ABSTRACT

The reforms of the Maltese justice system that started in 2020 have continued to be implemented. The transfer of prosecutions from the police to the Attorney General, included in the Maltese Recovery and Resilience Plan, continues, and a review on the independence of specialised tribunals has been announced by the Government. No further steps have been taken regarding the system of appointment of the Chief Justice, and the lack of involvement of the judiciary in that system requires further attention. The level of resources for the judiciary remains a concern. Regarding the quality of justice, several initiatives have been carried out, including the publication of the first national Digital Justice Strategy (2022-2027) and improvements in the legal aid framework. The efficiency of justice, in particular the length of proceedings, has deteriorated further and the Government is preparing several initiatives to continue addressing this issue.

The Government adopted the National Anti-Fraud and Corruption Strategy, whose implementation is overseen by an inter-ministerial Committee. Despite increased resources allocated to investigative and prosecution bodies, the investigation of high-level corruption cases remains lengthy. Results in terms of final judgments are still lacking. The Permanent Commission against Corruption, which was subject to a reform in 2020, is to be further strengthened. Currently, it has limited resources and has not shown tangible results in its work. Integrity and ethics rules in the public service, including within the Police and for high-ranking officials, are being implemented, although legislative and operational gaps exist. The existing regulation on the protection of whistleblowers was amended in 2021, and a database for collecting data on whistleblowing is planned to be implemented by the end of 2024. The Citizenship-by-Investment legislative framework continues to raise concern. Rules remain in place to mitigate risks of corruption in public procurement during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The report of the public inquiry into the assassination of investigative journalist Daphne Caruana Galizia published a set of conclusions and recommendations relating to the media landscape in Malta. The Government has proposed a number of reforms to address some of those recommendations. An alleged mastermind of the assassination has been indicted on charges of complicity in murder and criminal association and the criminal proceedings are ongoing. While an independent review of the applicable legislation is underway, journalists and citizens at large continue to face obstacles when requesting access to information held by public authorities. The independence and governance of public service media are a cause for concern. The ownership of, or editorial control over, several media outlets by the two main political parties continues to characterise the news media market. Guidelines on Government advertising and promotional material have recently entered into force. However the absence of a legal framework to ensure transparency in state advertising remains an issue of concern.

With regards to checks and balances, while impact assessments are mandatory, the lack of a formalised process for public consultations and their limited use in the preparation of legislation remain a concern. A new Commissioner for Voluntary Organisations was appointed. The Ombudsperson remains carrying out his mandate since March 2021 until an agreement is reached in Parliament to appoint a new person. The law establishing a national human rights institution continues to be pending in Parliament. The future Constitutional Convention has the potential to address concerns on the appointment process for certain constitutional bodies, although it remains on hold. Previous concerns related to access to funding by civil society organisations were addressed.

RECOMMENDATIONS

In addition to recalling the commitments made under the national Recovery and Resilience Plan relating to certain aspects of the justice system and the anti-corruption framework, it is recommended to Malta to:

- Address the need for involvement of the judiciary in the procedure for appointment of the Chief Justice, taking into account European standards on judicial appointments and the opinion of the Venice Commission.
- Strengthen efforts to improve the efficiency of justice, particularly to reduce the length of proceedings.
- Address challenges related to the length of investigations of high-level corruption cases, including by establishing a robust track record of final judgments.
- Advance with the introduction of legislative and other safeguards to improve the working environment of journalists, including on access to official documents, taking into account European standards on the protection of journalists.
- Strengthen the rules and mechanisms to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media taking into account European standards on public service media.
- Re-launch efforts to establish a National Human Rights Institution taking into account the UN Paris Principles.

I. JUSTICE SYSTEM

The Maltese justice system is influenced by both the continental and the common law legal traditions¹. Courts are divided into Superior and Inferior Courts. Superior Courts are composed of judges and include the Civil Court, the Criminal Court, the Court of Appeal, the Court of Criminal Appeal and the Constitutional Court. Inferior Courts are composed of magistrates and include the Court of Magistrates (Malta) and the Court of Magistrates (Gozo). The judiciary is headed by the Chief Justice who also presides over the Constitutional Court. A Commission for the Administration of Justice supervises the workings of all the superior and inferior courts. A number of specialised tribunals exist, adjudicating in specific areas. A fully separate Prosecution Service was set up in 2019. Malta participates in the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO). The Bar Association (Chamber of Advocates) is an independent and self-regulated professional body of lawyers.

Independence

The level of perceived judicial independence in Malta continues to be high both among the general public and companies. Overall, 67% of the general population and 68% of companies perceive the level of independence of courts and judges to be 'fairly or very good' in 2022². According to data in the 2022 EU Justice Scoreboard, the level has evolved positively since 2016 and consolidated a positive trend. The perceived judicial independence among the general public has slightly decreased in comparison with 2021 (69%), but it is higher than in 2016 (44%). The perceived judicial independence among companies remains at the same level than in 2021.

No further steps have been taken as regards the system of appointment of the Chief Justice, since no agreement on the matter could be reached in Parliament. As explained in the 2021 Rule of Law Report³, some steps were taken to depoliticise the appointment of the Chief Justice. However, the fact that there is no involvement of the judiciary requires further attention, in particular in view of the many roles played by the Chief Justice in the Maltese justice system⁴ and due to the fact that, according to the law⁵, a person who is not already a judge could be appointed⁶. It is worth noting that according to European standards, where there are legal provisions prescribing that the legislative power take decisions on the selection of judges, the opinion of an independent and competent authority drawn in

The level of perceived judicial independence is categorised as follows: very low (below 30% of respondents perceive judicial independence as fairly good and very good); low (between 30-39%), average (between 40-59%), high (between 60-75%), very high (above 75%).

