ABSTRACT

The Judicial Council further improved procedures for selecting and evaluating judges and is working towards increasing its role in the governance of the justice system. The digitalisation of the justice system is being further strengthened through improvements to the e-Case Management system and a project for an online dispute resolution system. No process has been initiated to ensure adequate safeguards against undue political influence in the appointment of Supreme Court judges. The criminal chamber of the Supreme Court may now sit in extended composition and its judges may issue dissenting opinions. A revised Code of Ethics for prosecutors clarifies their fundamental duties and sanctions applicable for breaches. Preparatory work is ongoing to create a new centralised Academy of Justice. The Judicial Council merged Riga city courts, to even out the workload of judges and improve judicial efficiency. Overall, the justice system is continuing to perform efficiently, and several initiatives aim at improving case management and the efficient use of court resources. The Ministry of Justice assessed positively the efficiency of the Economic Court, taking also into account the views of relevant stakeholders, and is proposing to expand its competences.

The new Action Plan 2023-2025 to prevent corruption was adopted. Several legislative amendments aim to improve the fight against corruption. The Corruption Prevention and Combating Bureau (KNAB) continues to efficiently deal with anti-corruption issues. While the investigation and prosecution of corruption-related cases are carried out efficiently, the State Audit Office has raised concerns regarding the division of competences among various anti-corruption authorities. The electronic system for asset declarations continues to work well. New initiatives on integrity matters, such as the code of ethics for the Government, have been announced. A new law on lobbying was adopted and is expected to be fully implemented by 2025 by setting up the lobby register. The new legislation on whistleblowing is operational, while the Ombudsperson underlines the need for clarity and ensuring effectiveness in the practice of the current whistleblowing framework.

The general legislative framework regarding media pluralism and media freedom remains solid in Latvia and guarantees media freedom and the right to information. The professional environment for journalists remains largely safe in Latvia, although online threats against journalist persist. Media regulatory authorities continue to operate independently. Well-established safeguards continue to ensure the independence of public service media. The Public Electronic Mass Media Council (PEMMC) continues to operate as independent supervisory body for the oversight of public service media.

Measures were taken to increase the participation of civil society in decision-making at local level, through a new law on local government, which introduces several mechanisms to foster the active involvement of civil society at municipal level. The state of emergency at the Latvian-Belarusian border was maintained, restricting access for media and civil society organisations. The legislator has not taken measures to fully implement a judgment of the Constitutional Court on legal, economic, and social protection for all families, as also required by the Supreme Court. Although state funding for civil society organisations increased, they perceive access to adequate funding through different sources as their main challenge.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Overall, concerning the recommendations in the 2022 Rule of Law Report, Latvia has (made):

- No progress on initiating a process in view of ensuring adequate safeguards against undue political influence in the appointment of Supreme Court judges, taking into account European standards on judicial appointments.
- Fully implemented the recommendation on continuing efforts towards the swift adoption and made some progress on the effective implementation of the Action Plan 2021-2024 to prevent corruption.
- Some progress on continuing efforts towards adopting the draft legislation on lobbying, and following that, ensuring the setting-up of a special lobby register.
- Fully implemented the recommendation on taking measures to increase the participation of civil society in decision-making at local level.

On this basis, and considering other developments that took place in the period of reference, it is recommended to Latvia to:

- Take measures to ensure adequate safeguards against undue political influence in the appointment of Supreme Court judges, taking into account European standards on judicial appointments.
- Ensure the effective implementation of the legislation on lobbying, including the setting-up of a special lobby register.

I. JUSTICE SYSTEM

The Latvian justice system has three tiers. At first instance, there are nine district (city) courts dealing with civil and criminal cases, and one district administrative court. The Economic Court deals with certain economic and financial crimes. At second instance, five regional courts are dealing with civil and commercial cases and there is one regional administrative court. The Supreme Court, at third instance, is handling criminal, civil and administrative cases. The Constitutional Court carries out constitutional review. An independent Judicial Council is tasked with participating in the development of policies and strategies for the judicial system and the improvement of its organisation. Furthermore, the Council deals with selecting candidate judges, appointing, and dismissing court presidents, determining the judicial map, and approving the content of training. Candidate judges are selected through an open competition organised by the Judicial Council, ranked and placed on a list, from which the Minister for Justice proposes the candidate with the highest number of points to the Parliament for appointment. After three years in office and an evaluation by a judicial body, judges are appointed for an indefinite term by the Parliament on a proposal from the Minister for Justice. The Prosecution Office is an independent judicial institution under the authority of the Prosecutor General. Latvia participates in the European Prosecutor's Office (EPPO). The Latvian Council of Lawyers is an independent, self-governing professional organisation, which oversees disciplinary proceedings regarding lawyers.

Independence

The level of perceived judicial independence in Latvia continues to be average among the general public and is now average among companies. Overall, 41% of the general population and 43% of companies perceive the level of independence of courts and judges to be 'fairly or very good' in 2023¹. According to data in the 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard, whilst remaining average, the level decreased among the general public in the last years (it stood at 56% in 2021 and 53% in 2022). It is also lower than in 2016 (42%). The perceived judicial independence among companies has increased in comparison with 2022 (27%), as well as in comparison with 2016 (35%).

The Judicial Council further improved procedures for selecting and evaluating judges and is working towards increasing its role in the governance of the justice system. The selection procedure for judges in district and regional courts had already been modified by the Judicial Council² in 2021 to improve the examination process³. On 28 November 2022, the Judicial Council further amended the selection procedure to improve the work of the selection committee and ensure the continuity of its work⁴. Moreover, the Judicial Council started

² To strengthen judicial independence, the competence to determine the procedure was transferred in 2018 from the executive to the Judicial Council. 2020 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Latvia, p. 2, and 2021 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Latvia, p. 2.

