2. Consumer policies

2.1. CONSUMER PROTECTION LEGISLATION

There is no national consumer protection legislation outside the scope of the acquis.

The basic laws are the Consumer Protection Act (general provisions, regulation of marketing, penal provisions and miscellaneous provisions) and the Law of Obligations Act (regulation of contract terms, door-to-door selling and distance selling, package travel and timeshare contracts, consumer credit, distance selling of financial services).
In case of non-compliance with consumer protection legislation a competent authority may issue a precept and impose a penalty payment up to 9600 euros upon failure to comply with a precept. Penalty payments can be imposed several times until the following of requirements of the precept.

Violation of the consumer protection legislation is punishable by a fine up to 32 000 euros in case the infringement is committed by a legal person or up to 300 fine units (1 unit = 4 euros) if the infringement is committed by a physical person.

2.2. CONSUMER ORGANISATIONS

According to the Consumer Protection Act, a consumer organisation is a voluntary organisation of persons whose objectives are to protect and promote the interests and rights of consumers. There is no official list of consumer organisations. Over the years 2004-2015 several consumer organisations got public funding for their activity. Both organisations named above (see point 1.3) got government subsidy and some smaller organisations got support for their projects. The yearly amount of the subsidy was 50 000 euros.

From 2016 the public funding for organisations active within the consumer area, as well as for projects aiming to protect consumer interests and improve consumer awareness, is administrated by the Consumer Protection Board.

The so called “organisational support” may be granted to organisations which are founded and registered in accordance with the Non-profit Associations Act and have at least 50 members (alternatively umbrella organisation that in all covers 50 members) and whose main purpose is to safeguard the interests of Estonian consumers, operate nation-wide and represent Estonian consumers within the EU or in other international forums. The procedure and criteria defining a consumer organisation’s eligibility for organisational support is established by the Minister of Economic Affairs and Communications. Organisational support may be granted for 3 years period.

The so called “project based support” may be granted for projects whose main purpose is to promote consumer education, increase consumer awareness and protect consumer interests. The Consumer Protection Board decides which area needs more activities and proclaims an application round for project support.

2.3. ENFORCEMENT/REDRESS

Surveillance in the consumer markets is conducted primarily by the Consumer Protection Board. The Board monitors compliance with most of the consumer directives under the 2004/2006 Regulation on consumer protection cooperation and acts as the national contact point.

The Board may issue precepts requiring termination of activities harmful to the collective interests of consumers. Upon failure to comply with the precept, a penalty payment may be imposed (upper limit for the penalty payment is 9600 euros).

The Board has the right to conduct extra-judicial proceedings in the matters of the misdemeanours provided for in the Consumer Protection Act (also in other laws) and impose fines (maximum amount of the fine is 32 000 euros). Further, the Board has the right to turn to the court in contract law cases demanding prohibition of the application of standard terms. which cause unfair harm to the collective interests of consumers and termination of any other activities violating consumer rights.

A private consumer may turn to the Consumer Disputes Committee for solving a dispute with a trader that has arisen from a breach of contract. The Consumer Protection Board functions as a secretariat for the Committee. The Committee deals with disputes concerning consumer goods and services. Only the consumer may bring the matter before the Committee if no agreement was reached with trader.

The procedure is free of charge. Decision of the Committee is not binding and takes the form of a recommendation. In practice, compliance with the Committee’s recommendations is commendable. The Consumer Protection Board monitors compliance with the Committee’s recommendations and in the event of failure to comply with a decision the Consumer Protection Board has the right, with the consent of the consumer and as the representative of the consumer, to file an action with a county court for the same dispute to be heard if the dispute is relevant to the application of the Consumer Protection Act or other legislation or to the general interests of consumers.

Names of businesses not following Committee’s decisions are published on a “black list” on the Committee’s website.

2.4. INFORMATION AND EDUCATION

According to the Consumer Protection Act a consumer association has the right to organise the dissemination of information as well as consultation and training relating to consumer protection. The Government supports voluntary consumer organisations’ activities on consumer information and education.

Consumer information and education are also the main tasks of the Consumer Protection Board (counselling consumers, issuing leaflets, booklets and press releases, cooperation with educational establishments and carrying out consumer training projects for pupils and teachers).

The Board’s website www.tarbijakaitseamet.ee is intended for both consumers and entrepreneurs and has been updated and supplemented consistently. Besides information of interest for the consumers the website also offers guidelines and instructions for businesses.

A special Internet platform has been created for pupils and teachers – “Clever/ Long headed” (Nupukas) – www.nupukas.ee. Main purpose of the web page is to raise awareness on consumer related issues among pupils. The home page is also useful for teachers who need some additional information in their daily work in teaching consumer protection related subjects (home economics, civics, mathematics, art, etc.). The home page has a youthful design and language style.

The Board has started to educate small children (age 5-10) with the help of cartoons in the special portal for children www.lastekas.ee.

The Board also cooperates with different information distribution portals for consumers. One of the main partners is Tarbija24 (www.tarbija24.ee). The Board also provides a counselling service through an information telephone.
The Financial Supervision Authority has created a special website for consumers (http://www.minuraha.ee) that provides information in the fields of banking, insurance and finance.

2.5. INFORMATION GATHERING/RESEARCH

There is no special consumer research entity. Periodic surveys about the situation of Estonian consumer protection matters have been ordered since 1998 from different research firms. One of the outcomes of these surveys has been the information to mass media (which are the most effective media channels for consumers on receiving consumer protection related information), trends concerning consumer awareness and changes in consumer’s behaviour.

On gathering information, the Consumer Protection Board relies also on results of the consumer market scoreboards and surveys ordered by the Commission.