⁶ In practice, the person occupying the position of the Chief Justice in Malta has always been a seasoned lawyer or judge.

substantial part from the judiciary should be followed by the relevant appointing authority in practice⁷. In addition, even though efforts were made to reach an agreement in Parliament, the concern raised by the Venice Commission in relation to the lack of a mechanism to break a potential deadlock for the appointment of the Chief Justice has not been addressed⁸.

Rules on the removal of online court judgments have raised some concerns. On 30 November 2021, the Government adopted a legal notice⁹ which formalised the process by which the Director General of the Courts is allowed to decide on requests to remove judgments including personal data in respect of the content of a court judgment published online on the website of the Court Services Agency¹⁰. According to the legal notice, all judgements are put online and it is only upon request of the parties that judgements are removed from the online portal¹¹. In a letter of December 2021, seven media organisations and civil society organisations expressed their concerns and asked for the withdrawal of the legal notice¹². In particular, the organisations criticised that the legal notice fails to define the legitimate circumstances and criteria in which the Director General may choose to remove the judgements published online. The fact that these requests are handled solely at the discretion¹³ of the Director General, who is appointed by the Government, and not by the courts, raises concerns¹⁴. The Court Services Agency has issued a set of guidelines on the application of the legal notice¹⁵, addressing some of these concerns. However, those guidelines are not legally binding. Those decisions of the Director General are nevertheless subject to review by the Information and Data Protection Commissioner or challenged on the grounds of judicial review. European standards provide that while aspects on data protection, privacy, personal security and confidentiality should be taken into account, judicial decisions shall be clearly reasoned and made public¹⁶.

⁷ Recommendation CM/Rec(2010)12 of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, para. 47. Under EU law, the involvement of a body such as the Council for the Judiciary in judicial appointment procedure may contribute to making that process more objective by circumscribing the executive's discretion as regards such appointments, provided that such council is sufficiently independent. The transfer of certain types of prosecutions from the police to the Attorney General continues. As reflected in the 2021 Rule of Law Report, the transfer of certain types of prosecutions¹⁷ from the police to the Attorney General continues to progress according to a timeline¹⁸. On 1 October 2021, the second phase of the transition period was carried out and the Office of the Attorney General became empowered to prosecute additional offences before inferior courts¹⁹. In addition, 8 new prosecutors were recruited in 2021, and 5 new prosecutors were recruited in early 2022, so that the Office of the Attorney General is now composed of 42 prosecutors²⁰. Moreover, in the Maltese Recovery and Resilience Plan²¹ the Government committed to carrying out an independent review by the end of 2024 to assess how the prosecution of summary cases²² shall be shifted from the police to the Attorney General. It has also committed to introducing legislative changes by 31 March 2026 on the basis of this independent review²³. This should contribute to addressing concerns raised in the 2021 Rule of Law Report²⁴.

A review of the independence of specialised tribunals has been announced. Concerns have been expressed²⁵ in relation to the independence of specialised tribunals²⁶, as many of those are appointed through a procedure involving the executive power and do not enjoy the same level of independence as that of the ordinary judiciary. Moreover, decisions of many of those tribunals are subject to judicial review only on points of law but not on points of fact.

²³ On a proposal from the Commission, the Council adopted the Council Implementing Decision of 5 October 2021 on the approval of the assessment of the recovery and resilience plan for Malta, under which the Milestone no. 6.6 states: ‘The legislative changes shall be based on the findings/recommendations made by the independent review on the transfer of summary cases from the Police to the Attorney General’s Office’.

²⁵ 2020 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Malta, p. 5; 2021 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Malta, p. 5.

²⁶ These tribunals include the Refugee Appeals Board, Environment and Planning Review Tribunal, the Consumer Claims Tribunal, the Competition and Consumer Appeals Tribunal, the Industrial Tribunal, the Information and Data Protection Appeals Tribunal, the Mental Health Review Tribunal, the Patent Tribunal, the Police Licences Appeals Tribunal, the Panels of Administrative Review Tribunals and the Prison Appeals Tribunal.

The Venice Commission has echoed these concerns²⁷. The Government has committed in the Maltese Recovery and Resilience Plan to carry out a review of the independence of those specialised tribunals in communication with the Venice Commission²⁸. This review will include a study, to be completed by end 2024, as well as legislative amendments to enter into force by 31 March 2026.

Quality

A new national Digital Justice Strategy (2022-2027) was adopted aiming to increase the use of digital tools by courts and addressing other gaps in the digitalisation of justice. As shown by the 2022 EU Justice Scoreboard, there are important gaps in the digitalisation of justice. In particular, Malta is lagging behind in areas such as the use of digital technology by courts and prosecution services²⁹, availability of electronic communication tools for communication of courts and prosecution service with users and other bodies³⁰, availability of electronic tools in criminal cases³¹ and regarding arrangements for producing machine-readable judicial decisions³². In December 2021, the Government launched the Digital Justice Strategy 2022-2027³³. The Strategy seeks to provide a more coordinated approach amongst stakeholders in the justice system and establish a set of guiding fundamental principles which all digital initiatives shall adhere to³⁴. A number of dedicated project teams are being set-up for the implementation of the Strategy³⁵. Nevertheless, the Strategy is yet to be further operationalised in a detailed action plan specifying which specific deliverables are envisaged and setting out a timeline for this³⁶.