⁴ The new rules provide, inter alia, that members of the selection committee will have a term of office of four years (instead of three), aligned with self-governing institutions and members of the Judicial Council. The President of the Judicial Council or an authorized representative will also be able to participate in the selection implementing the new Rules of Procedure of the Judicial Qualification Committee⁵, which introduce a uniform procedure and criteria for the assessment of the suitability of a judge to fill duties in a regional court and include the length of court proceedings as one of the criteria for evaluating the performance of judges⁶. As stated in the 2021 and 2022 Rule of Law Reports⁷, one of the main goals of the Judicial Council's strategy for 2021-2025 is to take over the administrative management of the justice system, in particular as regards budgetary aspects⁸, from the Court Administration, a body under the Ministry of Justice. This objective is also part of the Judicial Council's work priorities for 2023 and its staff was increased from four to seven employees, allowing it to dedicate more resources to court administration⁹.

No steps were taken to introduce safeguards in the appointment procedure for Supreme Court judges. The 2022 Rule of Law report recommended to Latvia to “initiate a process in view of ensuring adequate safeguards against undue political influence in the appointment of Supreme Court judges, taking into account European standards on judicial appointments”. As highlighted in the 2022 Rule of Law Report, in 2022, the appointment process for the Supreme Court was marked by controversies regarding possible undue political influence¹⁰. In the meantime, two new Supreme Court judges were appointed, as Parliament approved the candidates proposed by the President of the Supreme Court¹¹. In those two cases, the appointment procedure was implemented in line with European standards, according to which the appointing authority should follow in practice the recommendations or opinions of an independent and competent authority drawn in substantial part from the judiciary¹². However, in terms of safeguards in the appointment procedure, potential unsuccessful candidates cannot request judicial review against the Parliament's decision, which also does not have to contain reasons for the rejection¹³. Since no process has been initiated to introduce adequate safeguards against undue political influence in the appointment procedure to the Supreme Court, no progress has been made on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2022 Rule of Law Report.

¹² According to Recommendation CM/Rec(2010)12 of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, para. 47, where the constitutional or other legal provisions prescribe that the head of state, the government or the legislative power take decisions concerning the selection and career of judges, an independent and competent authority drawn in substantial part from the judiciary should be authorised to make recommendations or express opinions which the relevant appointing authority follows in practice.

A revised Code of Ethics for prosecutors clarifies their fundamental duties, emphasising independence and impartiality, and sanctions applicable for breaches. The Code of Ethics, which prescribes the fundamental principles and obligations guiding the actions of prosecutors, had remained unchanged since its adoption in 1998. In a study published in 2021, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) recommended to review and update the Code of Ethics, particularly to improve its effectiveness¹⁴. The new version of the Code of Ethics for Prosecutors¹⁵ emphasises the prosecutors' duties of independence, impartiality, and legality, as well as the citizens' right to be informed of the reasons underpinning decisions. To clarify the consequences of breaches of the Code of Ethics, moral sanctions, such as reprimands and public apologies, were removed as an alternative to disciplinary sanctions¹⁶. The previous version of the Code of Ethics included both types of sanctions, without, however, providing clear criteria to differentiate in which situations they would apply.

New rules reinforced the protection of professional secrecy for lawyers. Amendments to the Criminal Procedure Law¹⁷, which came into force on 3 November 2022, extended the protection afforded to the secrecy of documents in the possession of lawyers, including correspondence with their clients. Under the new rules, an investigating judge will need to authorise the inspection of items or documents that contain protected professional secrets¹⁸. New safeguards were also introduced for searches in a lawyer's place of work, residence or vehicle¹⁹. Such a search must now be carried out in the presence of a representative of the Council of Sworn Advocates of Latvia²⁰. An investigating judge will need to authorise the inspection of documents or items for which secrecy is invoked.

Quality

The e-Case Management system was improved, and an online dispute resolution system is being developed to further increase the level of digitalisation of the justice system. The 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard shows that the level of digitalisation of the justice system continues to be high²¹, although progress could still be made on the availability of secure ¹⁵ The revision was developed in close collaboration with Delna – Transparency International Latvia.

¹⁷ Law of 21 April 2005 on Criminal Procedure, Latvian Official Gazette no. 74 of 11 May 2005.

¹⁸ Art. 121(2) of the Criminal Procedure Law afford such protection to both defence and counsel activities, as professional secrecy covers “the documents detained by defence counsels and lawyers who have provided legal assistance in any form, regarding information the confidentiality of which has been entrusted to him or her by a defendant”.

¹⁹ Under new Art. 184(1) of the Criminal Procedure Law.

²⁰ The lawyer concerned has the possibility to invoke the secrecy of documents or items targeted by the search and to submit additional information or objections to the person in charge of the search within 24 hours.

²¹ Latvia is among the most advanced Member States as regards the availability of online information about the judicial system, the availability of electronic communication tools for courts, digital solutions to initiate and follow proceedings in civil, commercial and administrative cases, the online access to published judgments as electronic communication tools for prosecution services²². The e-Case Management system, an online case management solution²³, which became operational on 1 December 2021, was further developed, notably to improve the functionality of the online services to parties and representatives of litigants²⁴. The legal framework governing the operation and further development of the e-Case system was complemented with the entry into force of a new law, which set up a Council of e-Case monitoring, and four regulations of the Cabinet of Ministers²⁵. New equipment was also provided to courts, including a videoconference management tool, and in January 2023, 54% of all courtrooms were equipped with videoconferencing capabilities (compared to 43% in July 2022). Furthermore, an online dispute resolution system is being developed in cooperation with the OECD²⁶ to strengthen access to justice at all levels and reduce costs for citizens²⁷. The OECD is conducting an in-depth assessment of the current practices, challenges and opportunities in online dispute resolution, and the use of digital technologies and data in the justice sector, in view of improving the user-centricity of pathways for resolving disputes²⁸.

