EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1. CONTEXT OF THE PROPOSAL

• Reasons for and objectives of the proposal

This proposal for a new Eurojust Regulation responds to the evolving challenges posed by serious and organised cross-border crime in the European Union. Eurojust was set up under Council Decision 2002/187/JHA¹ as an intergovernmental body and was later transformed into an EU agency under Regulation (EU) 2018/1727². Ever since, Eurojust has facilitated coordination and cooperation between national investigative and prosecutorial authorities. It has significantly contributed to building mutual trust and bridging the EU's wide variety of legal systems and traditions. By rapidly solving legal problems, and identifying competent authorities in other countries, Eurojust has facilitated the execution of requests for cooperation and mutual recognition. Article 85 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU (TFEU) explicitly provides that Eurojust's mission is to support and strengthen coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities in relation to serious crime affecting two or more Member States or requiring a prosecution on common bases. It is therefore important to ensure that Eurojust is used in the best possible way and to remove any obstacles that prevent it from functioning efficiently.

The 2025 evaluation of Eurojust³, published on 2 July 2025, identified significant structural and operational constraints that impede its ability to fully realise its potential. According to the evaluation, these constraints include inefficiencies in internal governance, inconsistencies in the application of the Regulation across Member States, and limitations on cooperation with EU partners and third countries.

The primary objective of this proposal is to address the shortcomings identified by the 2025 evaluation and to modernise the Agency's legal framework in line with the Lisbon Treaty and the Common Approach on EU decentralised agencies⁴. This revision aims to improve Eurojust's internal functioning, governance, and operational performance, while strengthening its cooperation with EU partners and third countries, including EU candidate countries and potential candidates. In addition, the proposal seeks to expand Eurojust's mandate to cover emerging crime areas such as cybercrime, gender-based violence, and violations of EU restrictive measures, including where they present a hybrid dimension, and to reinforce its analytical and proactive capabilities.

The ProtectEU Strategy Internal Security Strategy, Protect EU Agenda to prevent and counter terrorism and the EU Roadmap to Fight Drug Trafficking and Organised Crime highlight Eurojust's critical role in cross-border criminal justice cooperation, and acknowledge the need to further strengthen its operational role in combating organised crime, terrorism and evolving cross-border threats.

The initiative is set out in the 2026 Commission Work Programme⁵, which prioritises the revision of Eurojust's legal framework to uphold EU values and protect democracy, together and in complementarity with the revisions of the Europol Regulation, the European Investigation Order (EIO) Directive and the European Union Data Protection Regulation (EUDPR).

The proposal also seeks to address the recommendations of the High-Level Forum on the Future of EU Criminal Justice⁶, which underscored the need for a more cohesive criminal justice architecture, and for Eurojust to act as a central hub for judicial cooperation in relation to EU justice and security more widely.

This proposal takes all these elements into consideration and provides a single and renewed legal framework for Eurojust. While maintaining the management and operation elements that have proven efficient, it modernises Eurojust's legal framework and streamlines its functioning and structure in line with the requirements of the Common Approach on decentralised agencies.

- Consistency with existing policy provisions in the policy area

The present package of criminal justice initiatives pursues a coherent and complementary objective: strengthening the Union's capacity to prevent, detect, investigate and prosecute serious cross-border crime in an increasingly complex security environment. By modernising the legal frameworks governing cooperation between law enforcement, judicial and other relevant authorities, the package seeks to reinforce the effectiveness, coherence and interoperability of the Union's internal security architecture.

The proposed revisions of the Europol and Eurojust Regulations constitute the core of this effort. Europol and Eurojust perform distinct yet complementary functions within the Area of Freedom, Security and Justice: while Europol supports the prevention, detection and investigation of criminal activities, Eurojust facilitates judicial cooperation and ensures effective prosecutorial and judicial follow-up. The package therefore aims to strengthen cooperation and complementarity between the two agencies, as well as with other relevant Union actors in the Justice and Home Affairs and Anti-Fraud Architecture areas, with a view to ensuring a seamless continuum between law enforcement action and judicial follow-up across all stages of the criminal justice chain.

In this context, the amendments to the European Investigation Order framework and to the data protection rules applicable in the Justice and Home Affairs domain, further contribute to this objective by facilitating effective cross-border cooperation, improving the conditions for information exchange and ensuring a coherent legal framework adapted to operational realities and technological developments. Taken together, the measures proposed in this package will enhance the Union's ability to respond to evolving security threats while fully respecting fundamental rights, the rule of law and the division of responsibilities between the different actors involved.

Furthermore, the proposal for the revision of the Eurojust Regulation is fully consistent with other the existing policy provisions in the area of judicial cooperation in criminal matters. It aligns with Article 85 TFEU, which provides Eurojust with the mandate to support cross-border judicial cooperation, and complements recent legislative developments such as the e-evidence framework (Regulation (EU) 2023/1543) and the Anti-Money Laundering Package (Regulation (EU) 2023/1113 and Regulation 2024/1620). The proposal also supports implementation of the interoperability of EU information systems (Regulation (EU)

⁶ Report of the High-Level Forum on the Future of EU Criminal Justice, February-December 2025.

2019/818), which necessitates closer cooperation between Eurojust, Europol and other Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) agencies.

Previous changes to the Eurojust Regulation made targeted, thematic amendments: Regulation (EU) 2022/838 created the Core International Crimes Evidence Database (CICED) following Russia's full-scale war of aggression against Ukraine; Regulation (EU) 2023/2131 strengthened information-sharing in terrorism cases; and Regulation (EU) 2025/2082 extended the timeframe for the establishment of the new Eurojust case management system (CMS).

The proposal improves the way in which existing judicial cooperation instruments work. For example, it improves Eurojust's capacity to facilitate the application of, and to resolve conflicts of jurisdiction in relation to EIO, the European Arrest Warrant (EAW) and the mutual recognition of freezing and confiscation orders. By addressing the structural and operational constraints identified in the 2025 evaluation, this proposal ensures that Eurojust can more effectively support Member States in combating serious and organised crime.

- Consistency with other Union policies

The proposal aligns with several broader Union policies, reinforcing coherence across the EU's judicial and law enforcement framework. In the realm of digitalisation, the proposed revision of the Europol Regulation improves Eurojust's CMS and outlines parallel developments in Europol's operational infrastructure, while ensuring seamless interoperability between the two. The developments include the modernisation of cross-checking services, analytical environments and secure infrastructure, which will ensure more efficient information exchange and coordination between Eurojust, Europol and national authorities. Moreover, the proposal strengthens Eurojust's capacity to use digital tools, including the Core International Crimes Evidence Database (CICED) and an automated hit/no-hit system for faster data exchange with Europol, the EPPO and OLAF, together with its role in ECRIS-TCN, thereby facilitating access to third-country criminal records. These measures align with the EU's digital justice priorities of improving efficiency and cooperation in cross-border investigations. Finally, Eurojust will be better equipped to handle electronic evidence, cross-border data requests and digital forensic analysis, thereby improving its capacity to support Member States in investigating cybercrime, terrorism and organised crime, reflecting the priorities set out in the e-evidence framework⁷.

The proposal reinforces compliance with the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, particularly in the area of data protection. The revision ensures that Eurojust's expanded mandate and operational capabilities are exercised in full respect of individual rights, including the right to privacy and the right to a fair trial. This is achieved by including strict legal bases for data exchange, aligned with the EUDPR⁸, which governs the processing of personal data by EU institutions, bodies, offices and agencies, including Eurojust. Oversight by the European Data Protection Supervisor (EDPS) ensures that Eurojust adheres to the highest standards of transparency and accountability in its data processing activities. Improved procedural safeguards for cross-border evidence gathering reflect the principles of mutual recognition and judicial cooperation embedded in the European Investigation Order (EIO) Directive⁹, which was also revised in parallel to this proposal.

⁷ Regulation (EU) 2023/1543 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 July 2023 on European Production Orders and European Preservation Orders for electronic evidence in criminal proceedings and for the execution of custodial sentences following criminal proceedings (OJ L 191, 28.7.2023, pp. 118–180, ELI: <http://data.europa.eu/eli/reg/2023/1543/oj>).

⁸ In its revised form, amending Regulation (EU) 2018/1725.

The proposal aligns with the strategic priorities identified in the Anti-Fraud Architecture (AFA) Review, particularly the White Paper for the EU's Anti-Fraud Architecture review¹⁰ which emphasises the need for complementary mandates, seamless information flow and operational synergies between Eurojust, OLAF, the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO), Europol and national authorities. By reinforcing Eurojust's role as a judicial coordination hub, the proposal ensures that its activities are fully integrated into the broader EU anti-fraud ecosystem, supporting the investigation and prosecution of PIF (Protection of the Union's Financial Interests) offences and other forms of serious cross-border crime.

The proposal strengthens Eurojust's cooperation with third countries, including candidate countries and potential candidates, and international organisations, in coherence with the EU Global Strategy and the Action Plan against Drug Trafficking, both of which emphasise the importance of international cooperation in combating transnational crime. The revision of the Eurojust Regulation ensures that Eurojust's external engagements are consistent with the Union's external policies, including those governing data transfers to third countries under the EUDPR and the Law Enforcement Directive¹¹.

2. LEGAL BASIS, SUBSIDIARITY AND PROPORTIONALITY

• Legal basis

Article 85 TFEU is the legal basis for the proposal and provides that Eurojust's structure, operation, field of action and tasks are to be determined by regulations adopted in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure. It also requires that those regulations determine arrangements for involving the European Parliament and national parliaments in the evaluation of Eurojust's activities and thus contribute to an EU-level democratic oversight of its activities.

• Subsidiarity (for non-exclusive competence)

Eurojust's functions (coordination, cooperation facilitation and operational support) are transnational by nature and cannot be performed effectively solely at Member State-level. The Agency provides a neutral, EU-level perspective across jurisdictions, facilitates multilateral cooperation in parallel, and ensures that no Member State is placed at a disadvantage. The scale and complexity of cross-border investigations render EU-level coordination indispensable for national prosecutorial and judicial authorities, thus necessitating EU-level action and adhering to the subsidiarity principle. Eurojust offers operational, legal and strategic value that improves the functioning of national systems and the coherence of the EU's Area of Freedom, Security and Justice. Action by Eurojust does not replace action by national authorities, but rather enhances it through support services. There are clear economies of scale and efficiency gains to be made by further improving Eurojust, which will enable it to bring together expertise from national practitioners in one agency, coordinate quickly and more efficiently in the fight against transnational crime, and avoid duplication and conflicting investigations.

- Proportionality

In conformity with the principle of proportionality, this proposal does not go beyond what is necessary to achieve its objectives. It is targeted, as it focuses on structural and operational improvements without overstepping Eurojust's supportive and coordinative role.

The preferred package of measures addresses the problems identified in the most comprehensive and cost-effective manner. The multi-criteria analysis carried out in an accompanying impact assessment, which took into account the effectiveness, efficiency, coherence and proportionality of all policy options, showed that all measures identified had a net positive benefit and that the preferred measures ranked the highest (see chapter 7 of the impact assessment and Annex 4 on analytical methods). The estimated costs of this proposal are proportionate to the objectives and, overall, Eurojust is expected to benefit greatly, in particular due to its revised governance model, as set out in the impact assessment (see chapter 8). For example, the introduction of a Management Board for strategic oversight and an Executive Board for administrative decisions streamlines governance without compromising the operational independence of National Members. Similarly, the expansion of Eurojust's mandate to better counter emerging forms of crime such as cybercrime, violation of Union's restrictive measures, and gender-based violence is necessary to keep pace with the evolving nature of cross-border crime, however, this is carefully balanced to avoid overlapping with the competences of other EU agencies and Member States.

- Choice of the instrument

The present proposal takes the form of a Regulation, which is stipulated by Article 85 TFEU as the legal instrument to be used to determine Eurojust's structure, operation, field of action and tasks.

3. RESULTS OF EX-POST EVALUATIONS, STAKEHOLDER CONSULTATIONS AND IMPACT ASSESSMENTS

- Ex-post evaluations/fitness checks of existing legislation

The 2025 evaluation of Eurojust identified two core problems necessitating legislative intervention. The first problem concerns the suboptimal efficiency of Eurojust's internal organisation and processes. This problem is characterised by a lack of case prioritisation, with the majority of Eurojust's caseload consisting of bilateral and lower-complexity cases, which divert resources from high-added value multilateral investigations. Governance inefficiencies were also highlighted, with National Members spending 40 to 50% of their time on administrative tasks, reducing their ability to focus on operational work. Additionally, the powers of National Members vary significantly across Member States, leading to uneven support and operational fragmentation.

The second problem relates to limitations in Eurojust's interaction with partners, including suboptimal cooperation with Europol and the EPPO, as well as challenges in third-country cooperation. The evaluation found the hit/no-hit system for data exchange with Europol and the EPPO to be cumbersome and manual, delaying operational follow-up. Furthermore, the process of negotiating international agreements with third countries is time-consuming, and Liaison Magistrates and Prosecutors are underutilised. The evaluation concluded that without EU intervention, these problems would persist due to legal, structural and cultural barriers, underscoring the need for a comprehensive revision of the Eurojust Regulation.