The level of resources for the judiciary, in particular the low number of judges per inhabitant, remains a concern. The number of judges per capita in Malta continues to be among the lowest in the EU³⁷, which might affect the efficiency of the justice system as

Milestone no. 6.4 states: ‘Legislative changes shall undertake remedial action based on the findings/recommendations made by the independent review on the independence of the specialised tribunals’.

reflected in the 2021 Rule of Law Report³⁸. In August 2021, the Association of Judges and Magistrates of Malta³⁹ raised concerns related to the acute lack of adequate space, trained and dedicated clerks and administrative personnel and resources in the law courts and defined the situation as critical. These concerns have been reiterated by other stakeholders⁴⁰. The Government has announced its willingness to increase the deputy registrars by around 14% and the clerks by around 28%⁴¹, but it has not committed to a specific timeline. It has been mentioned that an important issue is the lack of a dedicated programme of training and preparation for deputy registrars and clerks, as well as the high turnover in these positions⁴².

The system of legal aid has been improved, while stakeholders call for further reforms.

In February 2022, a law⁴³ was approved increasing the threshold for persons to be eligible to benefit from legal aid from EUR 7 000 to EUR 13 000 for the preceding 12 months to the request for legal aid⁴⁴. Stakeholders have welcomed this development, but have also pointed out the need for a comprehensive review of the overall legal aid framework⁴⁵. In addition, on 9 September 2021, Legal Aid Malta⁴⁶ signed a declaration of intent with the Victim Support Agency for mutual assistance and cooperation in support of victims of crime⁴⁷. Legal Aid Malta and the Foundation for Social Welfare Services also signed a Memorandum of Understanding on 15 September 2021 establishing working methods for the provision of services relating to cross-border disputes⁴⁸.

Efficiency

The efficiency of the Maltese justice system has continued to deteriorate. This is shown by the 2022 Justice Scoreboard. In 2020, the duration of litigious civil and commercial cases at first instance further increased (550 days), showing an increasing trend since 2017⁴⁹. The duration of these proceedings in appeal was also very long (838 days) in 2020⁵⁰, though a small decrease since 2019 is observed⁵¹. The average length of money laundering cases remained particularly long in 2020 (over 1310 days), even if it decreased compared to 2019⁵². Moreover, the time needed to resolve administrative cases at first instance remained lengthy and increased in 2020, inverting the decreasing trend⁵³. The clearance rate for civil, commercial, administrative and other cases, showing how courts deal with caseload, in 2020 continued to decrease and continues to remain below 100% (around 91% in 2020), and for litigious civil and commercial cases it has been continuously decreasing for several years (around 91% in 2020)⁵⁴. Stakeholders have continued⁵⁵ raising concerns regarding the efficiency of the justice system, in particular in relation to the length of proceedings and the increasing complexity of cases⁵⁶.

Several initiatives are ongoing to contribute to improve the efficiency of the justice system. The establishment of a Third Chamber of the Court of Appeal⁵⁷ has contributed to a reduction in the high number of pending applications; while in November 2018 there were 1 537 pending applications, in December 2021 this number was reduced to 1 208 pending applications⁵⁸. In addition, legal changes in August 2021 made possible for most appeals not to need an oral hearing but be decided only with written submissions⁵⁹. Moreover, the Government is currently working on the preparation of a draft law aimed at reforming legal provisions related to the compilation of evidence procedure⁶⁰, which may shorten proceedings.

II. ANTI-CORRUPTION FRAMEWORK

The institutional anti-corruption framework comprises several authorities. The Permanent Commission against Corruption (PCAC) is responsible for corruption prevention and for carrying out administrative investigations into corrupt practices. The Commissioner for Standards in Public Life⁶¹ monitors the ethics of ministers, parliamentary secretaries and members of Parliament. Investigation and prosecution of economic crime, including corruption offences and money laundering, are under the competence of the Police (the Financial Crimes Investigation Department) and the Attorney General, respectively. The latter will, during a transition period between 2021 and 2024, take over the prosecution of all offences carrying a conviction of more than 2 years imprisonment, including corruption. Other bodies involved in the fight against corruption are the Financial Intelligence Analysis Unit (FIAU) and the Internal Audit and Investigations Department (IAID)⁶². The latter conducts internal audits and investigations within all governmental departments and agencies.

The perception of public sector corruption among experts and the business community is that the level of corruption in the public sector is relatively high. In the 2022 Corruption Perceptions Index by Transparency International, Malta scores 54/100 and ranks 14th in the European Union and 49th globally⁶³. This perception has been relatively stable over the past 5 years⁶⁴. The 2022 Special Eurobarometer on Corruption shows that 79% of respondents consider corruption widespread in their country (EU average 68%) and 34% of respondents feel personally affected by corruption in their daily lives (EU average 24%)⁶⁵. As regards businesses, 72% of companies consider that corruption is widespread (EU average 63%) and 58% consider that corruption is a problem when doing business (EU average 34%)⁶⁶. Furthermore, 30% of respondents find that there are enough successful prosecutions to deter people from corrupt practices (EU average 34%)⁶⁷, while 27% of companies believe that people and businesses caught for bribing a senior official are appropriately punished (EU average 29%)⁶⁸.