The Judicial Council merged the Riga City Courts to even out workload and improve judicial efficiency. As a continuation of the judicial map reform launched in 2015²⁹, the court reorganization plan was designed in co-operation between the Ministry of Justice and the Working Group for Strengthening the Efficiency of the Judiciary set up by the Judicial Council in 2021³⁰. The Riga City Court, which was created by merging³¹ the Vidzeme District Court, the Latgale District Court and the Pārdaugava District Court, started its work on 1 August 2022. The judges of the newly created Riga City Court called on the Judicial Council to proceed with projects to even out the workload of judges in the entire country.

²⁴ For instance, the online e-service “My e-cases”, which ensures the parties’ accessibility to the case data and materials has been improved. Similarly, new functionalities were added to allow sworn attorneys to plan and manage court hearings more efficiently. Input from Latvia for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, p. 9.

²⁶ The cooperation project is planned to be completed in June 2023, and its main coordinator in Latvia is the Court Administration.

²⁷ Input from Latvia for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, p. 8.

²⁸ The project includes a study to determine the types of disputes that can be resolved using the new technological solutions, which are initially intended to cover commercial disputes, as well as to provide support to vulnerable groups.

²⁹ As noted in the 2020 Rule of Law Report, several consecutive reforms of the judicial map, which previously reduced the number of first instance courts from 35 to 10 district courts, helped to balance the workload of judges in different courts, particularly in cities compared to the countryside, and contributed to improved efficiency. 2020 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Latvia, p. 6.

Preparatory work is ongoing to create the new centralised Academy of Justice. As stated in the 2022 Rule of Law Report³², the establishment of a unified training centre for the development of qualifications for judges, prosecutors, and investigators, which would provide more stability and interdisciplinary approach to the training of judicial staff, is a milestone under Latvia's Recovery and Resilience Plan (RRP)³³. On 21 November 2022, the Supervisory Board³⁴ approved the detailed description of the project on the establishment of the Academy of Justice, and a reform of the qualification development system is planned.

The criminal chamber of the Supreme Court may now sit in extended composition and its judges may issue dissenting opinions. This possibility, which already existed for civil and administrative cases, was introduced in criminal matters on 3 November 2022³⁵. This reform was initiated by the Supreme Court, which emphasised that the examination of complex legal issues in the extended composition would significantly contribute to the creation of a uniform and stable case law³⁶. The competence for judicial review was transferred to courts of appeal in several matters³⁷ to reduce the Supreme Court's workload and allow it to focus on more complex cases³⁸.

Efficiency

The justice system is overall continuing to perform efficiently. The 2023 EU Justice Scoreboard shows that the length of court proceedings and pending cases were among the lowest in the EU. In 2022, the overall length of proceedings remained stable³⁹. However, in 2021, the clearance rate decreased from 107% to 92,5% for administrative cases at first instance, although in 2021 pending administrative cases remained the lowest in the EU⁴⁰. For civil and commercial cases, the number of pending cases remains low⁴¹, and the clearance rate

³⁵ Under the revised Art. 586 of the Criminal Procedure Law, where a 3-judge panel of the Supreme Court deems it appropriate, it decides on referring the case for examination in the extended composition.

³⁶ Supreme Court, press release of 4 November 2022.

increased over the 100% threshold⁴², meaning that courts are able to both deal steadily with incoming cases and reduce their backlog.

New initiatives further improve case management and the efficient use of court resources.

On 1 July 2022, the Judicial Council approved new guidelines for the management of case examination deadlines in courts⁴³, which focus on the collection and analysis of statistical indicators of court activity, thus providing an opportunity to compare the planned case examination deadlines with the court's performance indicators of the previous year⁴⁴. Under the new guidelines, court presidents must submit to the Judicial Council, at the beginning of each year, their planned deadlines not only for incoming cases, but also for cases that have not been dealt with for more than two years, with a particular focus on cases pending for more than five years. The President of the Supreme Court may request additional information from the presidents of courts on the reasons for lengthy proceedings in specific cases, and they did so several times in 2022⁴⁵. The Court Administration is continuing to improve the case weighing model⁴⁶, for which a pilot project was initiated in 2021 in several courts of first instance⁴⁷, and is currently analysing the necessary resources for the integration of the model into the Court Information System. The Working Group for Strengthening the Efficiency of the Judiciary is continuing its work on optimising the organisation of personnel in the court system. In a report submitted to the Judicial Council, the working group recommended developing further the staff category of assistants to judges, by restoring the qualification requirement of holding a law degree⁴⁸, and by subjecting them to the standards of the legal profession, including by focusing their annual evaluation system on legal qualifications.

The Ministry of Justice assessed positively the efficiency of the Economic Court and is proposing to expand its competences. Since November 2022, all ten judges have been appointed to the Economic Court, previously functioning with nine judges since the beginning of its operations in March 2021⁴⁹. On 11 October 2022, the Cabinet of Ministers approved a report, prepared by the Ministry of Justice, on the results of the first year of operation of the Economic Court and possibilities for its further development. The report found that, although

⁴⁴ Input from Latvia for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, p. 12.

⁴⁶ Such a model for determining the degree of complexity of cases aims to assess the workload of courts and judges more accurately, as well as to balance the workload between courts and judges. It can be used for evaluation of court statistics and performance indicators, as well as for distribution of cases.

working at incomplete capacity, the Court had demonstrated its efficiency, and its potential can be further exploited. It also highlighted that, compared to ordinary district courts, the Economic Court had a lower rate of overturned decisions than the national average⁵⁰. The Ministry of Justice's report concluded that the Court's competences in civil matters should be extended, in the short term, without the necessity to increase resources⁵¹. In the medium term, it is envisaged to extend the Economic Court's competence even further, including in criminal matters⁵² and for large-scale claims⁵³. It is estimated that the additional workload would require five additional judge positions and adequate premises for the additional staff.

