilled.

That bill could not be processed because shortly after it was registered in Parliament, the Spanish parliament were dissolved due to the calling of general elections. In 2025, the Government drew up another, broader bill, incorporating European case law and the rules of the EMFA, to which FeSP and other organizations contributed their views. However, the Government has not sent this bill to Parliament because it wants it to be approved with broad consensus, since it affects the constitutional right to information, but the parliamentary group of the Popular Party—the leading opposition party, with a conservative ideology—has already announced that it will not support the bill.

Law enforcement capacity, including during protests and demonstrations, to ensure journalists' safety and to investigate attacks on journalists

5000 character(s) maximum

Attacks on journalists at public demonstrations are frequent, especially against television crews. Law enforcement forces, if they witness them, defend journalists, but on many occasions these attacks occur without the police being present.

In addition, there are police officers who hinder the work of journalists, especially photojournalists, when they cover a demonstration or public protest in the street, an eviction, etc.

Mapping Media Freedom recorded 8 cases of physical and verbal attacks against journalists during demonstrations, 3 of them were perpetrated by the police.

Access to information and public documents by public at large and journalists (incl. transparency authorities where they exist, procedures, costs/fees, timeframes, administrative/judicial review of decisions, execution of decisions by public authorities, possible obstacles related to the classification of information)

5000 character(s) maximum

In Spain it is not easy for journalists, and even less so for the general public, to access public information and documentation. One must go through procedures of a certain complexity, and the response times of the relevant public administration are not fast. Many times the response obtained is very generic, and it is necessary to appeal to the Transparency and Good Governance Council so that this body may rule that the requested information must be provided. In addition, there are too many matters for which, by law, it is not permitted to provide information to those who request it.

Lawsuits (incl. SLAPPs - strategic lawsuits against public participation) and convictions against journalists (incl. defamation cases) and measures taken to safeguard against manifestly unfounded and abusive lawsuits

5000 character(s) maximum

The Spanish Government published Directive (EU) 2024/1069 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 April 2024 in the Official State Gazette, but it has not adopted concrete measures to protect journalists from these abusive lawsuits. Several journalists and at least one media outlet have been affected by such lawsuits.

Any other developments related to media pluralism and freedom - please specify

5000 character(s) maximum

Insults, discredit and threats against journalists on social media are not prosecuted, especially those targeting women journalists.