The public inquiry into the assassination of journalist Daphne Caruana Galizia issued recommendations on anti-corruption, to some of which there has been no specific follow-up. Among others, the public inquiry⁶⁹ recommended the adoption of legislative measures to improve the asset declaration mechanism geared at avoiding and detecting unexplained wealth; the establishment of codes of ethics for public officials in order to prevent improper conduct of public officials in the execution of their duties and actions geared at improving the protection of whistleblowers⁷⁰. On 11 January 2022, the Government announced the establishment of a Committee of Experts on Media⁷¹ in response to the report of the Public Inquiry into the assassination of journalist Daphne Caruana Galizia, however, no specific action for the implementation of the public inquiry recommendations relating to anticorruption has been announced or taken by the Government so far.

The National Anti-Fraud and Corruption Strategy was adopted and the monitoring of its implementation by an inter-ministerial Committee continues⁷². The multifaceted National Anti-Fraud and Corruption Strategy (NAFCS), adopted by the Government in May 2021, has four main objectives, namely: 1) capacity building, 2) communications strategy, 3) maximisation of national co-operation, and 4) maximisation of EU and international co-operation⁷³. A Co-ordinating Committee⁷⁴ is responsible for the effective implementation of the NAFCS action plan, and it reports to the Chairperson of the Internal Audit and Investigations Board⁷⁵. the actions identified in Malta's NAFCS are expected to be implemented by the end of 2024, including the online publication of the National Risk Assessment (in 2022)⁷⁶.

Despite the increased resources allocated to investigative and prosecution bodies, the investigation of high-level corruption cases remains lengthy. Results in terms of final judgments are still lacking. Eight prosecutors were hired by the Attorney General's office in the course of 2021⁷⁷, and five prosecutors in early 2022⁷⁸. In 2021, two departments were created within the Financial Crimes Investigations Department (FCID)⁷⁹. With a staff of 107 officers, in 2021, FCID dealt with 32 cases (compared to 38 cases in 2020): 14 cases were concluded (i.e. either closed or brought to trial), and 16 are pending for prosecution⁸⁰. In addition to the 23 in-house investigators⁸¹, the Police hired 16 financial crime prosecutors in 2021 and three external accounting experts were employed in January 2022⁸². The length of investigations remains a serious problem⁸³ in Malta, not least because non-collected elements of evidence may deteriorate with time, which ultimately hampers the outcome of justice⁸⁴. There is no final judgment of cases of high-level corruption.

There are plans to strengthen the Permanent Commission against Corruption, which currently has limited resources and has not shown tangible results in its work. Despite the structural reform undergone in 2020⁸⁵, serious challenges concerning investigations of corruption cases persist, including follow up action to corruption reporting and disclosures⁸⁶. The PCAC remains staffed with three part-time Commissioners, supported by one administrative officer. In line with the Malta's RRP, a budgetary and human resources plan drawn up by the PCAC, as well as a number of operational reforms, shall be implemented by the end of 2024. For 2021, there is no documented evidence on the size and type of workload dealt with by PCAC, nor of any tangible result achieved by the institution. Given the lack of ⁷⁸ The plan is to recruit six additional officers, as to reach a total of 63 officers (44 prosecutors, plus 19 administrative officers) in the course of 2022, with an allocated budget of around EUR 3.5 million (compared to approximately EUR 2.5 million for 2021); information received from the Attorney General office in the context of the country visit to Malta.

in-house capacity⁸⁷, investigations of the few corruption cases reported to PCAC are performed by the Police. However, by law there is no monitoring system over the duration of the investigations⁸⁸. In 2021, PCAC indicates to have transmitted three reports to the Attorney General, and to the Minister of Justice for information⁸⁹, stating enough evidence existed for trial in two cases⁹⁰. All cases transmitted by PCAC to the Attorney General were sent to the Police for criminal investigation, which remained ongoing at the time of publication of this report⁹¹. There is no indication that PCAC monitors the outcome of the two cases that were transmitted to the Attorney General's office in August 2020⁹².

Integrity rules in the public service, including within the Police, were updated and are being implemented. In November 2021, the Government launched the strategy for the public service, including the promotion of ethical conduct⁹³. The Public Service Commission is competent to manage the organisation and integrity of the public servants (approximately 35 000), not including Ministers⁹⁴. In 2021, there were 89 cases of serious misconduct (15 cases were closed, with recommendations to the Prime Minister's office of either dismissal, suspension or warning)⁹⁵, and 107 disciplinary measures taken at departmental level⁹⁶. In 2021, the Profession and Standard office of the Police treated approximately 440 cases and found breaches of police ethics in 110 cases⁹⁷. In 2021, a new audit department was established (divided into two units: one on professional standards and one on auditing)⁹⁸. Since 2020, the Police Evaluation Board⁹⁹ treated 323 requests for authorisation of outside activities: all requests were approved, except for two¹⁰⁰.

⁸⁷ PCAC has no in-house investigators nor data analysts. Including a digital registry to collect information on corruption cases, as well as an internal Standard Operating Procedure. 2021 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Malta, p. 9.