II. ANTI-CORRUPTION FRAMEWORK

The legislative and institutional framework to prevent and prosecute corruption is in place. The Corruption Prevention and Combating Bureau (KNAB) is a specialised body with competence to investigate corruption-related offences and prevent corruption. The Prosecutor's Office supervises pre-trial investigations of corruption-related offences conducted by the KNAB. Other institutions with anti-corruption competences are: the State Police, which investigates corruption in private institutions and fraud; the Internal Security Bureau, which investigates corruption-related criminal offences committed by the officials of the institutions subordinated to the Ministry of the Interior; the Internal Security Board of the State Revenue Service, which investigates criminal offences committed by State Revenue Service officials; the State Border Guard, which investigates corruption involving State Border Guard's officers and the Prison Administration which investigates corruption involving Prison Administration officers.

The perception among experts and business executives is that the level of corruption in the public sector remains relatively high. In the 2022 Corruption Perceptions Index by Transparency International, Latvia scores 59/100 and ranks 15th in the European Union and 39th globally⁵⁴. This perception has been relatively stable over the past five years⁵⁵. The 2023

⁵¹ The Economic Court is already competent to rule on claims arising from the legal relationship between shareholders in a capital company, and is proposed to add actions arising from the disposal of shares, as well as cases concerning the liability of board members, founders, procurators or auditors of companies. This could ensure the uniformity of case-law in actions linked to the holding of shares by avoiding the fragmentation jurisdiction. The Economic Court deems this extension of its jurisdiction would not necessitate additional resources. Information received from the Economic Court in the context of the country visit.

⁵² It is considered to give the Economic Court competence to rule, among others, on cases related to insider dealing and manipulation of financial markets, unauthorised release of financial instruments, acquisition and disclosure of trade secrets as well as tax evasion.

⁵⁴ Transparency International, Corruption Perceptions Index 2022, pp. 2-3. The level of perceived corruption is categorised as follows: low (the perception among experts and business executives of public sector corruption scores above 79); relatively low (scores between 79-60), relatively high (scores between 59-50), high (scores below 50).

Special Eurobarometer on Corruption shows that 74% of respondents consider corruption widespread in their country (EU average 70%) and 16% of respondents feel personally affected by corruption in their daily lives (EU average 24%)⁵⁶. As regards businesses, 72% of companies consider that corruption is widespread (EU average 65%) and 31% consider that corruption is a problem when doing business (EU average 35%)⁵⁷. Furthermore, 23% of respondents find that there are enough successful prosecutions to deter people from corrupt practices (EU average 32%)⁵⁸, while 19% of companies believe that people and businesses caught for bribing a senior official are appropriately punished (EU average 30%)⁵⁹.

Significant progress was made as the new Corruption Prevention and Combating Action Plan 2023-2025 was adopted and it is now being implemented. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Latvia to “continue efforts towards the swift adoption and effective implementation of the Action Plan 2021-2024 to prevent corruption”. The Corruption Prevention and Combating Action Plan 2023-2025 was adopted on 14 March 2023⁶⁰. Despite the delay in adoption, various activities being currently part of the Action Plan were carried out. This fact reduced the negative impact of the delay in adoption of the Action Plan⁶¹. Overall, according to the OECD’s Public Integrity Indicator on strategy, Latvia is well above the OECD average for quality of the strategy (100%) and coverage and performs well regarding their implementation plan and rate of implementation (68%)⁶². Thus, significant progress has been made on the 2022 recommendation.

Several legislative amendments aim to improve the fight against corruption. In 2022 the Parliament adopted legislative amendments widening the scope of the bribery offence⁶³. On 6 October 2022, the Parliament amended the Criminal Procedure Law introducing security measures in view of strengthening investigation and adjudication of economic and financial crime in relation to legal persons⁶⁴. On 1 January 2023, the amendments to the Public Procurement Law, which was a milestone under Latvia's Recovery and Resilience Plan⁶⁵, introduced more detailed rules for conflict of interest in public procurement and a ban on creating permanent procurement commissions⁶⁶.

The Corruption Prevention and Combating Bureau (KNAB) continues to efficiently deal with anti-corruption issues. As of 31 December 2022, 143 out of 171 positions in KNAB were filled (28 vacant positions remain). An evaluation⁶⁷ of the previous national anti-corruption policy planning period, concluded in 2022, and awareness-raising activities⁶⁸ are being carried out by KNAB. The new KNAB strategy for the next period 2023-2026 period was introduced⁶⁹. As currently KNAB does not have an overarching methodology for a national corruption risk assessment, the OECD announced a report containing concrete recommendations for a national corruption risk assessment methodology in Latvia that would help KNAB to identify high-risk areas and set priorities⁷⁰.

The investigation and prosecution of corruption-related cases is carried out by various authorities. Overall, public procurement and the health sector remain the main areas at high risk of corruption⁷¹. In 2022, KNAB has carried out a wide range of activities⁷². In 2022, the KNAB Division for Investigation of Administrative Violations initiated 315 departmental investigations, and concluded a total of 314 departmental investigations. KNAB initiated 248 administrative violation proceedings for the violation of the provision of the Law on Prevention

⁶⁶ Amendments of the Public Procurement Law, 3 March 2022. The Parliament made similar amendments in the Law on the Procurements of Public Service Providers and the Law on Public-Private Partnership on 5 May 2022 and the Law on Procurements in the Field of Defence and Security on 13 October 2022.

⁶⁸ In 2022, KNAB published 'Guidelines on how to recognise corruption', addressed to the general public and businesses, which explain general signs that may indicate administrative corruption, political corruption, corruption in public procurements and illegal financing of political parties with easy-to-follow examples and checklists. The material also contains information on how to act in suspicious situations.

recommendations. The result of this exercise should be finalised by the end of 2024⁸⁶. Currently, four KNAB investigators are involved in three criminal proceedings led by EPPO⁸⁷. According to EPPO the issue of insufficient resources on the Latvian side remains to be addressed⁸⁸.