- Stakeholder consultations

In order to prepare this Regulation, the Commission consulted specialist stakeholders on a number of occasions. These consultations included a Public Consultation launched in all 24 official EU languages, a Call for Evidence and an online survey. Moreover, interviews with a wide range of stakeholders including Eurojust staff, National Members, national authorities, practitioners and representatives from third countries and international organisations were carried out by an external contractor.

The Public Consultation, which ran for twelve weeks from 3 December 2025 to 24 February 2026, received 20 responses, with the majority of respondents emphasising the importance of Eurojust's role in addressing serious and organised cross-border crime. Stakeholders also highlighted the need to better consider the perspectives of victims and witnesses and to clarify case allocation between Eurojust and the European Judicial Network (EJN). The Call for Evidence, available on the 'Have Your Say' website, received 42 responses from stakeholders across 21 EU Member States. The feedback emphasised the complementary roles of Eurojust and the EJN, the need to strengthen Eurojust's mandate with more operational roles, and the importance of improving governance and decision-making processes. Stakeholders also stressed the need for Eurojust to prioritise cooperation with third countries and invest in technological tools to respond to the evolving nature of crime. The online survey, which was open until 4 March 2026, targeted practitioners, Eurojust administration representatives and National Members, and public officials from both EU and non-EU countries. The survey results indicated broad support for governance reform, including the introduction of a Management Board to alleviate the College from administrative burden, and clarify the division of tasks. Stakeholders also agreed on the need to harmonise the status and powers of National Members and to strengthen cooperation with relevant EU agencies and bodies, such as Europol and the EPPO. Concerns were raised about the varying levels of engagement with Eurojust among third countries, with some respondents suggesting that conditionality clauses be introduced to enhance cooperation, particularly in EU candidate countries and potential candidates. In addition to open public consultations, interviews were conducted with 115 stakeholders, including Eurojust administration representatives, National Members, Liaison Prosecutors, EU agencies, national authorities and international organisations. These interviews provided deeper insights into the operational challenges faced by Eurojust, including outdated tools, limited cooperation with the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) and the need for clearer competences in areas such as e-evidence. Although stakeholders from third countries and international organisations recognised Eurojust's work as valuable, they also highlighted opportunities to improve cooperation through measures such as establishing resident contact points and appointing Liaison Magistrates.

The input received from stakeholders has been carefully considered in developing this proposal.

- Collection and use of expertise

A combination of internal and external expertise was used to develop this proposal. Eurojust's internal evaluations, including the 2025 evaluation and the Action Plan for 2026-2027, provided critical insights into the Agency's operational and governance challenges. External expertise was sourced from a support study, which analysed the operational and governance constraints facing Eurojust and proposed policy options to address them. The Commission also drew on the recommendations of the High-Level Forum on the Future of EU Criminal Justice, which emphasised the need for a more cohesive criminal justice architecture with Eurojust as a central hub. This expertise was used to inform the policy choices in the proposal, ensuring they are evidence-based.

- Impact assessment

This proposal is supported by an impact assessment that evaluated various approaches to addressing Eurojust's operational and structural challenges. The selected measures represent the most effective solution, focusing on expanding Eurojust's mandate to include emerging crime areas, standardising National Members' status and powers and improving governance efficiency. These changes are expected to enhance cross-border judicial cooperation, reduce administrative burden and strengthen collaboration with Europol, the EPPO and other partners. The estimated costs are justified by significant operational benefits, including faster case processing and improved resource allocation.

The assessment compared various policy options against a baseline scenario whereby Eurojust would continue operating under its current mandate without structural reform. The most comprehensive solution emerged as the preferred option: it combines legislative changes, governance reforms and operational improvements to transform Eurojust into a more proactive and effective judicial cooperation hub in relation to EU justice and security more widely.

The selected measures focus on three key areas of improvement. First, the revision expands Eurojust's mandate to reinforce Eurojust's response in emerging crime areas such as cybercrime, violations of EU restrictive measures, and gender-based violence, while establishing semi-permanent operational platforms to support strengthened coordination among national authorities, including via joint investigation teams. This expansion enables Eurojust to better address the evolving nature of cross-border criminal activities, particularly those with digital components or a geopolitical dimension. Second, the reform clarifies certain definitions and harmonises the status and powers of National Members across Member States, so as to ensure even operational capabilities, including the authority to issue freezing orders and e-evidence orders. Standardising powers and capabilities in this way addresses current inconsistencies in how different Member States implement Eurojust's mandate and ensures more uniform support for national authorities. Third, the revision will align the governance structure to the Common Approach applicable to all EU decentralised agencies by establishing a Management Board, which assumes administrative and management responsibilities and allows the College of National Members to focus exclusively on operational matters. This separation of functions is expected to significantly reduce the administrative burden on National Members, currently estimated at 40% of their workload.

The impact assessment demonstrates that these measures will collectively improve Eurojust's ability to detect, coordinate and prosecute complex, transnational criminal activities. By strengthening operational cooperation with Europol through automated data exchange systems and establishing clearer cooperation frameworks with the European Public Prosecutor's Office, the reform creates a more integrated EU criminal justice ecosystem. As regards external relations, the revision clarifies the legal framework for Liaison Magistrates and institutionalises resident contact points from priority third countries, creating more stable channels for international judicial cooperation. The assessment concludes that, while these comprehensive changes require a commensurate increase in resources for Eurojust, they will generate substantial operational benefits, including faster case processing, improved resource allocation, and an enhanced ability to combat emerging criminal threats.

The impact assessment received a positive opinion from the Regulatory Scrutiny Board (RSB) on 4 May 2026 and was updated to reflect the remarks of the RSB.

- Regulatory fitness and simplification

The proposal complies with the principles of the Regulatory Fitness and Performance Programme (REFIT) by streamlining Eurojust's governance, clarifying case allocation and automating data exchange. The introduction of a Management Board reduces the administrative burden on the College, allowing National Members to focus more on operational tasks. By clarifying the boundaries of Eurojust's competences, in particular in relation to the European Judicial Network (EJN), the proposal aims to minimise duplication of effort, ensuring that Eurojust's resources are directed toward complex, high-value investigations. The automation of the hit/no-hit system for data exchange with Europol and the EPPO reduces manual intervention, improving efficiency and operational responsiveness.

- Fundamental rights

The consequences of the proposal for the protection of fundamental rights have been carefully considered. The proposal's design ensures compliance with the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, particularly in areas where Eurojust's expanded mandate intersects with criminal procedural safeguards and data protection. The revision of the Eurojust Regulation includes strict legal bases for data exchange, ensuring that any processing of personal data is necessary, proportionate, and subject to oversight by the European Data Protection Supervisor (EDPS). Purpose limitation safeguards prevent the reuse of data for unintended objectives, and transparency is embedded in operational procedures to provide clear avenues for individuals to challenge data processing or operational decisions that affect their rights.

Procedural safeguards have also been reinforced to ensure that Eurojust's role remains supportive and coordinative, without interfering with national judicial independence. The proposal includes mechanisms for transparency and legal remedies, allowing individuals to challenge decisions that may impact their rights. This ensures that the expansion of Eurojust's operational role, particularly in areas such as e-evidence and asset recovery, does not compromise the fundamental rights of individuals involved in cross-border criminal proceedings.

4. BUDGETARY IMPLICATIONS

The revision of the Eurojust Regulation will require an increase of the EU contribution to the agency of approximately EUR 119 million over the 2028-2034 period (EUR 83 million of which on top of the financial programming, and EUR 36 million coming from contribution agreements which will be incorporated into the Agency's regular budget). The total EU contribution to Eurojust over the next MFF will total EUR 625 million, as detailed in the Legislative Financial and Digital Statement. This increase will support the Agency's expanded mandate, including proactive case handling, enhanced analytical capabilities, and stronger cooperation with EU and international partners.

The budget will primarily fund 87 additional staff (40 Temporary Agents, 20 Contract Agents, 27 Seconded National Experts) phased in gradually, and IT infrastructure upgrades, including the expansion of the Core International Crimes Evidence Database (CICED) and digital cooperation tools as the improved hit/no-hit system. Costs will be distributed progressively before stabilising in 2033. The proposal ensures financial sustainability, while aligning with EU priorities on security, digitalisation and judicial cooperation.

Besides its regular activities, Eurojust currently implements five projects financed through contribution agreements with Commission Directorate Generals. Since some of the tasks related to these projects are now firmly embedded in Eurojust's mandate, such agreements will be integrated into the Agency's regular budget. This will entail a corresponding increase in the EU contribution to Eurojust, offset by an equivalent reduction in the envelopes of the programmes currently financing those agreements, leaving the overall financial programming unchanged. Existing project funding will be integrated into Eurojust's regular budget from the entry into application of the new Regulation, ensuring continuity without additional costs. This will allow for the stabilisation of 16 staff members (11 Temporary Agents, 5 Contract Agents) to ensure continuity in the areas of e-evidence and core international crimes.

The reform will address factors identified in the evaluation as limiting the efficiency of Eurojust's functioning. In particular, the streamlined governance structure, based on a clearer separation between operational and administrative responsibilities, will enable National Members and National Desks to dedicate a greater share of their time and expertise to casework. In parallel, enhanced cooperation mechanisms, supported by modernised working methods and systems, will reduce duplication of efforts, improve coordination with partners and facilitate the handling of requests and information exchanges.

At the same time, the reform significantly expands Eurojust's tasks and responsibilities, enabling the Agency to provide enhanced support in addressing evolving forms of serious cross-border crime. While the proposed measures are expected to generate substantial efficiency gains and a more effective use of existing resources, these gains alone would not be sufficient to absorb the additional workload resulting from the new mandate. The resource needs presented above have therefore been estimated after taking into account the expected efficiency gains generated by the reform.

5. OTHER ELEMENTS

• Implementation plans and monitoring, evaluation and reporting arrangements

Implementation of the revised Eurojust Regulation will be supported by a robust monitoring, evaluation and reporting framework. Key performance indicators (KPIs) have been established to track progress toward the proposal's objectives, which include reducing National Members' administrative workloads, increasing own-initiative cases (that Eurojust opens proactively where it identifies a need for coordination or judicial involvement) and increasing follow-ups to data exchange hits. The data supplied for these KPIs will be sourced from Eurojust's CMS, the Consolidated Annual Activity Report (CAAR), and reports from the European Data Protection Supervisor (EDPS) on data protection compliance.

An interim review will be conducted after four years to assess the initial impact of the Regulation, followed by a full evaluation after five years. This evaluation will examine the operational effectiveness of the new measures, the quality of cooperation with EU partners and third countries and compliance with fundamental rights. The results of the evaluation will be made public and shared with the European Parliament, the Council and national parliaments to ensure transparency and accountability. Eurojust will transmit its consolidated annual report to the European Parliament, the Council and national parliaments, which may present observations and conclusions. These reporting arrangements ensure ongoing oversight and enable stakeholders to provide feedback on the implementation of the Regulation.

- Detailed explanation of the specific provisions of the proposal

The proposed Regulation consists of nine chapters comprising 87 articles.

Chapter I – General provisions, objectives and tasks

This chapter sets out the foundational framework of Eurojust. It confirms Eurojust's legal status as a Union agency with legal personality and provides that its seat is in The Hague. It sets out Eurojust's overall objectives of supporting and strengthening coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities in relation to serious cross-border crime. It lays down a full list of the tasks to be performed by Eurojust to fulfil those objectives, including assisting national and international authorities in coordinating investigations, cross-checking information to identify links between cross-border cases, collecting and preserving evidence of core international crimes, supporting asset recovery, and cooperating with Union agencies and bodies such as Europol and the EPPO. It also defines Eurojust's competence, covering the serious crimes listed in Annex I and related offences, and sets out the geographic and situational conditions in which Eurojust may act, including in relation to the EPPO and third countries.

Chapter II – Organisation of Eurojust

This chapter defines the governance structure of Eurojust and is divided into four sections, distinguishing between the management structure and the operational structure.

Section I sets out Eurojust's dual structure: the management structure comprises the Management Board, the Executive Board and the Administrative Director, while the operational structure comprises the National Members and the College.

Section II contains the provisions governing the Management Board, which takes key management decisions and provides strategic orientation for Eurojust's activities. It is composed of one representative per Member State and one representative of the Commission, and is responsible for adopting the single programming document, the annual budget, the staff and security rules and other non-operational decisions. Chapter II lays down the rules, stemming from the Common approach on decentralised agencies, on composition, election of the Chairperson, frequency and conduct of meetings, functions and voting arrangements, including the specific two-thirds majority required for key decisions such as the appointment of the Administrative Director and the adoption of the budget. It also establishes the annual and multi-annual programming process, requiring the Management Board to adopt a single programming document by 30 November each year.

Section III establishes the Executive Board, which is chaired by the President of Eurojust and assists the Management Board by preparing its decisions, reviewing draft budgets and work programmes, ensuring follow-up to audit findings and adopting a defined set of administrative decisions.

Section IV contains the provisions governing the Administrative Director, who manages the Agency independently and is accountable to the Management Board. The Administrative Director is appointed by the Management Board for a five-year term on the basis of merit and is responsible for day-to-day administration, budget implementation, anti-fraud measures and staff management.