In line with the RRP, a milestone on this subject is foreseen to be implemented by the end of 2024. The review shall assess the effects of Act XLI of 2020 and whether an appeal against non-prosecution by the Attorney General or the Police should also be made possible. 2021 Rule of Law Reports, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Malta, p. 10.

Although ethics rules for high-ranking officials are being implemented, improvement is needed so as to overcome legislative and operational gaps. There are ethics rules for high-ranking officials, members of Parliament and ministers in place, including on asset disclosure¹⁰¹, conflicts of interest¹⁰² and lobbying¹⁰³. The Commissioner for Standards in Public Life (‘the Commissioner’) monitors the ethical conduct of ministers, parliamentary secretaries and members of Parliament. In the second half of 2021, on the recommendation of the Commissioner¹⁰⁴, the Standards Committee of the Parliament issued one reprimand for a case of failure to declare income, and one on a conflict of interest¹⁰⁵. Following recommendations presented by the Commissioner, the regulation on lobbying is under review¹⁰⁶. Legislative and operational gaps exist on the appointment and functioning of the Commissioner’s office¹⁰⁷. Despite the expiration of the Commissioner’s mandate, a new Commissioner was not appointed¹⁰⁸. By law, the Commissioner has the power to collect evidence in the course of an open investigation but has no power to decide whether to open an investigation¹⁰⁹, including against individuals whose public office ceased. Following the adoption of the 2021 law¹¹⁰, the concerns previously raised by both the Venice Commission

¹⁰⁹ For instance, the Commissioner may need to determine whether the subject of the complaint is a person of trust (who can be investigated by the Commissioner’s office) or a regular public employee (who cannot be investigated by the Commissioner’s office). GRECO recommended that all persons with top executive functions be subjected to the supervision of the Commissioner for Standards in Public Life. GRECO (2022) Fifth Evaluation Round – Compliance Report, p. 19.

¹¹⁰ Act No. XVI of 2021, to provide for the amendment of the laws relative to the appointment of persons of trust. Today, the persons of trust are only those individuals that come from the private sector, and are appointed to a temporary position in the public administration. If, on the other hand, a public official is and the Group of States against Corruption (GRECO), on the number and duration of persons of trust, as well as those of the Commissioner (on the feasibility and effectiveness of the control on the ethical conduct of persons of trust)¹¹¹, remain unaddressed¹¹². In 2021, the Commissioner's office issued clarification letters to six members of Parliament for verification of declarations of assets for 2020: these cases remain pending¹¹³. The review of the code of conduct for members of Parliament and Ministers that was recommended by the Commissioner's office in July 2020, remains unaddressed. An ongoing initiative¹¹⁴ aims to strengthen the capacity of the Commissioner for Standards in Public Life's Office to perform its advisory and control functions, and to improve the ethics framework in Malta.

There are provisions in place to audit public institutions including political parties' finances. In 2021, the National Audit Office (NAO), responsible to audit the accounts of Government offices, performed 40 compliance audits, six performance audits and 12 follow-up audits. The findings did not reveal suspicion of corruption¹¹⁵. Stakeholders raised concerns that cases of unexplained wealth (or illicit enrichment) are solved by tax authorities and are therefore not considered a crime nor properly investigated by prosecution or judicial authorities¹¹⁶. The online publications by the Electoral Commission, competent to audit the finance of political parties (including statement of accounts and donation reports), only refer to checks performed prior to 2019, and checks after such date are still being reviewed¹¹⁷. The Commissioner for Standards in Public life's office launched an investigation into the misuse of public funds by a political party in early 2022¹¹⁸.

A new regulation on the protection of whistleblowers has recently been adopted. The Protection of the Whistleblower Act was amended in December 2021¹¹⁹, aiming to transpose Directive (EU) 2019/1937. In line with the Malta's Recovery and Resilience Plan, a milestone on a database collecting data on whistleblowing is foreseen to be implemented by ¹¹³ Due to the general election of March 2022, the Commissioner's office did not receive the declarations of assets of both Members of Parliament and Ministers for the year 2021. Similarly, the Commissioner's office did not receive income tax statements from parliamentarians for the year 2020, despite a demand that was placed with the Speaker of the Parliament. Malta's investor citizenship legislative framework continues to raise concerns. The European Commission has frequently raised its serious concerns about investor citizenship schemes and certain risks, including corruption, that are inherent in such schemes¹²². As noted in the 2021 Rule of Law Report¹²³, the Commission considers that Malta's operation of an investor citizenship ('golden passport') scheme, that is the systematic granting of EU citizenship in return for pre-determined payments or investments, is in breach of EU law and should therefore be repealed. As a result, in April 2022, the European Commission proceeded with the next stage of the infringement¹²⁴ procedure and decided to send a reasoned opinion to Malta¹²⁵ regarding the current legislative framework¹²⁶.

The specific rules to mitigate the risks of corruption in public procurement during the COVID-19 pandemic remain in place. Since July 2021, procurement officers are mandated to sign and submit a declaration of absence of conflict of interest¹²⁷. In 2021, the Department of Contracts issued two internal policy notes on fraud and corruption, aimed at assessing and mitigating risk of corruption in public procurement¹²⁸.