The State Audit Office has expressed concerns regarding the shortcomings of the institutional framework in relation to investigation of corruption-related cases. On 9 November 2022, the State Audit Office published an audit report⁸⁹ related to the number and distribution of investigative anti-corruption competencies, as well as the capacity of the relevant authorities to deal with corruption cases. It was for instance noted that while the initial idea of setting up KNAB was to centralise the investigation of all corruption crimes and set up regional KNAB departments, this objective was not implemented due to insufficient funding⁹⁰. The report states that KNAB initiates and investigates only 16% of all cases related to corruption⁹¹. As such, the functions of the relevant institutions significantly overlap. Also, the Report underlines that there are no criteria for determining the effectiveness and volume of investigatory work⁹². The Council for Prevention of Crime will be the coordinating body responsible for addressing the recommendations made to the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Finance, and the investigative authorities⁹³.

The electronic system on asset declarations keeps improving in both legal and operational terms. Concerning the annual declarations for 2022, 65 125 declarations of public officials were submitted in the Payment Administration Information System (PAIS) and the system automatically accepted 43 649 declarations, ensuring an automated verification of declarations by set criteria while the remaining declarations were checked manually⁹⁴. The State Revenue Service conducts in-depth verification on submission and filling of no less than 2% of all

⁹¹ The remaining ones are taken over by other agencies, namely the Internal Security Bureau, the Internal Security Board of the State Revenue Service, the State Border Guard, the Prison Administration and the State Police. The Report also states that those institutions have competence to investigate service-related offences committed by their own officials, which creates potential conflicts of interest. The auditors estimated that if the KNAB investigated all corruption criminal offences, there would be an additional 160 criminal proceedings on average every year where 97% of criminal proceedings would refer to corruption criminal offences committed in public sector and 3% of criminal proceedings in private sector. Thus, the number of criminal proceedings initiated by the KNAB yearly would increase fivefold. The auditors point out that KNAB has been tasked several times to address the issue of expanding its institutional jurisdiction by centralising the investigation of corruption criminal offences since 2015, but no result has been achieved so far. submitted declarations annually⁹⁵. The SRS initiated 282 administrative violation proceedings in 2022 for violations found in the activities of state officials⁹⁶. In 2022, 370 decisions were taken on administrative liability cases for offences conducted by public officials⁹⁷. In 2021 – 2022, administrative decisions came into force regarding 97 cases of failure to submit declaration in time and 154 cases of declaration of false data. The majority of the cases are minor⁹⁸. Currently, the PAIS system also allows public officials to clarify the declarations in the Electronic Declaration System before it is published on the public database. That improvement has increased the detection of gaps in the asset declarations by 50% according to the State Revenue Service⁹⁹. In view of ensuring a uniform understanding of the legal norms, the amendments to the Law on Prevention of Conflict of Interest suggested by State Revenue Service are currently being discussed in the Ministry of Justice¹⁰⁰. The State Revenue Service is also planning the next round of amendments that are expected to set the time limit for the availability of public officials' declarations in the database to be made public especially for the public officials who terminated employment relationships long time ago or deceased¹⁰¹.

Substantive progress has been made on integrity matters. On 20 October 2022, further amendments were adopted to the Law on Prevention of Conflict of Interest in Activities of Public Officials in view of strengthening restrictions for members of local government councils to obtain income¹⁰². GRECO has welcomed the progress made on integrity matters in top executive functions and law enforcement agencies¹⁰³. Also, in line with a GRECO recommendation¹⁰⁴, an amendment was adopted introducing a mechanism obliging political officials to obtain a relevant permission prior to combining offices. In 2022, KNAB received ⁹⁵ Nevertheless, GRECO raises the fact that it does not seem that all the asset declarations of the top executive power public officials are subject to an in-depth and independent scrutiny (manual check) and the SRS, being part of the Ministry of Finance, may not be considered fully independent, on the basis of the limited information provided by the authorities. ¹⁰⁰ The purpose of those amendments is to reduce the number of incorrectly completed declarations by public officials because of the interpretation of legal norms, and the number of violations that occur due to ambiguous understanding of legal norms. Those amendments notably aim at defining more precisely the amount of information to be provided in declarations of public officials, to determine a longer time period for updating declarations of public officials. an EU grant for a project focusing on the evaluation of the Law on Prevention of Conflict of Interest in Activities of Public Officials to be carried out by experts of the OECD¹⁰⁵. The OECD intends to also produce a report analysing current approaches and inputs for assessing internal control systems in Latvia, with a focus on the prevention of corruption and conflicts of interests¹⁰⁶. As regards the restrictions regarding post-employment activities, according to Section 6(4) of the Law on Transparency of Interest Representation that entered into force on 1 January 2023 foresees a two-year cooling off period¹⁰⁷.

The Cabinet of Ministers intends to adopt a code of ethics for the Government. In 2022, the State Chancellery¹⁰⁸ published the results of an analysis of integrity risks of certain politicians and high-level civil servants and advisors of the executive regarding areas such as policy making, policy implementation and co-ordination, appointment and career development of subordinate officials¹⁰⁹, which was welcomed by GRECO¹¹⁰. In January 2023, a training for the newly appointed governmental officials was carried out¹¹¹. According to the declaration of the new Cabinet of Ministers, a code of ethics for the Government is expected to be developed on this basis¹¹². Both developments were welcomed by GRECO¹¹³ due to its recommendation from 2020 to revise and update the Parliament's code as well as to complement it with practical measures to provide guidance and counselling¹¹⁴.

Some progress has been made regarding legislation on lobbying, as a new law was adopted, although certain challenges still need to be addressed for the system to be operational. The 2022 Rule of Law Report recommended to Latvia to “continue efforts towards adopting the draft legislation on lobbying, and following that, ensure the setting-up of ¹⁰⁶ The report will contain a final methodology for assessing the effectiveness of internal control systems for preventing corruption and conflicts of interest in Latvia, including key indicators that determine the effectiveness of the system. Currently, approximately 80% of State and Municipal institutions have implemented internal control systems. However, their quality and understanding of the requirements is variable and has not been assessed so far. – Contribution received in the context of the 2023 Rule of Law Report from OECD, p. 6-7.