Section V covers the National Members and their National Desks. Each Member State seconds one National Member to Eurojust's seat in The Hague, supported by at least one Deputy and one Assistant. National Members must hold high-level prosecutorial or judicial qualifications and be endowed with certain judicial powers. Notably, Article 19 lists the powers of the National Members, distinguishing between powers that can be exercised without prior authorisation, and those requiring the agreement of the competent national authority. Under the first category, National Members may directly contact and exchange operational information and evidence with competent national and third-country authorities and relevant Union bodies, open and manage cases in the CMS, organise coordination meetings and coordination centres, participate in and facilitate joint investigation teams, including by signing JIT agreements, participate in joint operational platforms and judicial coordination platforms, ask competent national authorities to undertake investigations or prosecutions, and assist in the identification and resolution of conflicts of jurisdiction. Under the second one, with the agreement of the competent national authority, or without in urgent cases, National Members may issue or execute requests for judicial cooperation or mutual recognition instruments, including issuing the underlying order in accordance with national law. Section V also introduces a compensation mechanism for the Member State whose National Member is President of Eurojust, to cover the costs of reinforcing the National Desk during the presidential mandate.

Section VI governs the College, composed of all National Members, which is responsible for the operational functions of Eurojust and acts with full independence. The College deals with casework, taking the appropriate operational decisions in relation to cases referred by Member States or, where appropriate, opening cases on its own initiative. It elects the President and Vice-President from among the National Members by a two-thirds majority for four-year terms.

Chapter III – Operational matters

This chapter is the core operational chapter of the Regulation. It is divided into four sections that cover the different modes and forms of Eurojust's operational activities.

Section I addresses Eurojust's primary operational function of facilitating judicial cooperation and coordination. It sets out the way in which Eurojust supports cross-border investigations and prosecutions, including organising coordination meetings and coordination centres, facilitating judicial cooperation instruments, assisting in the resolution of conflicts of jurisdiction and cross-checking information in relevant databases. It details the operational, technical, analytical, legal and financial support Eurojust provides to joint investigation teams, including assistance in drafting JIT agreements and managing Eurojust's financial contribution to JIT activities. It also establishes judicial coordination platforms, which Eurojust may set up at the request of two or more Member States or on its own initiative to support particularly complex cross-border investigations, providing operational, technical, analytical, legal and financial support to the platforms and their participants.

Section II governs operational activities carried out by Eurojust on its own initiative, in the absence of a request from national authorities or the EPPO. It sets out the conditions and procedures under which National Members may ask competent national authorities to undertake or extend investigations, set up joint investigation teams, prioritise judicial cooperation requests or take other justified measures. It also addresses Eurojust's capacity to preserve, analyse and store evidence related to core international crimes, making it available to Member States, third countries and international criminal courts and tribunals to facilitate case-building. Section II further provides for the retention of operational knowledge derived from Eurojust's casework, the development of guidelines and best practices, and the establishment of Eurojust Centres of Expertise in criminal matters (ECE) to provide strategic, analytical and operational support in priority crime areas.

Section III covers additional forms of operational support provided by Eurojust, including its role as a contact point for third countries and international organisations under Regulation

(EU) 2019/816 on ECRIS-TCN, its support for victims of crime in cross-border criminal proceedings, and its involvement, together with Europol and within their respective mandate, in the EMPACT cycles, contributing to the preparation of strategic analyses and the operational implementation of Union priorities for combating serious crime.

Section IV establishes the framework for the exchange of information between Eurojust and national authorities. It requires each Member State to set up a Eurojust national coordination system to ensure effective coordination between the National Desk and national authorities, to include the contact points of relevant European networks and the national correspondent for terrorism matters. It lays down the general obligation incumbent on competent national authorities to exchange all information necessary for Eurojust's tasks, which includes specific notification requirements for cases involving at least three Member States and for all terrorism cases referred to judicial authorities.

This section also regulates the flow of operational information between Eurojust staff and the Member States through the National Members, provides for secure digital communication through a decentralised IT system based on e-CODEX, and establishes the CMS as the central tool for processing operational personal data, managing cases, cross-checking information and preserving evidence. Finally, it sets out the rules on access to the CMS at national level and on the management of information by National Members and authorised staff.

Chapter IV – Processing of information

This chapter sets out the data protection framework governing the processing of personal data by Eurojust. It establishes that both this Regulation and Regulation (EU) 2018/1725 apply to Eurojust's data processing activities, with the operational data protection rules in this Regulation taking precedence (as lex specialis) over the general rules of Regulation (EU) 2018/1725. This approach ensures legal clarity while preserving the general data protection framework applicable to Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies.

Chapter IV defines the categories of operational personal data that Eurojust may process. This includes data on suspects, convicted persons, victims and other parties to proceedings, together with, in exceptional and time-limited circumstances, additional data immediately relevant to ongoing coordinated investigations. It lays down strict time limits for the storage of operational personal data after the termination of a proceedings, and imposes requirements in relation to automated review mechanisms to ensure compliance.

This chapter also sets out the rights of data subjects in relation to operational personal data, including the right of access and the limitations on that right, the right to restriction of processing, and the conditions under which access may be refused where it would jeopardise an ongoing investigation or the safety of an individual. Under chapter 4, access to operational personal data within Eurojust is restricted to National Members, authorised seconded national experts, designated national system users and authorised Eurojust staff. It provides for the designation of a Data Protection Officer by the Executive Board and establishes the rules on notification in the event of a personal data breach. It concludes by allocating responsibility for data accuracy and legal compliance either to Eurojust or to the Member States, depending on the origin and subsequent handling of the data.

Chapter V – Relations with partners

This chapter governs Eurojust's external relations. It comprises three sections that cover relations with Union bodies and agencies and international cooperation.

Section I sets out the common provisions applicable to all of Eurojust's cooperative relations. It provides that Eurojust may conclude working arrangements with Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies, and with third-country authorities and organs of international organisations, subject to prior consultation with the Commission. Such arrangements may not constitute legal basis for the exchange of personal data and do not create legal obligations incumbent on the Union or Member States. Section I also regulates the common hit/no-hit system enabling designated Union agencies and bodies — in particular Europol, the EPPO, OLAF, AMLA and the EUCA — to obtain indirect access to Eurojust's CMS through an automated index, with the Commission empowered to adopt implementing acts specifying the technical and functional specifications of the hit/no-hit system.

Section II governs Eurojust's relations with specific Union bodies, offices and agencies. It establishes a privileged relationship with the European Judicial Network, which involves hosting the Network's Secretariat within Eurojust's staff and handling coordination through the national coordination system. It requires Eurojust to support a range of other networks and bodies active in judicial cooperation, including the JITs Network, the European Judicial Cybercrime Network and the European Judicial Organised Crime Network. It governs Eurojust's cooperation with Europol, which provides for a working arrangement setting out practical cooperation modalities, mutual access to selected information stored in the respective databases through the hit/no-hit system, and the possibility of establishing joint operational platforms. It establishes the framework for cooperation with the EPPO, based on mutual cooperation within their respective mandates, including an obligation to report any criminal conduct falling within the EPPO's competence without undue delay, and the secondment of an EPPO liaison officer to Eurojust. It also sets out Eurojust's cooperative relations with OLAF, the European Border and Coast Guard Agency, the Authority for Anti-Money Laundering and Countering the Financing of Terrorism (AMLA) and the EU Customs Authority.

The proposal refers to the current legal framework governing the relationship between Eurojust and the EPPO, reflecting the fact that the EPPO was established by means of enhanced cooperation. This is without affecting any future developments that may arise from changes in the participation of Member States in the EPPO, including in the context of the envisaged accession of Hungary.

Section III governs international cooperation between Eurojust and third-country authorities and international organisations. It provides for the adoption of a four-year cooperation strategy and the posting of Eurojust liaison magistrates to third countries to facilitate judicial cooperation. It establishes the conditions for the secondment of liaison prosecutors from third countries and international organisations to Eurojust on the basis of international agreements, including their access to the case management system. It allows for the hosting of contact points from third countries at Eurojust to expedite judicial cooperation and the designation of contact points in third countries and international organisations, where this is provided for in a working arrangement between Eurojust and the third country authorities or organs of international organization concerned, specifying that such contact points are not to have direct access to the case management system or to operational personal data.

Chapter VI – Establishment and structure of the budget

This chapter describes the annual budgetary process, requiring the Administrative Director to draw up a draft statement of estimates, which is reviewed by the Executive Board and approved by the Management Board before being forwarded to the Commission by 31 January each year. The budget becomes definitive following final adoption of the general budget of the Union by the budgetary authorities.

Provisions are set out relating to the structure, implementation and control of Eurojust's budget. It specifies that the budget must be balanced in terms of revenue and expenditure, with revenue sources including the Union contribution, voluntary Member State contributions, third-country contributions and charges for publications and services. The Administrative Director acts as authorising officer and is responsible for implementing the budget in accordance with the principles of economy, efficiency and effectiveness. The chapter lays down detailed deadlines and procedures for the presentation of provisional and final accounts, the submission of reports to the Court of Auditors, the Commission, the European Parliament and the Council, and the grant of discharge by the European Parliament. It provides for the adoption of financial rules by the Management Board, which must not depart from the Framework Regulation for Decentralised Agencies without the Commission's prior consent. The Anti-Fraud Framework, applying Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 883/2013¹², grants audit powers to the Court of Auditors and investigative powers to OLAF, and recognises the EPPO's competence to investigate fraud affecting the Union's financial interests.

Chapter VII – Staff

This chapter lays down the general provisions applicable to Eurojust's staff, establishing that they work under the authority of the Administrative Director and are subject to the Staff Regulations and Conditions of Employment of Other Servants of the European Union. It defines 'authorised Eurojust staff' as members of staff designated to perform specific operational, administrative or technical tasks and sets out their functions, which include supporting National Desks, case management, operational analysis and a range of administrative activities. Chapter VII also provides that Eurojust may make use of seconded national experts and other staff not directly employed by it, and confirms that Protocol No 7 on the Privileges and Immunities of the European Union applies to Eurojust and its staff.

Chapter VIII – Evaluation and reporting

This chapter establishes Eurojust's accountability and reporting framework. It requires Eurojust to transmit its consolidated annual report to the European Parliament, the Council and national parliaments by 1 May each year, and requires the President to appear annually before the European Parliament and national parliaments at an interparliamentary committee meeting. It requires Eurojust to contribute to the annual report on the protection of the Union's financial interests under Article 325(5) TFEU, using reporting indicators defined by the Commission. Chapter VIII also provides that the Commission and Member States may request Eurojust's opinion on proposed legislative acts falling within the scope of Article 76 TFEU. A five-yearly independent evaluation of Eurojust's performance is required, as is an assessment every ten years of whether the continuation of the Agency remains justified.

Chapter IX – General and final provisions

This chapter sets out the general framework for Eurojust's operation and the transitional arrangements accompanying the entry into force of the Regulation. It provides that Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001 on public access to documents applies to documents held by Eurojust, requires Eurojust to adopt security rules for the protection of classified and sensitive non-classified information based on Commission Decisions (EU, Euratom) 2015/443 and 2015/444, and confirms that Council Regulation No 1 on language arrangements applies. It establishes a five-yearly evaluation process, lays down the liability regime governing Eurojust's contractual and non-contractual liability, and provides for a Headquarters Agreement with the Netherlands. Chapter IX repeals Regulation (EU) 2018/1727, while ensuring full continuity of Eurojust as a legal entity, of its staff and appointed officials, of ongoing operational activities and cases, of the case management system and data processed thereunder, and of existing international agreements and working arrangements. It provides that references in existing legal instruments to Regulation (EU) 2018/1727 are to be read as references to this Regulation, and that the Regulation will enter into force on the twentieth day following its publication in the Official Journal of the European Union.

Proposal for a

REGULATION OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL on the European Union Agency for Criminal Justice Cooperation (Eurojust) and repealing Regulation (EU) 2018/1727

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,
Having regard to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Article 85 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the European Commission,

After transmission of the draft legislative act to the national parliaments,

Acting in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure,

Whereas:

- (1) The European Union Agency for Criminal Justice Cooperation (Eurojust) was established by Council Decision 2002/187/JHA¹³ as a Union body with legal personality, to stimulate and improve coordination and cooperation between competent judicial authorities of the Member States in relation to serious crime and organised crime with a cross-border dimension. Following the entry into force of the Treaty of Lisbon, Regulation (EU) 2018/1727 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁴ was adopted on 14 November 2018, repealing and replacing Council Decision 2002/187/JHA. Eurojust's legal framework has since been amended by Regulation (EU) 2022/838¹⁵, Regulation (EU) 2023/2131¹⁶ and Regulation (EU) 2025/2082¹⁷.
- (2) Article 85 TFEU provides that Eurojust's mission is to support and strengthen coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities in relation to serious crime affecting two or more Member States or requiring prosecution on common bases, on the basis of operations conducted and information supplied by the Member States' authorities and by the European Union

Agency for Law Enforcement Cooperation (Europol)¹⁸. Article 85 TFEU further requires the European Parliament and national parliaments to be involved in the evaluation of Eurojust's activities.