III. MEDIA PLURALISM AND MEDIA FREEDOM

On 2 March 2022, Malta suspended, until further notice, the processing of applications from nationals of the Russian Federation and Belarus in view of the impossibility to effectively carry out due diligence checks, and later initiated the process of deprivation of Maltese nationality for an individual sanctioned by the United States (Maltese Ministry for Home Affairs, Security, Reforms and Equality (2022), Press Release of 1 April 2022, PR220426en).

and removal procedures and independence of the Broadcasting Authority and lays down its basic functions¹³⁰. The Freedom of Information Act establishes the legal framework for access to information held by public authorities. Legislation was enacted in 2020 to transpose the Audiovisual Media Service Directive¹³¹ into Maltese law. The reforms proposed by the Government in the wake of the report of the public inquiry into the assassination of Daphne Caruana Galizia include an amendment to the Constitution of Malta¹³² to specifically include a reference to freedom and pluralism of the media and a number of amendments to the Media and Defamation Act¹³³.

The public inquiry into the assassination of journalist Daphne Caruana Galizia issued conclusions and recommendations directly relating to the state of media freedom . On 29 July 2021, the final report of the public inquiry was published¹³⁴, concluding that no evidence had been brought proving that the state qua state was directly involved in the assassination of Ms Caruana Galizia, but that nevertheless the State is still responsible for failing to fully protect Ms Caruana Galizia and her right to exercise her profession in a free and secure manner¹³⁵. The board concluded that the Police had failed to properly gauge the risks increasingly faced by Ms Caruana Galizia in particular after her investigations into the Panama Papers¹³⁶ and that the State should remedy this state of affairs impacting the safety of journalists in Malta. The report concludes that public service media had failed to carry out its public service mission due to its failure to correctly and adequately report on the serious allegations of corruption which were uncovered by investigative journalists, including Ms Caruana Galizia. The board consequently recommends amendment of the relevant constitutional provisions governing the Broadcasting Authority's remit, in particular with regard to public service media¹³⁷. Furthermore, the report recommends a reform of the Freedom of Information Act to prevent the common practice of arbitrary refusals by public authorities of requests for access to information held by them¹³⁸, the adoption of adequate anti-SLAPP (Strategic Lawsuits Against Public Participation) legislation, and the prohibition of frivolous libel cases against journalists by people in power¹³⁹. The board recommends the establishment of a system geared at ensuring fair, equitable and non-discriminatory distribution of state advertising revenues to counter the risks of political pressure and control¹⁴⁰.

Following the publication of the board of inquiry's report, the Government has proposed a number of reforms to address certain recommendations. The Government held consultations with certain stakeholders¹⁴¹ and submitted a number of draft legislative amendments. On 11 January 2022, it established a Committee of Experts on Media to follow up on the matter. The Committee was tasked with analysing the journalism and media sector in Malta; underlining areas which require development; making recommendations to the Prime Minister and examining the draft legislative amendments prepared by Government¹⁴². The draft legislative amendments submitted by the Government concern an anti-SLAPP provision; amendments to the Media and Defamation Act relating to discontinuance of defamation cases following death of the defendant and to the moment of payment of court fees by the defendant; an amendment to the Criminal Code increasing the punishment for offences when committed against journalists while they are exercising their profession and an amendment to Article 41 of the Constitution to specifically include reference to freedom and pluralism of the media and the status of journalists¹⁴³. These draft amendments, if adopted, would improve certain procedural aspects of defamation law and would specifically recognise the status of journalists in the Criminal Code and the Constitution. The Committee of Experts was initially given 2 months to conclude its work and present a report. International and Maltese NGOs have expressed concerns with regard to a consultation process which appears to have been selective and not fully transparent in spite of the fact that this is a matter of wide public interest¹⁴⁴.

There have been no developments with regard to the legislative framework establishing the Broadcasting Authority. Due to the Broadcasting Authority's clearly defined responsibilities¹⁴⁵ and transparent operations, the Media Pluralism Monitor 2022 maintains its low risk score in terms of the independence and the effectiveness of the authority while finding the fact that all board members are political appointees to be problematic.¹⁴⁶ Reiterating its analysis made in previous years¹⁴⁷, MPM 2022 states that the Broadcasting Authority mainly monitors and regulates public service media (i.e. Public Broadcasting Services - PBS)¹⁴⁸. This means that the two other main broadcasting outlets - owned by the Labour Party and the Nationalist Party respectively – are considered “to balance each other out editorially”, thereby in effect contributing to a polarised media landscape. The public inquiry report specifically concluded that the concept of impartiality is erroneously interpreted by the Broadcasting Authority¹⁴⁹ and the constitutional case lodged to challenge this state of affairs is ongoing¹⁵⁰.

There have been no developments with regard to media ownership transparency. As explained in previous reports, the Broadcasting Authority gathers ownership information relating to broadcasting media outlets¹⁵¹ while no specific obligations exist whereby media companies are required to publish their ownership structures on their website or in records and documents that are accessible to the public, that go beyond the obligations to list the company directors and shareholding stipulated in the Companies Act. There have been no developments with regard to the legislative or policy frameworks regulating media ownership transparency and no legislative changes are planned. Consequently, MPM 2022 maintains its medium risk score in this field¹⁵².