¹⁰⁷ During their term of office, a representative of a public authority is prohibited from being a representative of interests in cases in which they are involved as a representative of the public authority. This limitation also applies for two years after the end of the term of office for cases in which the person has been involved as a representative of public authority.

¹⁰⁸ The State Chancellery is a central public administration institution directly subordinated to the Prime Minister.

¹⁰⁹ For the purposes of the analysis the ‘political office holders of the executive’ are: Members of the Cabinet of Ministers (President of the Ministers, Ministers, Member of the Prime Minister and Minister for Special Purposes), parliamentary Secretary, Head of Cabinet office of a member of the Cabinet, Advisers, assistants to a member of the Cabinet of Ministers. a special lobby register”. The Law on Transparency of Interest Representation¹¹⁵, that was adopted on 13 October 2022 and entered into force on 1 January 2023¹¹⁶, is considered a positive development in view of promoting transparency by the civil society¹¹⁷. At the same time, numerous questions regarding implementation remain to be addressed. Those concern in particular the definition of the ‘interest representation’¹¹⁸, which currently remains vague and, as such, could lead to confusion as to which cases should be registered. Similarly, a sanctioning system for breaches has not yet been introduced and the authority responsible for the implementation of the law has not been defined¹¹⁹. According to the State Chancellery, certain aspects of the new Law will be addressed by September 2023 through a Cabinet Regulation which is expected to bring more clarity on the adopted rules¹²⁰. The creation of an interest representation registry and an interest representation declaration system is expected to be operational by 1 September 2025. Also in 2025, the Ministry of Justice, in cooperation with KNAB and the State Chancellery, is expected to provide an official report to the Parliament assessing the necessity to introduce sanctions for breaches of the Law. The report will also include an indication of the authority competent for the implementation of the Law¹²¹. Some progress has therefore been made regarding the 2022 recommendation.

New amendments entered into force regarding political party financing, while no changes took place regarding the rules on revolving doors. The amendments adopted on 24 February 2022 in the Law on Financing of Political Parties entered into force on 1 November 2022¹²². In context of the Parliament elections carried out on 1 October 2022, KNAB organised seminars for campaigners, as well as political parties on pre-election campaigning restrictions¹²³. As regards the examination of submissions and complaints related to alleged political party financing and pre-election campaigning restrictions, KNAB initiated 512 departmental examinations, and by the end of 2022 had completed 535 departmental examinations. For violations of the Law on Financing of Political Parties and Pre-election

The new legislation on whistleblowing is operational, while the Ombudsperson underlines the need for ensuring its effectiveness in practice. The Whistleblowing Law entered into force on 4 February 2022¹²⁵. The system is operational and the main contact for whistleblowers is the State Chancellery. Overall, in 2021, 527 whistleblowing submissions were received while 153 of them were recognised as whistleblowing, including 25 cases of corruption¹²⁶. As regards submission made to KNAB, 55 submissions on whistleblowing were received in 2022, including 15 on corruption (8 on bribery and 7 on conflicts of interest) while the cases recognised as whistleblowing were 11 overall, including 10 on corruption (4 on bribery and 6 on conflicts of interest)¹²⁷. Various awareness raising activities were undertaken in 2022¹²⁸, including issuing of specific guidelines on whistleblowers¹²⁹. Nevertheless, according to the Ombudsperson, there is a need to ensure that the existing mechanism for protecting the rights of whistleblowers is effectively functioning in practice¹³⁰.

III. MEDIA PLURALISM AND MEDIA FREEDOM

The Latvian legal framework concerning media pluralism and media freedom is based on a set of constitutional safeguards and legislative measures. The Constitution prohibits censorship and guarantees freedom of expression and information. Electronic media is regulated by the Electronic Mass Media Law (EMML)¹³¹, which also implements the Audiovisual Media Services Directive.

¹²⁹ Guidelines on whistleblowers are available here: <https://trauksmescelejs.lv/vadlinijas>.

¹³⁰ The Ombudsperson pointed out in case 2022-02-27J that, in Latvia, regulatory acts do not identify an authority which would have competence over whistleblowing issues, including the verification that the authority that dealt with the whistleblower’s report has ensured the protection of the individual’s rights. In the absence of such supervision, public confidence in the effectiveness of the whistleblowing mechanism and in the protection of the whistleblower may be significantly reduced. As a result, a person may lack motivation to report the violations found in the public interest. In the opinion of the Ombudsperson, the authority competent for carrying out that task could be the Public Prosecutor’s Office, which has the necessary legal instruments to ensure control over whistleblowing issues. ¹³¹ Latvian Electronic Mass Media Law, Latvijas Vēstnesis, 118, 28.07.2010.

Since the 2022 Rule of Law Report, there have been no changes to the legal framework concerning the regulator for audiovisual media services¹³². The media regulator, the National Electronic Mass Media Council (NEMMC), supervises the compliance of the operations of electronic mass media with the Constitution, the EMLL and other relevant legislation. Regulatory safeguards are in place for the independence of the NEMCC. The EMLL provides that while carrying out its tasks, the National Electronic Media Council shall not seek or take instruction from any other body. Financial and human resources of the NEMCC have remained stable¹³³. As in the past year, the Media Pluralism Monitor (MPM 2023) reports a low risk for the independence of the media authorities¹³⁴.

Since the 2022 Rule of Law Report, there have been no significant changes in the legal framework concerning transparency of media ownership¹³⁵. The public can obtain the information on media ownership from the website of the NEMCC¹³⁶ and the Register of Enterprises. All media outlets registered in Latvia must provide the information on their beneficial owners to the Register of Enterprises, and service providers are obliged to provide information on their beneficial owners and any changes in such ownership to the NEMCC. As pointed out in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹³⁷, the Government has included measures to promote public access to media ownership information in the Latvia's National Open Government Action Plan for 2022-2025; the work on the implementation of those measures by the NEMCC is ongoing¹³⁸. There has been no development regarding media concentration. The Latvian framework does not provide for any specific measures regulating the involvement of media regulators in the context of the assessment of media mergers and acquisitions. Concerning operating licenses, there is no specific limit in terms of number of licenses, which are awarded by the NEMMC following a tender procedure¹³⁹. The MPM 2023 indicates a low risk for the transparency of media ownership¹⁴⁰, registering an improvement compared to the previous report where the indicators of transparency of media ownership scored a medium risk.