- (3) This Regulation aims to ensure that Eurojust remains fit for purpose in light of the evolving criminal landscape and internal security architecture of the Union. It therefore strengthens Eurojust's operational mandate, makes its governance structure more agile, and adapts its legal framework to reflect developments in the nature and scale of serious cross-border crime, technological advancements shaping both criminal activity and judicial cooperation, and the broader evolution of the Union's area of freedom, security and justice.
- (4) Since the amendments necessary to achieve those objectives are substantial in number and nature, Regulation (EU) 2018/1727 should, in the interests of clarity and legal certainty, be repealed and replaced in its entirety by this Regulation in relation to the Member States bound by it. Eurojust as established by this Regulation is the legal successor of Eurojust as established by Regulation (EU) 2018/1727. The continuity of agreements, working arrangements and other instruments governing Eurojust's cooperation with third countries, international organisations and Union bodies should be ensured, in accordance with their terms.
- (5) Eurojust should support and strengthen coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities in cases where serious crime affects two or more Member States or requires prosecution on common bases, including where it has repercussions at Union level. The concept of repercussions at Union level should be interpreted having regard to the increasingly transnational nature of serious crime and the operational realities faced by national judicial authorities. Criminal activities planned, organised or directed from outside the Union can generate significant security and judicial repercussions within it, especially where such crimes present a hybrid dimension. This is particularly manifest in cases involving terrorism planned or financed abroad but carried out within the Union, trafficking in human beings and migrant smuggling along routes originating outside the Union, drug trafficking by organisations based in third countries supplying consumer markets within the Union, and cyberattacks launched from outside the Union against critical infrastructure or public authorities of Member States. Activities of criminal nature, such as money laundering or organised crime, can also be linked to foreign information manipulation and interference and disinformation campaigns, posing an additional risk to security in the Union. Where such criminal conduct presents a nexus to the security, citizens or fundamental interests of the Union, Eurojust may assist in the relevant investigations and prosecutions, provided that the offences concerned fall within the scope of Annex I to this Regulation and that any such assistance is provided in compliance with applicable international agreements and Union data protection rules.
- (6) In view of the shifting landscape of serious and cross-border crime, it is necessary to update Eurojust's competence to ensure that the legal framework remains fit for purpose and able to address the new realities of crime. The Union is confronted with evolving and increasingly sophisticated criminal threats, including cyber-dependent and cyber-enabled crime, and the terrorist use of digital infrastructures, which undermine democratic institutions, public security, critical infrastructure and societal resilience. Other forms of serious crime, such as gender-based violence, particularly where facilitated by digital technologies or involving cross-border elements, also have a profound and lasting impact on victims, equality and fundamental rights. The effective investigation and prosecution of such crimes require a coordinated Union approach, enhanced cross-border judicial cooperation, and the strengthening of common security and information integrity capabilities, in full respect of fundamental rights and the rule of law. The list of forms of serious crime in respect of which Eurojust is competent should therefore be updated to reflect those evolving criminal threats, including violations of Union restrictive measures and gender-based violence, and should be regularly reviewed to ensure that Eurojust's mandate remains relevant and effective.

- (7) Eurojust's tasks should be expanded and specified to reflect its role as a strategic, analytical and proactive hub for cross-border judicial cooperation, supporting competent national authorities through operational and analytical assistance. Its involvement in Union policy-making and relevant strategic cycles should also be enhanced, enabling Eurojust to bring its casework-based expertise to the definition of Union priorities for combating serious crime. Particular emphasis should be placed on Eurojust's role in facilitating and supporting the issuance and execution of judicial cooperation and mutual recognition instruments, resolving conflicts of jurisdiction between competent national authorities, supporting cross-border asset recovery, collecting, preserving and storing evidence of core international crimes, and assisting victims of serious crime in cross-border criminal proceedings.
- (8) Eurojust should also develop and maintain specialised knowledge and expertise in judicial cooperation in criminal matters, including through the establishment of Eurojust Centres of Expertise in criminal matters (ECE). ECE should cooperate closely with any similar specialised structures established at Union level, including Union Centres of Specialised Expertise and the EU Centre for the Protection of Children from Child Sexual Abuse, within their respective mandates and ensuring complementarity, to maximise the operational value of their combined expertise for the benefit of the competent national authorities of the Member States.
- (9) It is essential that Eurojust assumes a more prominent role in supporting victims of serious crime in cross-border cases, in accordance with the Union's strategy in that area and with Directive 2012/29/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing minimum standards on the rights, support and protection of victims of crime¹⁹. That is of particular relevance in cases involving a large number of victims or victims of mass fraud, especially online, with links to different Member States and in cases potentially falling under multiple jurisdictions, as well as in cases involving gender-based violence with a cross-border dimension. Eurojust should actively assist Member States in upholding victims' rights in cross-border criminal proceedings, including by facilitating the identification of victims, advising competent national authorities on victims' procedural rights under national and Union law, and assisting with access to compensation and restitution, including of property subject to freezing and confiscation measures.

¹⁹ Directive 2012/29/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 25 October 2012 establishing minimum standards on the rights, support and protection of victims of crime, and replacing Council Framework Decision 2001/220/JHA (OJ L 315, 14.11.2012, p. 57).

- (10) Eurojust's competence in relation to the forms of serious crime listed in Annex I should be clearly defined, covering not only those offences directly listed but also criminal offences committed in order to procure the means of committing, to facilitate or commit, or to ensure the impunity of those committing, the forms of serious crime listed. In addition to the forms of crime explicitly listed, Eurojust should have the flexibility to assist in other cases, within the limits of its mandate set out in this Regulation, at the request of a competent national authority where there is a specific operational need to do so.
- (11) As the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) has been established by means of enhanced cooperation, Council Regulation (EU) 2017/1939²⁰ is binding in its entirety and directly applicable only to Member States that participate in that enhanced cooperation. For the cases not falling within the competence of the EPPO, Eurojust remains fully competent for the forms of serious crime listed in Annex I to this Regulation. In light of their respective mandates, Eurojust should be able to operate in cases concerning crimes falling within the EPPO's remit where those cases involve both participating and non-participating Member States, or where the EPPO decides not act, at the request of the non-participating Member States or of the EPPO. Eurojust should in any case remain competent to support cases concerning criminal offences affecting the financial interests of the Union wherever the EPPO is not competent or does not exercise its competence. The EPPO and Eurojust should develop close operational cooperation within their respective mandates, as further governed by the working arrangement between them.
- (12) In accordance with Article 85 TFEU, Eurojust's tasks may include the initiation of criminal investigations. The role of Eurojust should not be limited to reacting to requests for assistance and operational support by Member States, but should extend to proactively promoting a coordinated and strategic judicial response against serious crime at Union level. Drawing on its position at the intersection of national investigations and Union level's cooperation, Eurojust should be able to use its analytical capabilities and expertise to facilitate actions taken on its own initiative, in cooperation with Member States and on the basis of information provided by them, by Europol, the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF), established by Commission Decision 1999/352/EC, ECSC, Euratom²¹, the EPPO and other Union bodies and agencies. This should include involving Member States that might not initially have been included in a case, as well as requesting Member States to open investigations or undertake certain investigative measures, in particular where Eurojust identifies, on the basis of its analysis, links between cases or other situations requiring judicial coordination. To that end, National Members should be empowered to open cases on their own initiative in the Eurojust case management system, thereby strengthening Eurojust's capacity to drive coordination proactively while preserving the primacy of competent national authorities in the conduct of investigations and prosecution.
- (13) Consistency in the status, profile and powers of National Members across Member States is essential to the effective and even application of this Regulation. Member States should therefore be required to appoint National Members who are active members of the public prosecution service or of the judiciary, and who possess the qualifications required for appointment to high prosecutorial or judicial offices, together with relevant practical experience of national legal systems and of international judicial cooperation in criminal matters. National Members should, in accordance with the law of their Member State, be entrusted at least with the powers necessary to exercise fully their competences and perform effectively their tasks under this Regulation, so that differences in national arrangements do not impede Eurojust's operations, in particular in urgent cases. Those powers should include at a minimum: directly contacting and exchanging operational information and evidence with competent national and third-country authorities and with relevant Union bodies, offices and agencies; opening, registering and managing cases in the case management system; organising coordination meetings and coordination centres; participating in, and where appropriate initiating or facilitating the establishment and operation of, joint investigation teams, including by signing an agreement establishing a joint investigation team (JIT agreement); participating in joint operational platforms, ECE and judicial coordination platforms; requesting competent national authorities to undertake investigations or prosecutions or to take any other measure justified for the purposes of an investigation or prosecution.

- (14) In order to ensure timely action in cross-border cases, with the agreement of the competent national authority, and in accordance with national law, National Members should also be empowered to issue or execute requests for judicial cooperation or mutual recognition, including investigative measures under Directive 2014/41/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²², freezing and confiscation orders under Regulation (EU) 2018/1805 of the European Parliament and of the Council²³, and European Production Orders or European Preservation Orders under Regulation (EU) 2023/1543 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁴. Where required under national law and consistently with the status of the National Member as active member of prosecutions services or of the judiciary, that empowerment should also cover the issuing of the underlying national measures necessary to give legal effect to those instruments in accordance with applicable Union and national law. They should furthermore be able to request their asset recovery offices to provide information on instrumentalities, proceeds or property which are or might become the object of a freezing or confiscation order and to take immediate action until a freezing order is issued, as provided for under Directive (EU) 2024/1260 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁵. In urgent cases where it is not possible to identify or contact the competent national authority in a timely manner, National Members should be competent to take those measures in their own capacity in accordance with national law, informing the competent national authority without undue delay. Measures taken by National Members in such circumstances remain subject to the review of the respective competent national authorities and courts, in accordance with applicable national procedural law. Member States may grant additional powers to National Members beyond those set out in this Regulation and shall notify the Commission and the College accordingly. In order to ensure that National Members, their Deputies and, where applicable, their Assistants can effectively exercise the powers conferred upon them under this Regulation and act as fully empowered judicial cooperation authorities within the Union's judicial cooperation architecture, Member States should appoint them, as competent authority for the purposes of the applicable Union acts on judicial cooperation in criminal matters, in particular those referred to in this Regulation. When acting on its own initiative, Eurojust should be able to act through its National Members, who may, giving their reasons, ask the competent authorities of their Member States to undertake an investigation or prosecution in respect of specific acts, or any other measure justified for the purposes of the investigation or prosecution. By way of illustration, this could cover requests to issue the relevant instrument of judicial cooperation, to carry out a financial investigation, to take pre-trial provisional measures, to conduct a hearing of witnesses or experts, or to adopt measures aimed at protecting victims and witnesses.

- (15) It is necessary to provide Eurojust with a governance structure that enables it to perform its tasks more effectively and efficiently, aligning it with the principles applicable to Union agencies, in particular the 2012 Joint Statement of the European Parliament, the Council of the European Union and the European Commission on decentralised agencies. At the same time, such an approach should take due account of Eurojust's specific nature as a judicial cooperation agency. Accordingly, the independence of National Members and of the College in the exercise of their operational functions should be safeguarded. Eurojust should consist of a management structure, comprising the Management Board, the Executive Board and the Administrative Director, and an operational structure, comprising the National Members and the College, with the respective functions of those bodies clearly delineated in this Regulation.
- (16) In order for Eurojust to fulfil its mission and deploy its full potential in the fight against serious cross-border crime, its operational dimension should be strengthened by reducing the administrative burden on National Members, allowing them to focus on casework. The College should be competent for operational matters, in keeping with the unique character of the agency in handling judicial cases and interacting with national authorities on the basis of mutual trust, while administrative and budgetary responsibilities should be assumed by the Management Board and the Executive Board. In the same spirit of simplification and of reducing the involvement of the College in non-core tasks, the preparation and coordination of strategic reports, guidance documents and other analytical outputs of relevance to practitioners should increasingly be entrusted to Eurojust staff, including in the context of ECE.
- (17) To improve quality and efficiency decision-making processes, a Management Board should be established as an independent oversight body, and entrusted with adopting the most high-level decisions regarding budget, strategic priorities and management matters, including the single programming document, the annual budget, the staff rules and the security rules. Member States will be fully involved in the governance of the agency through their representation on the Management Board. In order to preserve the separation between administrative and operational matters, Member States should be precluded from appointing National Members as their representatives in the Management Board, so that operational casework and administrative oversight are entrusted to persons with the appropriate respective expertise. All parties represented in the Management Board should make efforts to limit the turnover of their representatives so as to ensure continuity of work, and should aim to achieve a gender-balanced representation.

