Number of recorded procedural decisions: the total number of criminal procedural decisions recorded by the authorities in relation to the criminal offence, and – if at least one perpetrator is identified in relation to the criminal offence – the total number of criminal procedural decisions applied to each perpetrator. If several acts are adjudicated in a single proceeding, data on all acts and all criminal procedure decisions recorded in connection with each act are reported in ENyÜBS'18. In view of this, cases involving a large number of criminal offences may cause significant changes in the statistics.

¹The number of defendants may differ from the total number of criminal offences, as a defendant may be listed in the database for multiple offences with different classifications.

The data shows the number of defendants who received a final conviction in the first instance in the year of the final court decision, for whom the court handed down a conviction for corruption-related criminal offences.