The Public Electronic Mass Media Council (PEMMC) continues to operate as independent supervisory body for the oversight of public service media. As reported in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹⁴¹, the Law on Public Electronic Mass Media and their Management (PEMML)¹⁴² established the PEMMC with the aim of ensuring the independence and promoting quality of public service media. Specific safeguards to ensure the independence of the PEMMC are provided for in the PEMML¹⁴³. The PEMMC develops and approves the public service remit, including the annual public service plan, and prepares proposals for the draft annual State budget law in relation to the financial resources necessary for the fulfilment of the public service remit.

Well-established safeguards ensure the independence of public service media. The editorial independence of public service media¹⁴⁴ is guaranteed by the PEMML, which ensures fair and transparent appointment procedures for management and board functions of public service media¹⁴⁵. Public service media in Latvia are financed by annual allocations of the state budget. The Law stipulates that the annual subsidies to the public service media cannot be smaller than in the previous year¹⁴⁶. However, according to stakeholders, the funding of public service media by the state budget is restrictive and unstable, and a more adequate and predictable funding model should be adopted¹⁴⁷. A proposal by the PEMMC, aiming to change the financing model for public service media, together with the plan to merge Latvian Radio (LR) and Latvian Television (LTV) in 2024, is still under discussion¹⁴⁸. The MPM 2023 indicates the independence of public service media governance as an area of low risk¹⁴⁹.

Access to information and documents held by public authorities is safeguarded through legislation. The Law on the Press and Other Mass Media¹⁵⁰ establishes the right for the press to access information held by the state bodies and public organisations and prohibits censorship of the press and other mass media¹⁵¹. Public access to information is also guaranteed by the Freedom of Information Law¹⁵². The MPM 2023 reports a low risk for the protection of right to information¹⁵³.

While the professional environment for journalists continues to be largely safe, online threats against journalists remain an issue. The threats against journalists remain an issue, especially in the online environment where women journalists are particularly targeted¹⁵⁴. Since the publication of the 2022 Rule of Law Report, one new alert has been published for Latvia on the Council of Europe's Platform to promote the protection of journalism and safety of journalists¹⁵⁵. The alert concerns the decision of the NEMCC to revoke the broadcasting licence of the Russian independent television channel Dozhd, "due to a threat to national

IV. OTHER INSTITUTIONAL ISSUES RELATED TO CHECKS AND BALANCES

Latvia is a unicameral, parliamentary democracy, in which the Constitutional Court can carry out ex-post constitutional review of laws, including in concrete cases on the basis of a constitutional complaint. Draft laws may be submitted to the Parliament by the President, the Government, Parliamentary committees, at least five members of the Parliament, or one-tenth of the electorate. In addition to the justice system, also the Ombudsperson’s Office¹⁵⁸, acting as a national human rights institution, and civil society play a role in the system of checks and balances.

A new law aims to facilitate the participation of civil society in local decision-making. The 2022 Rule of Law report recommended to Latvia to “take measures to increase the participation of civil society in decision-making at local level”. As highlighted in the 2022 Rule of Law Report, the involvement of civil society in local government was assessed as weaker than at national level¹⁵⁹. The Law on Local Government¹⁶⁰, which entered into force on 1 January 2023, introduces several mechanisms to foster the active involvement of civil society at municipal level¹⁶¹. A new participatory budget, whose implementation will be mandatory from 2025 onwards, will enable residents to determine themselves how part of the local government budget is spent on development issues¹⁶². The law also provides for the organisation of advisory resident councils in municipalities, which would be elected at general meetings of residents and maintain a dialogue between the local population and the municipal council. The law also envisages other forms of public participation, such as the possibility, for residents of the municipality, to submit a collective submission to the city council, or the organisation of municipal referenda. More generally, Civic Alliance Latvia¹⁶³ considers that the legal framework for civic participation is favourable and public administration follow the rules both at local and national level, but notes that civil society also calls public authorities for non-formal consultative processes as well as more meaningful engagement and feedback¹⁶⁴. In view of all these participatory mechanisms, the 2022 recommendation has been fully implemented.

The state of emergency restricting access to the Latvian-Belarusian border, including for the media and civil society organisations, was maintained. The state of emergency at the border with Belarus was introduced in August 2021¹⁶⁵. The Cabinet of Ministers extended this several times for an extensive period, currently until 10 May 2023, taking into account the continuing risks of irregular migration and hybrid attacks by the Belarusian regime¹⁶⁶. The Order declaring the state of emergency gives the State Border Guard the right to apply, under certain conditions, physical force to prevent illegal border crossings¹⁶⁷, and access to the border area for the media has been significantly restricted¹⁶⁸. A report published on 30 June 2022 noted that media and civil society organisations (CSOs) face restrictions in accessing the border zone to provide humanitarian aid and report on the situation¹⁶⁹. Two draft laws are being discussed in Parliament, to clarify the powers of the State border Guard¹⁷⁰ and to empower the Government to introduce a temporary reinforced border guarding regime in certain situations, respectively¹⁷¹.

The legislator has not taken measures to fully implement a judgment of the Constitutional Court on legal, economic, and social protection for all families, as also required by the Supreme Court. In 2020, the Constitutional Court of Latvia ruled that the Latvian Constitution requires the legislator to ensure legal protection and measures of social and economic ¹⁶³ Civic Alliance Latvia's membership comprises 138 CSOs, representing a total of approximately 70 000 individuals citizens, or 70% of all persons involved in CSOs in Latvia.