- (18) An Executive Board should be established to prepare, inform and assist the work of the Management Board and the preparation of its meetings. In addition, the Executive Board should, in the cases provided for in this Regulation, take decisions in its own capacity on matters relating to the day-to-day administration of Eurojust.
- (19) While fully respecting the separation between administrative and operational responsibilities, the views of the College should be taken into account where administrative decisions are liable to have a significant impact on Eurojust's operational work, in particular as regards the definition of priority crime areas. For that reason, in the matters listed in this Regulation, the Management Board and the Executive Board, within their respective remits, should consult the College in advance before taking a decision. To ensure that the views of the College are duly represented, the President of Eurojust should participate in the Management Board and in the Executive Board as representative of the College. Where reports, opinions, policy papers and guidelines that the Executive Board may adopt are likely to be of direct operational relevance, particularly where they may relate to ongoing investigations or prosecutions or to other non-public strategic information, the College should be consulted in advance.
- (20) The Administrative Director should be the manager of Eurojust and should be accountable to the Management Board. The Administrative Director should be responsible for the implementation of the tasks assigned to Eurojust by this Regulation, including ensuring the day-to-day administration of the agency, implementing decisions adopted by the Management Board and the Executive Board, and preparing and implementing the budget and the single programming document. The Administrative Director should be appointed on the basis of merit and documented administrative and managerial skills, as well as relevant competence and experience. The Administrative Director is the legal representative of Eurojust.
- (21) A President and a Vice-President of Eurojust should be elected by the College from among the National Members for a term of office of four years, renewable once. When a National Member is elected President, the Member State concerned should be able to second, for the duration of the presidential mandate, an official with the necessary qualifications and experience to reinforce the National Desk and ensure that it continues to function effectively, as well as to apply for compensation from Eurojust's budget. They may have the status of a Deputy or Assistant to the National Member who has been elected President, or they may have a more administrative or technical function, and each Member State should be able to determine its own requirements in this regard. Since the compensation mechanism has a budgetary impact, implementing powers to determine that mechanism should be conferred on the Council. While the Administrative Director is the legal representative of Eurojust, the President of the College represents Eurojust in political fora, in particular when presenting Eurojust's activities, operational priorities and strategic considerations to Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies, third countries and international organisations.
- (22) To ensure that Eurojust is able to fulfil its tasks without delay in urgent cases, each National Desk should be available at all times to receive and process urgent requests. To that end, arrangements should be made to ensure that at least one member of each National Desk can be reached at any time, so that urgent requests concerning their Member State are handled without delay.
- (23) Each Member State should establish a Eurojust national coordination system to support the work of its National Member and ensure coordination between the National Desk and the competent national authorities of that Member State. Those systems should include the contact points of networks with which Eurojust maintains relations, such as the Network of National Experts on Joint Investigation Teams (JITs Network), the European network of persons responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes established by Council Decision 2002/494/JHA²⁶, the European contact-point network against corruption established by Council Decision 2008/852/JHA²⁷, the European Judicial Cybercrime Network, the European Judicial Organised Crime Network, and the contact points designated under Council Decision 2007/845/JHA²⁸, as well as the national correspondents for Eurojust, for terrorism matters, for issues relating to the competence of the EPPO, and for the European Judicial Network established by Council Decision 2008/976/JHA²⁹. Member States may decide that one or more of those tasks are to be performed by the same national correspondent.

- (24) For the purposes of stimulating and strengthening coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities, it is crucial that Eurojust receives from national authorities the information necessary for the performance of its tasks. Competent national authorities should inform their National Members without undue delay of the setting up and results of joint investigation teams. They should also inform National Members without undue delay of cases falling under the competence of Eurojust that directly involve at least three Member States and for which requests for or decisions on judicial cooperation have been transmitted to at least two Member States. In certain circumstances, they should also inform National Members of conflicts of jurisdiction, controlled deliveries and repeated difficulties encountered in the execution of requests for judicial cooperation. As regards terrorist offences, competent national authorities should inform their National Members of all relevant criminal investigations as soon as they are referred to judicial authorities, regardless of whether a known link to another Member State or third country exists, subject to the conditions set out in this Regulation.
- (25) One of the main challenges in combating serious cross-border crime is the timely identification of links and overlaps between ongoing investigations and prosecutions of criminal networks, in particular transnational organised crime networks involved in drug trafficking, and investigations and prosecutions concerning financial or other forms of serious fraud. In this context, the cross-checking of relevant information also serves to promote the efficiency of judicial administration by preventing the duplication of parallel proceedings before different national courts, thereby reducing the risk of violating the ne bis in idem principle. Eurojust should systematically cross-check information contained in relevant databases in order to identify links between cross-border investigations and provide effective coordination and support to competent national authorities. The availability of analysed datasets and cross-checked information is essential for effective case-building and supports competent national authorities in developing strategic prosecutorial approaches.

²⁹ Council Decision 2008/976/JHA of 16 December 2008 on the European Judicial Network (OJ L 348, 24.12.2008, p. 130, ELI: <http://data.europa.eu/eli/dec/2008/976/oj>).

- (26) The establishment and support of joint investigation teams is a cornerstone of Eurojust's operational activities. Eurojust should provide operational, technical, analytical, legal and financial support to joint investigation teams, including by advising on the opportunity and legal requirements for setting up a joint investigation team, assisting in the drafting and negotiation of JIT agreements, advising on prosecutorial strategies and the implementation of operational actions and the possibility to involve Europol. Financial support should be provided in accordance with the applicable financial rules and may include simplified forms of funding, such as lump sums, unit costs and flat-rate financing. Eurojust should also support the JITs Network through its staff, in particular by organising its meetings and training activities, collecting and analysing evaluations of individual joint investigation teams, and managing Eurojust's financial support to those teams. Where appropriate for efficient cross-border investigations, Eurojust should also facilitate and support the participation of third countries, including EU candidate countries and potential candidates, in JITs.
- (27) To support particularly complex cross-border investigations or prosecutions, or to enhance judicial cooperation in addressing specific forms of serious crime, Eurojust should be able to establish judicial coordination platforms at the request of two or more Member States or on its own initiative with the agreement of the Member States concerned. Those semi-permanent structured cooperation mechanisms should bring together representatives of the competent national authorities, including members of the National Desks, and be supported by authorised Eurojust staff. They should facilitate the synchronisation of investigations and prosecutions across multiple jurisdictions, help prevent potential conflicts of jurisdiction, enable timely sharing of information and evidence relevant to judicial authorities, support the development and implementation of common prosecution strategies, and provide specialised assistance to competent national authorities. Information processed in the framework of a judicial coordination platform should be handled in accordance with this Regulation and stored in the case management system. The establishment of judicial coordination platforms builds on the successful operational experience of the International Centre for the Prosecution of the Crime of Aggression against Ukraine (ICPA), hosted by Eurojust, which has demonstrated the value of a structured, sustained and multi-jurisdictional judicial cooperation mechanism in addressing the most serious crimes.
- (28) The capacity for Eurojust to collect, preserve, analyse and store information that may be used as evidence in criminal proceedings is of the highest importance in the field of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, the crime of aggression and related criminal offences. The Core International Crimes Evidence Database (CICED), established and operated by Eurojust, has demonstrated the unique value of a centralised and secure mechanism for preserving and cross-checking evidence of core international crimes from multiple jurisdictions, supporting national prosecutorial authorities and facilitating the work of international criminal courts and tribunals. For the purposes of the interpretation of this Regulation, and without affecting any further development of international law, the notion of core international crimes should be understood as encompassing the crime of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and the crime of aggression, as defined in the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court.
- (29) This Regulation strengthens Eurojust's mandate to preserve, analyse and store evidence, providing a legal framework for the further development of CICED. Where necessary, that capacity should be extended to other forms of serious crime within Eurojust's mandate, in particular organised crime, to support specific investigations and prosecutions for which a joint investigation team or a judicial coordination platform has been established. Particularly in this respect, Eurojust and Europol should cooperate closely within their respective mandates, avoiding duplication of effort, as regards the processing and analysis of information in the fight against organised crime.

- (30) The prevention and resolution of conflicts of jurisdiction between Member States is a key function of Eurojust, complementing the framework established by Council Framework Decision 2009/948/JHA³⁰. That Framework Decision established obligations for competent authorities of Member States to enter into direct consultations where there are reasonable grounds to believe that parallel proceedings are being conducted in different Member States, and provides for the involvement of Eurojust where those consultations do not lead to a consensus. Building on that framework, Eurojust should play a key role in assisting competent national authorities in the identification, prevention and resolution of conflicts of jurisdiction, including by identifying parallel or linked proceedings, providing legal advice on the application of the ne bis in idem principle enshrined in Article 50 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, issuing non-binding reasoned opinions or recommendations on the resolution of such conflicts, and facilitating the transfer of proceedings to the jurisdiction best placed to prosecute. That function is essential to prevent impunity, avoid duplicative proceedings and ensure the efficient use of judicial resources across Member States.
- (31) The tracing, freezing, confiscation and recovery of criminal assets is a priority area for Eurojust's operational support. Eurojust should assist Member States in cross-border asset recovery cases, including in relation to post-conviction and non-conviction-based confiscation, and should cooperate closely with Asset Recovery Offices designated in accordance with Council Decision 2007/845/JHA and other competent authorities to maximise the effectiveness of financial investigations and asset recovery proceedings, including through the use of the instruments provided for in Directive (EU) 2024/1260.
- (32) Eurojust should, in complementarity with Europol and within their respective mandates, support the competent authorities of the Member States in the context of digital investigations and access to electronic evidence. Given the ever growing importance of electronic evidence in cross-border criminal investigations, there is a need for Eurojust to serve as a dedicated operational and knowledge hub for judicial authorities navigating the complex legal landscape governing cross-border access to data, including as regards direct requests to service providers under Regulation (EU) 2023/1543³¹. In that context, Eurojust and Europol should build on and further develop their established cooperation in the field of electronic evidence, including through the SIRIUS project, which provides judicial and law enforcement practitioners with knowledge, tools and training on cross-border access to electronic evidence.
- (33) Communication between the competent national authorities and Eurojust should be carried out through a secure decentralised IT system based on e-CODEX access points, enabling the reliable and secure cross-border exchange of information. The Commission should be responsible for the creation, maintenance and development of reference implementation software which Member States and Eurojust may choose to apply as their back-end system, free of charge. Eurojust should establish a case management system for the processing of operational personal data, enabling the management and coordination of investigations and prosecutions, the secure exchange of information, the cross-checking of data to identify links between cases, and the preservation and analysis of evidence. Access to the case management system should be strictly limited to authorised persons within the limits provided for in this Regulation. The decentralised IT system established under this Regulation is the same technical infrastructure as referred to under Regulation (EU) 2023/2844 of the European Parliament and of the Council³², Regulation (EU) 2023/1543 of the European Parliament and of the Council, and Regulation (EU) 2024/3011 of the European Parliament and of the Council³³, which rely on the same network of e-CODEX access points and reference implementation software. This Regulation should not affect the use of that common decentralised IT system for the communication, facilitation and exchanges in relation to judicial cooperation instruments under those Regulations, thereby ensuring coherence and interoperability across the Union's digital judicial cooperation architecture and avoiding the duplication of technical infrastructure across different legal instruments.

³¹ Regulation (EU) 2023/1543 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 July 2023 on European Production Orders and European Preservation Orders for electronic evidence in criminal proceedings and for the execution of custodial sentences following criminal proceedings (OJ L 191, 28.7.2023, p. 1).

- (34) Directive (EU) 2016/680 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁴ sets out harmonised rules for the protection and the free movement of personal data processed for the purposes of the prevention, investigation, detection or prosecution of criminal offences or the execution of criminal penalties, including the safeguarding against and the prevention of threats to public security. In order to ensure the same level of protection for natural persons through legally enforceable rights throughout the Union and to prevent divergences hampering the exchange of personal data between Eurojust and competent authorities in Member States, the rules for the protection and the free movement of operational personal data processed by Eurojust should be consistent with Directive (EU) 2016/680. This Regulation and Regulation (EU) 2018/1725 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁵ should apply to the processing of personal data by Eurojust, with the specific data protection rules of this Regulation taking precedence as lex specialis over the general rules of Regulation (EU) 2018/1725. Those specific rules are consistent with the principles underpinning Regulation (EU) 2018/1725, as well as with the provisions of that Regulation relating to independent supervision, remedies, liability and penalties.
- (35) All processing of personal data by Eurojust within the framework of its competence and for the fulfilment of its tasks should be considered as processing of operational personal data. The processing of operational personal data by Eurojust should be ³² Regulation (EU) 2023/2844 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 December 2023 on the digitalisation of judicial cooperation and access to justice in cross-border civil, commercial and criminal matters, and amending certain acts in the field of judicial cooperation (OJ L, 2023/2844, 27.12.2023).

³³ Regulation (EU) 2024/3011 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 November 2024 on the transfer of proceedings in criminal matters (OJ L, 2024/3011, 18.12.2024).

³⁵ Regulation (EU) 2018/1725 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 October 2018 on the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data by the Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies and on the free movement of such data, and repealing Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 and Decision No 1247/2002/EC (OJ L 295, 21.11.2018, p. 39).

strictly limited to the categories of data listed in Annex II and should be subject to strict time limits for storage linked to the conclusion of proceedings, acquittals and final judicial decisions, with automated review mechanisms to ensure compliance. In order to support Eurojust's expanded analytical and strategic functions, this Regulation provides for the possibility of retaining operational personal data for a longer period where strictly necessary for analytical and strategic purposes, subject to clear conditions and robust data protection safeguards, and within a clear and legally certain framework consistent with the applicable Union data protection rules. As Eurojust also processes administrative personal data unrelated to criminal investigations, the processing of such data should be subject to the general rules of Regulation (EU) 2018/1725. The data protection provisions of this Regulation do not affect the applicable rules on the admissibility of personal data as evidence in criminal pre-trial and court proceedings. Data processed by Eurojust should be stored in a European cloud infrastructure so as to progressively ensure sovereign digital infrastructures and cloud capabilities.