Guidelines on government advertising and promotional material proposed by the Commissioner for Standards in Public life have entered into force¹⁵³ but a legal framework for transparent state advertising is lacking. As noted in the 2021 Report the lack of a legal framework regulating state advertising continues to provide room for abuse¹⁵⁴. Adopted in August 2021, the guidelines provide guidance to ministers with a view to avoiding the inappropriate use of public funds in the production, publication or distribution of advertising and promotional material by or for the Government. The guidelines are geared at ensuring that ministers do not spend public funds on personal or political publicity and establish certain standards as to the quality and nature of the content of such material. While the guidelines lay down that ‘public funding should be directed to the media for advertising purposes on the basis of fair and objective criteria’, they do not, in fact, establish a new legislative framework for the transparent and equitable distribution of state advertising revenues but, rather, provide clarity on how the Commissioner will interpret existing legislation and Ministerial Codes of Ethics in connection with Government advertising and promotional material. .

The review of the legal framework enabling access to information held by public authorities remains pending¹⁵⁵. While the Institute of Maltese Journalists (IGM), several NGOs¹⁵⁶ and MPM 2022 report that journalists have continued to consistently encounter difficulties when requesting such access, due to numerous rejections, significant delays and absence of reply, the government review of the matter is ongoing¹⁵⁷. For these reasons MPM 2022 has maintained a relatively high medium risk score (61%) for this area¹⁵⁸.

The Broadcasting Act establishes a basic framework for the establishment of public service media in Malta. The Broadcasting Act provides the legislative framework for the establishment of a company, owned by the Government, for the provision of public broadcasting services. The Act establishes that the Government may, through a company designated by the Minister as a company providing public broadcasting services, own, control or be editorially responsible for nationwide television and radio services. Furthermore, the Act defines ‘general interest objective service’. The board of directors of the company which is currently designated, PBS, is entirely nominated by the Government, while a separate editorial board is composed of a chairman, two voting members and three to four non-voting members representing management¹⁵⁹. PBS' revenues accrue from commercial advertising and state advertising (70%) and annual budgetary allocations (30%). The Media Pluralism Monitor has consistently considered the independence of public service governance and funding to be an area presenting very high risk, given that 'the government has a significant and direct influence on public service media structures, in view of the fact that members of its board of directors as well as its editorial board are appointed by the State, and key decision-making personnel are also appointed by the Minister concerned, thus making it particularly vulnerable to political influence'¹⁶⁰.

Journalists continue to face challenges in the exercise of their profession¹⁶¹. This has been confirmed by journalists, the IGM as well as several NGOs¹⁶² and MPM 2022¹⁶³ maintains its medium risk score for this area. The Government has prepared draft legislative amendments, still under consideration by the Committee of Experts on Media, to address certain concerns raised by the Public Inquiry relating to the protection of journalists and other media actors¹⁶⁴. The Council of Europe Platform to promote the protection of journalism and the safety of journalists reported three new alerts and one ongoing alert since the publication of the last rule of law report¹⁶⁵, relating to two spoofing campaigns by unknown individuals¹⁶⁶; the continued threat of legal action by a UK-based law firm based on data protection legislation against a Maltese newspaper; a journalist who was required to hand over his mobile phone to a court security officer and the targeting of a blogger during the governing party's electoral campaign. The Malta Police Force has sought the assistance of British and Italian counterparts and the European Union Agency for Law Enforcement Training (CEPOL) to facilitate the sharing of information, expertise and best practices relating to the safety of journalists¹⁶⁷. Furthermore, it intends to sign a Memorandum of Understanding with the IGM on the matter and initiated a Standard Operating Procedure related to the protection of journalists, media actors and public figures at risk¹⁶⁸. In August 2021, an alleged mastermind of the assassination of Ms Caruana Galizia was indicted for the assassination on charges of complicity in murder and criminal association and the criminal proceedings are ongoing.

IV. OTHER INSTITUTIONAL ISSUES RELATED TO CHECKS AND BALANCES

Malta is a parliamentary republic where legislative power is vested in the House of Representatives, a unicameral Parliament elected for a five-year term. The executive authority is vested in the President elected by Parliament, and in the Cabinet headed by the Prime Minister. All Government ministers, including the Prime Minister, must be members of Parliament. The Constitutional Court hears appeals from decisions of other courts on questions relating to the interpretation of the Constitution and on the validity of laws, as well as appeals from decisions on alleged breaches of fundamental human rights. The Constitution establishes a number of independent authorities, including the Office of the Ombudsperson¹⁶⁹.

Impact assessment reports are mandatory but the lack of a formalised process for public participation on the legislative process raises concerns. In Malta, there are no rules or guidelines on public participation on law drafting. In practice, various channels of consulting the public exist, but they are subject to the discretion of the Ministry in charge of the preparation of the initiative¹⁷⁰. In addition, when public consultations exist, they are not always published online in a timely and easily accessible manner¹⁷¹. Legal amendments¹⁷² have been introduced so all pieces of primary and subsidiary legislation must now be accompanied by a mandatory impact assessment report¹⁷³. These reports need to be revised by the Legislation Unit within the Office of the State Advocate, although the revision is limited to formal aspects and not based on a quality assessment of the legislation¹⁷⁴. Once legislative proposals are being discussed in Parliament, there is a practice to invite stakeholders to meetings of Parliamentary Committees to present their views during Committee Stage. However, this practice is subject to a decision by the Chair of each Committee, and it is not systematic or governed by clear rules¹⁷⁵. In this context, stakeholders have criticised the lack of consultation in the preparation of a number of legislative proposals¹⁷⁶, reiterating concerns reflected in the 2020 and 2021 Rule of Law Reports¹⁷⁷. In addition, a group of civil society organisations addressed a letter to the Prime Minister¹⁷⁸, expressing concerns about the low level of involvement of civil society in policy-making, in particular about the lack of engagement and commitment to the obligations as a member of the Open Government Partnership¹⁷⁹.