¹⁶⁵ Order No. 518 of the Cabinet of Ministers of 10 August 2021, on the Declaration of an Emergency Situation, initially covered the Ludza, Krāslava and Augšdaugava municipalities as well as the city of Daugavpils.

¹⁶⁶ Ministry of the Interior, press release of 1 February 2023.

¹⁶⁷ The Order declaring the state of emergency stipulates that 'the State Border Guard, the National Armed Forces, and the State Police shall use the means and procedures at their disposal in order to prevent persons from the illegal crossing of the state border of the Republic of Latvia and the Republic of Belarus' and that, upon establishing that the person does not comply with the order to immediately stop the attempt to illegally cross the state border or to immediately return to the country from which the person crossed the border, those authorities have the right, 'in a state of extreme necessity, to apply physical force and special means in order to ensure the execution of this order'.

¹⁷¹ The draft amendments to the Law on the State Border Law of the Republic of Latvia would allow the Cabinet of Ministers to introduce such a regime in a specified area in case of disproportionately high number of irregular crossings or attempts to cross the state border.

protection and support to all families, including families of same-sex partners¹⁷², and gave the lawmaker a deadline until 1 July 2022 to comply with its judgment¹⁷³. Under Latvian law, judgments of the Constitutional Court are binding on all State authorities¹⁷⁴. While the law still does not recognise the possibility to register same-sex unions despite the deadline given by the Constitutional Court¹⁷⁵, administrative courts gave a series of decisions recognising the legal existence of same-sex relationships upon individual requests. In particular, in a judgment of 10 December 2021, the Supreme Court considered that, insofar as it does not allow registration of family relations of a same-sex couple, Latvian legislation does not comply with the Latvian Constitution as interpreted by the Constitutional Court, and that couples should be able to have their relationship recognised by a court until legislation provides for the possibility to record it in a civil register¹⁷⁶. This solution remains however more burdensome for the families involved, as it presupposes filing an application before an administrative court and a lengthy procedure, instead of applying for a civil registration.

On 1 January 2023, Latvia had eight leading judgments of the European Court of Human Rights pending implementation, an increase of one compared to the previous year¹⁷⁷. At that time, Latvia's rate of leading judgments from the past 10 years that remained pending was only at 16% (compared to 12% in 2022) and judgments had been pending implementation for 1 year and 3 months (compared to 1 year and 5 months on average in 2022)¹⁷⁸. On 15 June 2023, the number of leading judgments pending implementation remains eight¹⁷⁹.

¹⁷² Judgment of 12 November 2020 in case no. 2019-33-01. The Constitutional Court underscored that, although the legislator has discretion in determining the form of the legal, social and economic protection of all families, this discretion does not extend to deciding whether such protection should be afforded to families. It added that, in establishing the legal regulation and measures for protection and support, the legislator must take into account general principles of law and other provision of the Latvian Constitution, international and the European Union law.

¹⁷⁴ Art. 32(2) of the Law of 5 June 1996 on the Constitutional Court provides that “the Constitutional Court judgement and the interpretation of the relevant legal norm provided therein shall be obligatory for all State and local government authorities (also courts) and officials, as well as natural and legal persons”.

¹⁷⁸ All figures are calculated by the European Implementation Network and are based on the number of cases that are considered pending at the annual cut-off date of 1 January 2023. See the Contribution from the European Implementation Network for the 2023 Rule of Law Report, p. 1.

¹⁷⁹ Data according to the online database of the Council of Europe (HUDOC-EXEC).

The Ombudsperson’s Office continues to operate effectively, while the rate of implementation of its recommendations decreased. The Ombudsperson’s Office, accredited with ‘A’ status by the UN Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI), continues processing a large number of complaints and issuing opinions and recommendations to public authorities¹⁸⁰. In 2023, it requested additional financial resources, particularly to ensure competitive remunerations for its staff and secure human resources to conduct research activities¹⁸¹. The number of complaints made by citizens regarding alleged violations of the right to a fair trial decreased significantly between 2021 and 2022, and the Ombudsperson made a number of proposals to ministries and the legislator to safeguard this right¹⁸². However, the rate of implementation by public authorities of recommendations issued by the Ombudsperson has steadily decreased since 2020¹⁸³.

State funding for civil society organisations increased, but limited access to adequate funding from different sources is perceived as the main challenge. The civic space in Latvia is still assessed as narrowed¹⁸⁴. The state funding available to CSOs through the NGO Fund increased from EUR 1.5 million in 2021 to almost EUR 1.9 million in 2022¹⁸⁵ and to EUR 2.3 million in 2023¹⁸⁶. CSOs can also apply for co-financing for projects, financed by foreign funds, aimed at the development of a cohesive and civically active society, as well as funds for regional projects or programmes promoting the civic participation of minorities¹⁸⁷. According to data, while the estimated number of associations and foundations working in the field of civil society is stable¹⁸⁸, the financial activity of CSOs is decreasing, which indicates weaknesses in their financial sustainability. The vast majority of CSOs in Latvia consider the availability and adequacy of financial resources as one of the most significant constraints to their activities¹⁸⁹. This financial precariousness is exacerbated by an insufficient diversification of funding sources, as annual accounts show that most CSOs rely on a single main source of revenue¹⁹⁰, and other factors perceived by CSOs as constraints in their financial environment, such as the tax burden¹⁹¹. In January 2023, organisations representative of civil society had sent a letter¹⁹² to the Cabinet of Ministers calling for the inclusion of sustainable funding for civil society activities in the national budget for 2023. CSOs criticised the fact that the 2023 budget did not include the proposed measures and was planned without consulting civil society, as no centralised mechanism exists to enable CSOs to present their proposals in the process¹⁹³.

¹⁹¹ Surveys show that 38% of CSOs consider tax rates are a major obstacle, one out of three has issues with the legal framework for donations and one in four with tax laws and regulations. Civic Alliance Latvia, Resources of civil society organisations: current situation and needs 2022, p. 13.