- (36) The protection of the rights and freedoms of data subjects requires a clear attribution of responsibilities for data protection under this Regulation. Member States should be responsible for the accuracy of data they have transmitted to Eurojust and which have been processed unaltered by Eurojust, for keeping such data up to date and for the legality of transmitting those data to Eurojust. Eurojust should be responsible for the accuracy of data provided by other data suppliers or resulting from its own analyses or data collection activities. Eurojust should ensure that personal data are processed fairly and lawfully, collected and processed for specific purposes, adequate, relevant and not excessive in relation to those purposes, stored no longer than necessary, and processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security and confidentiality.
- (37) Appropriate safeguards for the storage of operational personal data for archiving purposes in the public interest or for statistical purposes should be included in Eurojust's rules of procedure. Where operational personal data are transmitted or supplied to Eurojust by a Member State, the competent authority, the National Member or the national correspondent for Eurojust should have the right to request the rectification or erasure of those data in accordance with the applicable provisions of this Regulation and Regulation (EU) 2018/1725.
- (38) A data subject should be able to exercise the right of access to operational personal data relating to him or her which are processed by Eurojust, in accordance with Regulation (EU) 2018/1725. Such a request may be made at reasonable intervals, free of charge, to Eurojust or to the national supervisory authority in the Member State of the data subject's choice. Limitations to the right of access may apply where disclosure would jeopardise an ongoing investigation or the safety of an individual, in accordance with the conditions established by this Regulation and Regulation (EU) 2018/1725. Access to operational personal data within Eurojust should be strictly limited to National Members, their Deputies, authorised seconded national experts, designated national system users and authorised Eurojust staff, within the limits provided for in this Regulation.
- (39) The person designated as Data Protection Officer of Eurojust should possess the requisite expert knowledge in data protection law and practice, commensurate with the data processing operations carried out by Eurojust and the level of protection required for the personal data processed.

- (40) In order to facilitate cooperation between the EDPS and national supervisory authorities, the EDPS and national supervisory authorities should regularly meet within the European Data Protection Board, in accordance with the rules on coordinated supervision laid down in Regulation (EU) 2018/1725, without affecting the independence of the EDPS or to its responsibility for supervision of Eurojust with regard to data protection.
- (41) As the first recipient on the territory of the Union of personal data provided by or retrieved from third countries or international organisations, Eurojust should be responsible for the accuracy of such data and should take all reasonable measures to verify their accuracy upon receipt or when making them available to other authorities. In exceptional cases, Eurojust should be able to extend the storage deadlines for operational personal data in order to achieve its objectives, subject to the principle of purpose limitation and following careful consideration of all interests at stake, including those of the data subjects, and subject to oversight by the EDPS. Under the applicable legal framework on data protection, Eurojust is subject to the general rules on contractual and non-contractual liability applicable to Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies.
- (42) Eurojust should maintain privileged relations with the European Judicial Network in criminal matters, based on consultation and complementarity, in particular through the members of each National Desk designated as contact points for the European Judicial Network. The complementarity between the European Judicial Network and Eurojust should be exercised in accordance with their respective mandates, with Eurojust being competent for complex cases involving serious cross-border crime requiring active coordination and possibly a joint prosecutorial strategy among multiple jurisdictions. A system for the allocation of cases between Eurojust and the European Judicial Network (EJN) should ensure that Eurojust focuses its resources on the most complex cross-border investigations of serious crimes, characterised in particular by parallel investigations or prosecutions in different Member States, conflicts of jurisdiction, the involvement of more than two legal frameworks or judicial authorities, links with organised crime or exceptional operational urgency or strategic importance at Union level.
- (43) Among decisions regarding the establishment of Eurojust's internal structures, the Management Board should determine the institutional and administrative relationships between Eurojust and the networks it hosts, in particular the networks set up by Council Decisions 2002/494/JHA, 2007/845/JHA and 2008/852/JHA and by the Council conclusions establishing the European Judicial Organised Crime Network of 14 June 2024.
- (44) Eurojust should establish and maintain close cooperation with Europol, with a view to ensuring the coherent and coordinated exercise of their respective mandates and avoiding duplication of effort, and to establishing a continuum between law enforcement intelligence and judicial coordination that enables the swift translation of criminal intelligence into timely and well-coordinated judicial investigations and prosecutions. The combination of Europol's criminal intelligence and analytical capabilities and Eurojust's judicial coordination functions allows the competent authorities to detect cross-border criminal patterns more quickly and to respond effectively to emerging criminal threats. A working arrangement, subject to regular review and updated upon request of and in consultation with the Commission, should set out the practical modalities of that cooperation and consolidate established cooperation practices, including the practical arrangements for mutual indirect access to information respectively held by Eurojust and Europol through an optimised automated hit/no-hit system. That system should be optimised through technical measures to improve cross-checking capabilities. The possibility of establishing joint operational platforms with the consent of the competent national authorities should also be provided for, as should the participation of Europol representatives in meetings of the College where matters of common interest are discussed, so as to enhance operational discussions by bringing additional expertise and information to case-related deliberations. Any access by Europol to data held by Eurojust should be limited by technical means to information falling within the respective mandates of those Union agencies. Eurojust and Europol should keep each other informed of any activity involving the financing of joint investigation teams.

- (45) Eurojust should establish and maintain a close relationship with the EPPO, based on mutual cooperation within their respective mandates and competences. Eurojust should be entrusted with an explicit mandate to provide reinforced support in cases falling within the EPPO's competence, at the request of the EPPO, in particular in cases which require investigative measures or other forms of cooperation in Member States which do not participate in enhanced cooperation on the establishment of the EPPO or in cases involving third countries or requiring coordination between investigations conducted by the EPPO and those conducted by competent national authorities of Member States that do not participate on the EPPO. Stronger coordination between the two bodies should help avoid duplication of effort, facilitate cooperation with non-participating Member States and third countries, and support comprehensive case handling in investigations with a cross-border dimension. The participation of EPPO representatives in meetings of the College where matters of common interest are discussed should be provided for, so as to enhance operational coordination and mutual awareness. The automated hit/no-hit system between Eurojust and the EPPO should also be optimised through technical measures to improve information exchange. Eurojust should without undue delay report to the EPPO any criminal conduct in respect of which the EPPO could exercise its competence and should notify the Member States, unless the EPPO considers that such a notification would affect the effectiveness or the confidentiality of its investigations. The practical arrangements for cooperation between Eurojust and the EPPO should be laid down in a working arrangement, which should be subject to regular review.
- (46) To contribute to effective protection of the Union's financial interests, Eurojust should cooperate with the other anti-fraud actors involved in the protection of the Union's financial interests, such as the EPPO, Europol, OLAF, AMLA and the EU Customs Authority to addresses matters relevant to the coordination of anti-fraud activities, such as facilitating the exchange of information, the undertaking of coordinated or joint actions, exchanging on emerging criminal trends in activities affecting the financial interests of the Union, the sharing of best practices including matters relating to information technology security and development, establishing criteria for common reporting or coordinating training activities or general developments concerning the anti-fraud architecture of the Union. Being a relevant actor in the protection of the Union financial interests, Eurojust should participate actively in such joint cooperation activities.
- (47) To ensure that the report to be submitted each year by the Commission pursuant to Article 325(5) TFUE includes a comprehensive overview of the measures taken to counter fraud affecting the Union's financial interests, Eurojust should contribute to the preparation of that report. That contribution should cover the results achieved and the activities carried out to that end by Eurojust.

- (48) Eurojust should be able to exchange personal data with Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies to the extent necessary for the fulfilment of its tasks, with full respect for the protection of privacy and other fundamental rights and freedoms. Eurojust should enhance its cooperation with competent authorities of third countries and organs of international organisations on the basis of a cooperation strategy drawn up every four years in consultation with the Commission. Working arrangements between Eurojust and the competent authorities of a third country may take the form of strategic working arrangements, which are independent from but often precede an international agreement concluded by the Union pursuant to Article 218 TFEU, or of arrangements implementing such an international agreement. Where relevant, cooperation commitments with financial implications should be included in international agreements concluded by the Union with third countries to ensure adequate resourcing of operational cooperation. In order to facilitate cooperation and build mutual trust with international partners, the legal framework governing the posting of liaison magistrates to third countries should be clarified, including as regards their tasks, data protection obligations, and the conditions under which they may exchange operational personal data with the competent authorities of the third country. Where Eurojust identifies an operational need for cooperation with a third country or an international organisation, it should be able to draw the attention of the Commission to the need for an adequacy decision or a recommendation for the opening of negotiations on an international agreement pursuant to Article 218 TFEU.
- (49) Even in the absence of an international agreement, Eurojust should establish and maintain operational relations with third countries considered to be of strategic importance for judicial cooperation, in particular EU candidate countries and potential candidates, where EU-funded projects aim to provide operational support and assistance, equipping those partners with EU judicial cooperation and working methods. To that end, resident contact points from priority third countries should be hosted by Eurojust on the basis of a working arrangement and following appointment by the Management Board, providing reliable and stable channels for judicial exchanges and reducing delays in the handling of cooperation requests. The role of those contact points is to expedite, coordinate or facilitate the execution of requests for judicial cooperation, to support communication and coordination between Eurojust, Member States and the competent authorities of the third country concerned, and to facilitate the participation of those authorities in coordination meetings and joint investigation teams supported by Eurojust. The access of those contact points to the Eurojust case management system should be strictly limited to data relevant to the performance of their functions, and any exchange of operational personal data should only take place on the basis of the derogations for specific situations provided for in this Regulation. Specific organisational arrangements should be made to ensure that the integration of such actors within Eurojust is accompanied by appropriate information security and data protection safeguards.
- (50) The participation of liaison prosecutors seconded to Eurojust from third countries or from international organisations in meetings of the College where matters of common interest are discussed should be provided for, so as to strengthen operational relationships and facilitate direct exchanges between practitioners.
- (51) To guarantee the full autonomy and independence of Eurojust, it should be granted an autonomous budget with revenue coming essentially from a contribution from the general budget of the Union, except as regards the salaries and emoluments of the National Members, Deputies and Assistants, which are borne by their respective Member State. The Union budgetary procedure should be applicable as far as the Union contribution and other subsidies chargeable to the general budget of the Union are concerned. The auditing of accounts should be undertaken by the Court of Auditors and approved by the Committee on Budgetary Control of the European Parliament. Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2024/2509 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁶ should apply to Eurojust.

- (52) In order to combat fraud, corruption and other unlawful activities affecting the financial interests of the Union or serious matters relating to the discharge of professional duties constituting a dereliction of the obligations of officials and other servants of the Union liable to result in disciplinary or, as the case may be, criminal proceedings, Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 883/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁷, as amended, should apply to Eurojust without restriction, and OLAF should be able to carry out investigations, including on-the-spot checks and inspections. In accordance with Regulation (EU) 2017/1939, the EPPO is competent to investigate and prosecute fraud and other illegal activities affecting the financial interests of the Union as provided for in Directive (EU) 2017/1371 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁸.
- (53) The College should be provided with detailed and comprehensive expert advice on fundamental rights that may be affected by the agency's activities. To that end, Eurojust staff should include at least one expert responsible for supporting Eurojust in safeguarding respect for fundamental rights in all its activities and tasks, in particular its operational activities, including the exchange of personal data with third countries. It should be possible to designate a member of Eurojust's staff who has received specialist training in fundamental rights law and practice. That designated expert should cooperate closely with the Data Protection Officer within the scope of their respective competences. To the extent that data protection matters are concerned, full responsibility should lie with the Data Protection Officer.
- (54) In order to increase the transparency and democratic oversight of Eurojust, it is necessary to provide a mechanism pursuant to Article 85(1) TFEU for the joint evaluation of Eurojust's activities by the European Parliament and national parliaments. That evaluation should take place in the framework of an interparliamentary committee meeting, with the participation of members of the competent committees of the European Parliament and of the national parliaments, and should fully respect Eurojust's independence as regards actions to be taken in specific operational cases and as regards the obligation of discretion and confidentiality. It is appropriate to evaluate the application of this Regulation regularly. Not later than five years after the entry into force of this Regulation, and every five years thereafter, the ³⁶ Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2024/2509 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 September 2024 on the financial rules applicable to the general budget of the Union (OJ L, 2024/2509, 26.9.2024).

³⁷ Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 883/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 September 2013 concerning investigations conducted by the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) and repealing Regulation (EC) No 1073/1999 of the European Parliament and of the Council and Council Regulation (Euratom) No 1074/1999 (OJ L 248, 18.9.2013, p. 1), as amended by Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2016/2030 of the European Parliament and of the Council (OJ L 317, 23.11.2016, p. 1) and Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2020/2223 of the European Parliament and of the Council (OJ L 437, 28.12.2020, p. 49).

Commission should evaluate Eurojust's performance in relation to its objectives, mandate, tasks, governance and location, including an assessment every ten years of whether the continuation of the Agency remains justified.