The Open Government Partnership (OGP) is a global partnership that brings together Government reformers and civil society to create action plans that make governments more inclusive, responsive, and accountable. On 7 February 2020, the Open Government Partnership notified the Maltese Government of its lack of compliance with the Partnership's obligations to submit a complete version of the Action Plan with all requirements requested. After the lack of submission in 2017, and the incorrect submission in 2020, the Partnership placed Malta under procedural review by the OGP Criteria and Standards Committee.

The President-led Constitutional Convention remains on hold since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. As referred to in the 2021 Rule of Law Report¹⁸⁰, the Government has announced its intention to launch the Constitutional Convention as soon as the pandemic situation permits¹⁸¹. Amongst the issues which the Convention would be expected to address are concerns regarding the appointment procedures of bodies such as the Electoral Commission, the Public Service Commission, the Broadcasting Authority¹⁸², the Central Bank of Malta and the Information and Data Protection Commissioner¹⁸³, as well as a reflection on the role of the Parliament. As noted in the 2020 Rule of Law Report¹⁸⁴, the Venice Commission found that the Maltese Parliament needs to be strengthened to be an effective check on Government and recommended changing the system in order to provide for full-time work and payment of members¹⁸⁵.

The Ombudsperson remains carrying out his mandate until an agreement is reached in Parliament to appoint a new person to occupy such role and the draft law establishing a Commission for Human Rights and Equality remains under discussion in Parliament. The term of office of the Ombudsperson expired on 16 March 2021. Since then, consultations between the Prime Minister and the Leader of the Opposition for the choice of his successor have taken place, but no agreement has been reached¹⁸⁶. The law¹⁸⁷ provides that unless the Office of the Ombudsperson becomes vacant before the expiry of the Ombudsperson's first term, the person appointed as Ombudsperson shall hold office until a successor is appointed. Therefore, the Ombudsperson has continued exercising their duties in a caretaker mode, although the delay in the renewal has been identified as causing uncertainty and apprehension¹⁸⁸; the lack of an anti-deadlock mechanism for the renewal has also been highlighted by the President of Malta¹⁸⁹. Furthermore, the proposal to establish a national human rights institution has been pending in Parliament since 2019¹⁹⁰ and no significant progress has occurred since then. The establishment of such an institution would reply to commitments taken under the UN Paris Principles¹⁹¹.

There was no progress on ensuring consistent follow-up of Constitutional Court's judgments where laws are found to be unconstitutional¹⁹². According to the Maltese constitutional order, judgments of the Constitutional Court do not have erga omnes effect and thus laws found unconstitutional remain in force until Parliament repeals them. While the lack of consistency on the side of the Parliament to follow up to Constitutional Court judgments has been raised as an issue by the Venice Commission¹⁹³, there are no plans by the Government to address this situation.

On 1 January 2022, Malta had 13 leading judgments of the European Court of Human Rights pending implementation¹⁹⁴. At that time, Malta's rate of leading judgments from the past 10 years that remained pending was at 45% and the average time that the judgments had been pending implementation was 5 years and 1 month¹⁹⁵. The oldest leading judgment, pending implementation for 16 years, concerns the disproportionate restrictions to property rights¹⁹⁶. On 1 July 2022, the number of leading judgments pending implementation has increased to 14¹⁹⁷.

A new Commissioner for Voluntary Organisations was appointed. Following the resignation of his predecessor on 1 July 2021, a new Commissioner for Voluntary Organisations was appointed on 3 August 2021¹⁹⁸. The President of Malta has launched a process entitled 'VO Plus Convention' and has requested the Commissioner for Voluntary Organisations to carry out a consultative process aiming to build a more sustainable voluntary sector, including possible legal changes¹⁹⁹.

Concerns on civil society organisations' access to funding have been addressed. In addition, on 9 November 2021, two legal notices amending the Voluntary Organisations Act were introduced²⁰⁰. The legal notices repealed the collector's obligation to be registered with the Commissioner for Voluntary Organisations, diminishing the level of discretion of the Commissioner²⁰¹. These amendments are welcomed, as they address concerns previously raised by stakeholders and reflected in the 2021 Rule of Law Report²⁰². However, civil society space continues to be considered as narrowed²⁰³.

²⁰³ Rating by CIVICUS; ratings are on a five-category scale defined as: open, narrowed, obstructed, repressed and closed. According to CIVICUS, in general, civic space freedoms are generally respected in Malta. However, reports indicate that conditions for journalists and activists who campaign for justice have become increasingly hostile, especially those reporting on corruption.

Several initiatives by civil society organisations aimed to promote the rule of law and strengthen access to justice are being implemented. In September 2021, the Daphne Caruana Galizia Foundation launched the Public Interest Litigation Network (PILN), a network of public interest litigation lawyers aimed at increasing awareness of policy and legal systems based on the rule of law and respect for human rights²⁰⁴. The objective of the network is to promote access to justice for victims of discrimination, human rights violations, abuse of power, and state collusion in criminal activity through the establishment of a supportive framework of legal cases to command institutional reform and accountability²⁰⁵. In addition, the Aditus Foundation²⁰⁶ is implementing the project “Strengthening Access to Justice for Improved Human Rights Protection”²⁰⁷.