- (55) Eurojust's functioning should be transparent in accordance with Article 15(3) TFEU. Specific provisions on how the right of public access to documents is ensured should be adopted by the Management Board. The transparency obligation should apply to Eurojust in a manner that does not jeopardise the obligation of confidentiality in its operational work. Administrative inquiries conducted by the European Ombudsman should respect that obligation. In order to increase Eurojust's transparency vis-à-vis Union citizens and to strengthen its accountability, Eurojust should publish on its website a list of the members of its Management Board and Executive Board and, where appropriate, summaries of the outcomes of the meetings of the Management Board, while respecting applicable data protection requirements.
- (56) The necessary provisions regarding accommodation for Eurojust in the Netherlands, where it has its seat, and the specific rules applicable to Eurojust staff and members of their families should be laid down in a Headquarters Agreement between Eurojust and the Kingdom of the Netherlands. Given that this Regulation establishes a Management Board that was not provided for under Regulation (EU) 2018/1727, the Headquarters Agreement should be amended or replaced to ensure that its personal scope covers members of the Management Board and their families. The same should apply, where appropriate, to resident contact points posted from third countries and their families. The host Member State should provide the best possible conditions to ensure the effective functioning of Eurojust, including multilingual, European-oriented schooling and appropriate transport connections, so as to attract high-quality human resources from as wide a geographical area as possible.
- (57) Since the objective of this Regulation, namely the setting up of an entity responsible for supporting and strengthening coordination and cooperation between the judicial authorities of the Member States in relation to serious crime affecting two or more Member States or requiring prosecution on common bases, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States but can rather, by reason of the scale and effects of the action, be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 TEU. In accordance with the principle of proportionality as set out in that Article, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve that objective.
- (58) [In accordance with Articles 1 and 2 of Protocol No 21 on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland in respect of the area of freedom, security and justice, annexed to the TEU and to the TFEU, and without affecting Article 4 of that Protocol, Ireland is not taking part in the adoption of this Regulation and is not bound by it or subject to its application.] OR [In accordance with Article 3 of Protocol No 21 on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland in respect of the area of freedom, security and justice, annexed to the TEU and to the TFEU, Ireland has notified, by letter of [date], its wish to take part in the adoption and application of this Regulation.]
- (59) In accordance with Articles 1 and 2 of Protocol No 22 on the position of Denmark, annexed to the TEU and to the TFEU, Denmark is not taking part in the adoption of this Regulation and is not bound by it or subject to its application.
- (60) The EDPS was consulted in accordance with Article 42 of Regulation (EU) 2018/1725 and delivered an opinion on [date].

1. FRAMEWORK OF THE PROPOSAL/INITIATIVE

1.1. Title of the proposal/initiative

Proposal for a REGULATION OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL recasting Regulation (EU) 2018/1727 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 14 November 2018 on the European Union Agency for Criminal Justice Cooperation (Eurojust), and replacing and repealing Council Decision 2002/187/JHA.

1.2. Policy area(s) concerned

Criminal justice cooperation, fight against cross-border crime.

1.3. Objective(s)

1.3.1. General objective(s)

The revision of the Eurojust Regulation seeks to better attain the goals that the Treaties set out for the Agency.

In particular it aims to enhance Eurojust's role in supporting and strengthening coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities in cross-border cases and thus strengthen its role as a hub of criminal justice cooperation in the Union's justice and security architecture.

This revision is part of a broader legislative package intended to ensure a high level of security across the EU through measures that prevent and combat crime, and that foster coordination and cooperation between competent authorities in the criminal justice domain.

1.3.2. Specific objective(s)

The general objective is articulated into two interrelated specific objectives, which address the structural and functional limitations that currently constraints Eurojust's capacity to fully exploit its potential in the fight against cross-border crime.

Specific objective 1: To make Eurojust's support and coordination action more efficient, timely, and strategically focused across the full lifecycle of serious cross-border crime.

Eurojust's focus on operations (work on criminal cases) will be maximised. This will result from a revision of its governance structure, aimed at streamlining decision-making processes and relieving National Members (judges and prosecutors leading the operations) from their administrative burden. The tasks and competences of the Agency will be updated and its proactivity enhanced, to enable Eurojust to better address the new realities of cross-border crime and keep pace with cooperation needs.

Specific objective 2: To achieve more institutionalised cooperation and more timely information exchanges between Eurojust and EU and international partners.

The degree of institutionalisation of cooperation with partners will be increased through the strengthening of reciprocal notification obligations and the improvement of information exchange systems. This is intended to maximise opportunities for detection of criminal activity and early involvement of competent judicial authorities.

1.3.3. Expected result(s) and impact

Specify the effects which the proposal/initiative should have on the beneficiaries/groups targeted.

The revision of the Eurojust Regulation is expected to deliver significant, measurable impacts for Member States, victims, and EU citizens by strengthening Eurojust's operational role in combating serious cross-border crime, including, most notably, organised crime, terrorism, cybercrime, and financial crime.

The proposal is anticipated to minimise the handling-time of support requests from Member States and maximise the added value of Eurojust's coordination effort. This will derive from a strengthened 'filtering' system for support requests – so that they are dealt with through the appropriate channels and that Eurojust can focus on complex, multilateral cases. In addition, new tasks for the Agency and powers of the National Members will lead to better support to the national authorities, early involvement of judicial authorities in cross-border investigations, and ultimately a higher success rate in prosecutions.

Efficiency gains will stem from the reorganisation of the governance system and enhanced coherence with the operations of Europol and the EPPO. The new framework is envisaged to free up resources for operational activities by shifting responsibilities for administrative and management decisions and streamlining decision-making processes. Enhanced cooperation and mutual involvement with partners are expected to limit overlapping activities, exploit synergies and avoid duplication of work.

The revision will also strengthen external cooperation, formalising structured channels for engagement with third country authorities, ensuring faster and smoother follow up to judicial requests.

Cumulatively, these measures will transform Eurojust from a reactive coordinator into a proactive judicial hub, reinforcing the EU's ability to detect, investigate, and prosecute cross-border crime.

The reform aligns with EU strategic priorities, delivers tangible benefits for beneficiaries (judiciaries, law enforcement, victims), and ensures long-term coherence with the broader EU justice and security architecture.

1.3.4. Indicators of performance

Specify the indicators for monitoring progress and achievements.

The achievement of the objectives of the reform will be monitored mainly through the following indicators:

1. Time-share spent by National Members on administrative tasks.

The reform aims to reduce the administrative workload of National Members. Moving from a current baseline of approximately 40% of their overall workload, this share is expected to decrease to around 20-25% within two years from the entry into application of the revised Regulation, taking into account a transitional adjustment period, and to reach a steady-state level of 10-15% within five years. Progress against this indicator will be monitored through the Commission's involvement in the Executive Board and Management Board, and assessed in the context of the next evaluation of the Regulation and Agency.

2. Number of own-initiative cases⁶⁴.

Progress towards a more proactive Eurojust will be reflected by a higher number of own-initiative cases opened and handled by the Agency. Following an initial adjustment phase, a gradual increase is expected, with the annual average number of own-initiative cases opened increasing by 10-15% within five years. To avoid distortions resulting from the normal year-on-year fluctuations in Eurojust casework, the baseline will be calculated on the basis of the average annual number of own-initiative cases opened during the five years preceding the entry into application of the revised Regulation. Progress will be assessed against that baseline by reference to the corresponding annual average over the five years following its entry into application, using the data reported in Eurojust's Consolidated Annual Activity Report (CAAR).

3. Share of 'simple' cases handled by Eurojust.

The reform should bring to a gradual but significant reduction in the share of bilateral and simpler cases handled by Eurojust. While a residual share of 20-25% is expected to remain, reflecting cases that initially appear complex or are escalated from the European Justice Network, a gradual reduction is expected to reach around 60% within two years, down to 40% within five years, then 20-25% within ten years. The baseline will be determined by reference to the share of simple cases in the total number of cases opened in the year preceding the entry into application of the revised Regulation. Progress will be monitored on the basis of the statistics and KPIs regularly reported by Eurojust in its CAARs.

4. Number of follow-ups to system "hits"⁶⁵.

Improved information exchange with EU partners, in particular Europol, is expected, notably through an increase in follow-ups to "hits" identified in information systems, reflecting enhanced timeliness and relevance. The baseline will be determined by reference to the number of follow-ups to hits recorded in the year preceding the entry into application of the revised Regulation. An increase of up to 50% may be expected within five years. Progress will be monitored on the basis of the data reported in Eurojust's CAARs, cross-checked against corresponding data reported in Europol's CAARs.

1.4. The proposal/initiative relates to:

- a new action
- a new action following a pilot project / preparatory action⁶⁶
- the extension of an existing action
- a merger or redirection of one or more actions towards another/a new action

⁶⁵ A hit in the hit/no-hit system is a positive match indicating that information held by Eurojust corresponds to information held by another competent authority or EU partner, without automatically disclosing the underlying data, and may therefore signal a possible link between investigations requiring judicial follow-up or coordination. A follow-up to a hit is the subsequent transmission, where appropriate and in accordance with the applicable legal framework, of the relevant information necessary to assess and act upon that link.

⁶⁶ As referred to in Article 58(2), point (a) or (b) of the Financial Regulation.

1.5. Grounds for the proposal/initiative

1.5.1. Requirement(s) to be met in the short or long term including a detailed timeline for roll-out of the implementation of the initiative

The initiative is expected to require a gradual implementation over the course of the 2028–2034 MFF period.

Taking into account the expected timeline for negotiations in the Council and subsequently with the European Parliament under the ordinary legislative procedure, political agreement and entry into force of the revised Regulation are currently estimated towards the end of 2027. The application of the Regulation and the roll-out of the related implementation measures are expected to start progressively from 2028 onwards.

The Regulation is expected to enter into application as a whole, accompanied by transitional provisions governing the shift from the current governance and operational model to the revised framework.

The new competences entrusted to Eurojust would become applicable upon entry into force of the Regulation. At the same time, a gradual adaptation of working practices and a progressive evolution in the nature and volume of support requests from Member States are expected.

Investments in Eurojust's IT infrastructure are expected to start during the first year of application of the revised Regulation. Expenditure would follow the normal development cycle of IT projects, including design, development, testing, deployment and maintenance phases, and would be progressively disbursed in line with project implementation milestones.

As Eurojust would start exercising its new competences from the entry into application of the revised Regulation, recruitment of most additional staff is also expected to begin from 2028 onwards. Recruitment would be phased in accordance with Eurojust's administrative and HR capacity to conduct recruitment and onboarding procedures, which Eurojust estimates at a maximum of approximately 20 additional staff members per year.

An initial recruitment phase in 2028 would focus on addressing short-term operational and technical needs. This would notably include the recruitment of contract agents supporting the adaptation of the hit/no-hit system and the development of IT infrastructures, including improvements to workflows supporting Joint Investigation Teams and Joint Operational Platforms. Recruitment would also prioritise the areas identified by Eurojust as operational priorities, generally focusing on staff directly supporting core operational activities, in particular SNEs reinforcing National Desks in view of increasing casework.

During the subsequent years of the MFF period, and progressively as Eurojust expands its activities in the new areas covered by the revised Regulation, additional temporary agents would be recruited to take up newly assigned tasks, including enhanced support to practitioners in areas such as e-evidence and asset recovery.

A key milestone foreseen between 2030 and 2031 is the extension of Eurojust's evidence storage capacities. In particular, the current Core International Crimes Evidence Database (CICED), which is expected to be integrated into the Case Management System, would be enhanced and expanded in order to store and preserve evidence relating to other forms of serious cross-border crime. In parallel, the main recruitment phase of temporary agents with analyst officer/assistant profiles would take place.

The reinforcement and recruitment plan is expected to be substantially completed between 2032 and 2033. Staffing levels are then expected to stabilise for 2034 and the post-MFF period. Non-staff expenditure, by contrast, is expected to decrease progressively after the initial investment phase, with remaining costs mainly linked to maintenance and operational support following the completion of the main development and enhancement projects.

- 1.5.2. Added value of EU involvement (it may result from different factors, e.g. coordination gains, legal certainty, greater effectiveness or complementarities). For the purposes of this section 'added value of EU involvement' is the value resulting from EU action, that is additional to the value that would have been otherwise created by Member States alone.

Reasons for action at EU level (ex-ante): Eurojust's functions (coordination, cooperation facilitation, and operational support) are transnational by nature and cannot be performed effectively solely on Member State level. The agency provides a neutral EU-level perspective across jurisdictions, facilitates multilateral cooperation in parallel, and ensures that no Member State is placed at a disadvantage. Scale and complexity of cross-border investigations render EU-level coordination indispensable for national prosecutorial and judicial authorities, calling for EU-level action and thus adhering to the subsidiarity principle. Eurojust offers operational, legal, and strategic value that improves the functioning of national systems and the coherence of the EU's Area of Freedom, Security and Justice. Action by Eurojust does not replace that of national authorities but enhances it through services of support, coordination and stimulation.

Expected generated EU added value (ex-post): There are clear economies of scale and efficiency gains by further improving Eurojust, enabling it to bring together expertise from national practitioners in one agency, coordinate fast and more efficiently in the fight against transnational crime, avoiding duplication and conflicting investigations.

- 1.5.3. Lessons learned from similar experiences in the past

DG JUST has relevant policy and legislative experience stemming from the preparation and implementation of Regulation (EU) 2018/1727, which established Eurojust as a decentralised agency and replaced the previous framework set out in Council Decision 2002/187/JHA.

Further lessons have been drawn from the continuous monitoring of Eurojust's functioning, including through the involvement of DG JUST, as parent DG, in the Agency's governance structures. This experience culminated in the 2025 evaluation of the Eurojust Regulation and of the Agency's functioning.

A key lesson learned is that the institutional design of an agency's governance structure must be sufficiently streamlined, functional and clearly allocated, with responsibilities and related accountability. Decision-making processes should be as efficient as possible, while administrative burden should be kept to the minimum necessary.

Experience has also shown that established working practices and institutional culture can be difficult to change through soft measures alone. Targeted advocacy or limited adjustments may not be sufficient where the governance framework itself does not create clear incentives for change.

In particular, where institutional arrangements leave grey areas in the allocation of responsibilities, or do not provide sufficient clarity on accountability for certain decisions, this may result in complex and lengthy decision-making processes. This can be further compounded by an excessive reliance on consensus-building, even for matters of administrative or managerial nature.

These lessons have informed the preparation of the present initiative, in particular as regards the need to ensure a governance framework that is clear, efficient and capable of supporting Eurojust's operational mandate.

1.5.4. Compatibility with the multiannual financial framework and possible synergies with other appropriate instruments

While the proposal requires resources in addition to those included in the Commission proposal for the MFF 2028-2034, the need to reinforce Eurojust's capacity is fully justified by the broader context of the EU's future security needs. Additional resources are necessary to ensure that Eurojust can keep pace with evolving and increasingly complex forms of crime, cooperate effectively with its partners, preserve the continuum between law enforcement action and judicial follow-up, and ultimately deliver on the objectives of the reform. These considerations will need to be duly reflected in the negotiations on the next MFF, with a view to ensuring that adequate resources are allocated to Eurojust within the future financial framework.

The amount of appropriations to be allocated to the agency in the next MFF is indicative and subject to the agreement on the MFF. It should be integrated into the Agency's subsidy due to the permanent nature of the tasks allocated by this proposal and will be compensated, if relevant, by an equivalent reduction of a relevant programme envelope under the same MFF heading. If a compensatory reduction is needed, the resources allocated to the Agency may also need to be revised through the annual budgetary procedure.

1.5.5. Assessment of the different available financing options, including scope for redeployment

The revision of the legal framework governing Eurojust is designed to strengthen the Agency's operational contribution to the prevention and combating of serious cross-border crime, while ensuring that resources are used in the most efficient and proportionate manner. In assessing the available financing options, particular attention has been paid to the Agency's capacity to absorb new tasks through internal reorganisation, reprioritisation and efficiency gains, in line with the principles of sound financial management.

Eurojust has already undertaken substantial efforts to recalibrate the internal allocation of resources in order to maximise operational delivery. This has included a consequential redeployment of staff and budgetary resources from administrative and support functions towards operational activities directly linked to judicial cooperation, coordination of investigations and prosecutions, and support to Member States in complex cross-border cases. By now Eurojust reached the limits of internal reallocation of staff.

The Agency has pursued these redeployment adjustments while maintaining to the best of its capacity the continuity and quality of essential corporate services, including governance, security, data protection, information technology, human resources and financial management, the latter albeit regular observations by the Court of Auditors of payment delays, mostly due to lack of resources and the implementation of SUMMA as one to the 3 pilot agencies. Efficiency gains have been achieved through the streamlining of internal workflows, increased digitalisation of administrative processes, strengthened intra-agency cooperation, and the optimisation of support structures. These efforts have enabled Eurojust to reinforce its operational focus despite the absence of corresponding increases in establishment plan posts or financial appropriations.

In the context of the present revision, the Agency will be required to continue to actively pursue opportunities for further efficiency gains and internal redeployment wherever feasible. This includes continued efforts to optimise the balance between administrative and operational expenditure, to simplify procedures, and to exploit synergies arising from digital transformation and cross-organisational cooperation. Such measures will continue to be implemented in a manner that safeguards the Agency's capacity to fulfil its legal, governance, cybersecurity, data protection and accountability obligations.

At the same time, the assessment demonstrates that the scope for additional redeployment is inherently limited. The substantial reallocation of resources already undertaken by the Agency has reduced administrative capacities to levels closely aligned with minimum compliance and support requirements. Further transfers of resources from administrative to operational functions, if pursued without corresponding reinforcement, would risk affecting the sustainability, resilience and legal compliance of the Agency's support structures, particularly in areas subject to increasing regulatory and security obligations.

Against this background, while efficiency gains and internal reprioritisation will continue to form an integral part of the Agency's management approach, these measures alone cannot fully absorb the additional workload and enhanced operational expectations resulting from the revised mandate. The proposed financing approach therefore reflects a balanced assessment combining continued internal efficiency efforts with the need to ensure that the Agency possesses sufficient operational and technical capacity to effectively implement the objectives of the revised Regulation, enabling Eurojust to keep pace with broader EU justice and security context.

2. MANAGEMENT MEASURES

2.1. Monitoring and reporting rules

The implementation of the revised mandate of Eurojust will be monitored and reported in accordance with the existing framework applicable to decentralised agencies, while taking into account the specific operational nature of the Agency's activities in the field of criminal justice cooperation. Monitoring arrangements will aim to ensure transparency, accountability, sound financial management and effective performance measurement in relation to the objectives pursued under the revised Regulation.

In line with the Agency's governance framework, Eurojust will report regularly on the implementation of its activities through its annual and multiannual programming documents, in particular the Single Programming Document (SPD), which integrates strategic planning, annual work programming and resource planning. The SPD will set out the operational objectives, expected outputs, performance indicators and resource allocation linked to the implementation of the revised mandate. Progress achieved against these objectives will be assessed and reported annually through the CAAR, enabling the Executive Board, the College of Eurojust, the Commission (DG JUST), the European Parliament and the Council to monitor implementation, efficiency and operational effectiveness.

Monitoring will also rely on established internal control and performance management mechanisms, including regular reporting by the Administrative Director to the Executive Board, regarding external audits and evaluations of the activities of the Agency, including the implementation of its internal risk management processes. Where appropriate, key performance indicators and qualitative assessments will be further refined in order to capture the impact of the enhanced operational support provided by the Administration to the National Desks, and theron where appropriate and measurable to national judicial authorities, including in relation to coordination of cross-border investigations and prosecutions, judicial cooperation tools, digitalisation measures and support in complex criminal cases.

External oversight will continue to be ensured in accordance with the applicable financial and institutional framework. In particular, the accounts and underlying transactions of Eurojust will remain subject to annual external audit by the European Court of Auditors, in accordance with the Financial Regulation applicable to decentralised agencies. The Agency will also remain subject to the annual discharge procedure conducted by the European Parliament upon recommendation of the Council. In addition, evaluations of the implementation and effectiveness of the Regulation may be carried out by the Commission in accordance with the Better Regulation principles and the evaluation provisions contained in the legal framework.

2.2. Management and control system(s)

2.2.1. Justification of the budget implementation method(s), the funding implementation mechanism(s), the payment modalities and the control strategy proposed

This Legislative Financial Statement includes an increase of the contribution to the Agency for the next period 2028-2034. It relates to ensuring adequate resources for the new activities under the revised mandate to be implemented in accordance with the expectation of the legislator and stakeholders. The financial and staff resources necessary to conduct these tasks will be included in the EU contribution to the Agency and in the overall staff allocation to the agency during the annual budgetary procedure. The Commission, in the context of its supervision of decentralised entities, will apply its respective control strategies to this expenditure. In addition, every financial year, the European Parliament, following a recommendation from the Council, grants discharge to each EU agency for the implementation of its budget; this procedure also applies to the Agency.

2.2.2. Information concerning the risks identified and the internal control system(s) set up to mitigate them

The implementation of the revised mandate of Eurojust will continue to be supported by a robust internal control framework designed to ensure legality and regularity of operations, sound financial management and effective risk mitigation. Building on experience gained under previous programming cycles, the Agency has identified and already improved a number of operational and administrative processes where complexity, fragmentation of procedures or increasing regulatory requirements were prone to generate elevated risks of error or inefficiency. Particular attention has therefore been given over the years to simplifying workflows, clarifying responsibilities and strengthening control mechanisms in areas involving operational expenditure, procurement, grants, information management and digital cooperation tools.

The measures introduced were sought in order to address the root causes of previously identified risks and potential error sources. In particular, the Agency has pursued the simplification and standardisation of financial and administrative procedures, including greater use of harmonised templates, clearer operational guidance, streamlined verification processes and increased digitalisation of workflows (including eSignature). These measures have reduced the risk of inconsistent application of rules and improve traceability and auditability of transactions. In parallel, Eurojust continues to reinforce staff awareness and compliance capacity through targeted training, updated internal guidance and strengthened coordination between operational, legal, financial and internal control functions.

For activities assessed as inherently higher risk due to their operational sensitivity, complexity or financial impact, the Agency will continue to apply reinforced ex-ante and ex-post controls proportionate to the level of risk identified. This includes enhanced verification procedures, risk-based sampling, strengthened supervisory review and targeted monitoring of sensitive transactions and operational support activities. Internal Audit Service (IAS) recommendations, lessons learned exercises and findings from external oversight bodies, including the European Court of Auditors, will continue to feed into the continuous improvement of the Agency's control environment. These arrangements are intended to ensure that the enhanced operational role foreseen under the revised Regulation is implemented in a financially sound, compliant and resilient manner.

2.2.3. Estimation and justification of the cost-effectiveness of the controls (ratio between the control costs and the value of the related funds managed), and assessment of the expected levels of risk of error (at payment & at closure)

Given that the implementation of the Regulation is primarily carried out under direct management and through the Agency's own operational and administrative structures, the costs of controls are expected to remain largely concentrated at Agency level. Control-related expenditure mainly concerns financial verification, procurement and contract management, information security, data protection compliance, (financial) ex-ante and ex-post verification procedures integrated into financial and operational workflows. The estimation of control costs is based on existing administrative and financial management structures, and experience gathered from previous implementation cycles and annual discharge procedures.

The overall cost of controls is considered proportionate to the financial volume managed and to the specific risk profile associated with the Agency's activities. Certain control functions necessarily generate comparatively higher administrative costs due to the sensitive operational environment in which Eurojust operates, including handling of operational cooperation data, secure information exchange, judicial coordination support and compliance with evolving cybersecurity and data protection obligations. In addition, the relatively specialised nature of the Agency's activities and the limited scale of certain operational expenditure lines may reduce the scope for economies of scale compared to larger EU spending programmes. At the same time, resource constraints and the absence of significant additional administrative capacity require the Agency to pursue a risk-based and targeted approach to controls, prioritising areas with higher inherent risk while simplifying and streamlining lower-risk procedures wherever possible.

In line with the applicable Union internal control principles, the Agency aims to maintain the expected level of risk of error below the materiality threshold of 2% both at payment and at closure. This objective is supported by reinforced ex-ante verification procedures, risk-based ex-post controls, continuous monitoring mechanisms and regular supervisory review. Simplification measures introduced under the revised framework, including standardised procedures, increased digitalisation and clearer operational guidance and governance are expected to further reduce the likelihood of errors linked to procedural complexity or inconsistent application of rules. Nevertheless, the Agency's ability to sustain a high level of control assurance while simultaneously responding to expanding operational demands remains dependent on maintaining an appropriate balance between operational reinforcement and minimum administrative and control capacities. Continuous monitoring of the effectiveness and proportionality of the control framework will therefore remain necessary throughout the implementation period.

2.3. Measures to prevent fraud and irregularities

Eurojust will continue to apply the existing EU and Agency-level framework for the prevention, detection and correction of fraud, corruption, conflicts of interest and other irregularities. The revision of the Regulation does not alter the Agency's obligations in this area. Eurojust will therefore maintain a comprehensive internal control and anti-fraud environment based on the principles set out in the EU Financial Regulation, the internal control framework applicable to decentralised agencies and the Commission Anti-Fraud Strategy.

Preventive measures include clear segregation of duties, systematic ex-ante verification of financial and procurement procedures, risk-based controls, conflict-of-interest management, secure and traceable financial workflows, staff awareness measures and mandatory ethics and compliance obligations applicable to all staff and seconded personnel.

The Agency will continue to cooperate as appropriate with the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF), the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO), within their respective competences, and the European Court of Auditors.

Existing reporting, audit and investigative mechanisms will remain fully applicable, including internal reporting channels and whistleblower protection measures in accordance with the relevant EU framework. In addition, Eurojust will continue to regularly assess fraud-related risks within its corporate risk management processes and adapt mitigating measures where necessary, notably in areas involving procurement, JIT grants, information technology, external contracts and operational support expenditure.

The tasks carried out under the contribution agreements relating to the following projects have become stably embedded in the Agency's mandate. As of the year of entry into application of the revised Regulation, the funding currently received through these contribution agreements will be integrated into Eurojust's budget. The corresponding increase in the EU contribution to Eurojust for these activities is offset by an equivalent reduction in the envelopes of the respective programmes. As a result, the overall financial programming remains unchanged.

The resources and staffing summarised below are included in the tables above indicating the EU contribution to the decentralised agency.
