2. Consumer policies

2.1. Consumer Protection Legislation

The basic law is the Consumer Protection Act (38/1978) which consists of 13 Chapters (General provisions, Regulation of marketing, Regulation of contract terms, Adjustment and interpretation of a contract, Sale of consumer goods, Door-to-door selling and distance selling, Distance selling of financial services and instruments, Consumer credits, Certain consumer service contracts, Sale of building elements and construction contracts, Marketing and selling of time-share housing, Penal provisions and Miscellaneous provisions).

The main penalties for non-compliance with the consumer protection legislation are administrative injunctions enforced with a conditional fine. In some cases also criminal sanctions (fines and even imprisonment) are possible.

The text of the Act is available, also in English, on the website: www.finlex.fi

2.2. Consumer Organisations

In Finland the recognised consumer organisations are those which have protection and promotion of the interests of consumers as their main objective. Both organisations named above (see point 1.3.) get a small government subsidy yearly:

- Finnish Consumers’ Association (Suomen Kuluttajaliitto)
  479 000 €
- The Consumers (Kuluttajat – Konsumenterna)
  50 000 €

Next year The Consumers (Kuluttajat – Konsumenterna ry) and Finnish Consumers’ Association (Suomen Kuluttajaliitto) will be merged and the new name is The Consumer Association of Finland (Kuluttajaliitto – Konsumentförbundet). The government subsidy will be 654 000 € (2011).
The Finnish consumer organisations have a secondary right to bring action in the Market Court if the Consumer Ombudsman refuses to do so.

2.3. ENFORCEMENT/REDRESS

- The Consumer Disputes Board
  It is a State authority. The Board deals with disputes concerning consumer goods and services, tenancy contracts and the sale of housing. Public services, statutory insurance and certain matters relating to securities trade are outside its competence. The Board is not allowed to make a decision on a matter which has already been settled or which is still pending in a court of law. It can, nevertheless, give its opinion to the court where a case within its competence is pending. In a dispute concerning consumer goods and services only the consumer can bring the matter before the Board. The other party to the dispute must be the producer. In matters concerning tenancy contracts or the sale of housing the Board also deals with disputes between two private persons. Where its geographical jurisdiction is concerned, the Board applies the principles set out in the Lugano and Brussels Conventions. There are no restrictions as to the monetary value of the dispute.

  If the consumer wishes to receive a decision in writing he must submit a written complaint because the Board's procedure is based mainly on written documents. There are special forms which can be used in bringing the matter before the Board, but their use is optional; an informal letter is sufficient. In general, the Board can only accept complaints in Finnish and Swedish. However, one may file a complaint in English if the case involves a complaint regarding incidents relevant to Reg. (EC) 261/2004, in particular denied boarding, downgrading, flight cancellation or delayed flight departure.

  The other party is asked to respond to the consumer's complaint and this response is also communicated to the consumer who has lodged the complaint. The matter can be dealt with even if the producer fails to submit a response. The Board will investigate matters relevant to its decision by seeking expert advice, commissioning laboratory analyses and other studies, and arranging inspections. The Board cannot, however, hear witnesses under oath. At the preparation stage efforts are usually made to settle the dispute between the two parties. If agreement is not reached, the dispute will be settled through the simplified procedure, in the Section concerned or in plenary session, depending on the nature of the case.

  The procedure is free of charge. The Board also bears the costs of the investigations (expert opinions, analyses and inspections) it has commissioned. The producer may have to reimburse certain costs to the State, if he loses his case twice - first before the Board and then in a court of law.

  The Board's decision takes the form of a recommendation but, in practice, compliance with the Board’s recommendations is very good. A dispute settled by the Board can always be brought before a court of law. The Board monitors compliance with its recommendations for compensation. Every three months a list is compiled of companies which are not complying with these recommendations. The list is incorporated into the Board's public register.

The Finnish Banking Complaints Board
The Finnish Banking Complaints Board offers consultative advice concerning the content of banking legislation and related authority orders, the application of contractual terms, good commercial practices in banking and other issues related to banking practices. The service is free of charge and available to bank customers.

The operations of the Banking Complaints Board abide by the principles of impartiality, transparency, reciprocity, efficiency, legality, freedom and representation defined in the Commission Recommendation (2001/310/EC) for out-of-court and alternative arbitration bodies and methods involved in the resolution of consumer disputes. These bodies and methods are characterised by their acting as an impartial third party recommending a settlement and bringing parties together for reconciliation.

The Banking Complaints Board enables an alternative, economic way to ensure consumer protection and promote consumer confidence in the banking market both in Finnish and European cross-border incidents.

The Board’s opinion takes the form of a recommendation.

The Finnish financial ombudsman bureau functions as a secretariat for the board.

The Finnish Insurance Complaints Board
It has competence in all matters concerning non-compulsory insurance. The opinion of the Board can be requested by the policyholder, the insured, the injured party or the beneficiary. According to the Board's regulations it can, if there are special grounds, decide not to give an opinion on a case brought before it. It does not, for example, deal with cases pending before a court of law unless its opinion is requested by the court. So far, in all cases brought before the Board, the legislation applicable has been Finnish law. A request for the opinion of the Finnish Insurance Complaints Board must be made in writing. It need not take a specific form - an informal handwritten request is sufficient. It is advisable to enclose a copy of the decision of the insurance company with the request, but this is not an essential condition. There is no time limit for lodging the complaint. It is, however, in the interests of the customer to act within the period of limitation set in the legislation concerning insurance contracts, to ensure that the case does not become statute-barred. For example, according to the Finnish Insurance Contracts Act, this period is three years from the receipt of a written notification of the insurance company's decision and of the time limit. The Board follows a written procedure.

Requesting an opinion is free of charge. The Finnish Insurance Complaints Board does not order any costs which may be incurred by the requester in requesting the opinion to be paid by the other party, even in situations where the requester wins his case.

The Board's opinion takes the form of a recommendation. In practice, the compliance rate has been very good.

The Finnish financial ombudsman bureau functions as a secretariat for the board.

The Finnish Securities Complaint Board
It offers consultative advice concerning the content of securities market legislation and related authority orders, the application of contractual terms, good commercial practices in securities trading and other issues related to securities practices. The service is free of charge and available to all non-professional investors, who are customers of banks, investment firms or mutual fund companies. The operations of the Securities Complaint Board abide by the principles of impartiality, transparency, reciprocity, efficiency, legality, freedom and representation defined in the Commission Recommendation (2001/310/EC) for out-of-court and alternative arbitration bodies and methods involved in the resolution of consumer disputes.

Some of the cases in the Securities Complaint Board are handled by the Board while others are taken to settlement proceedings to be resolved by an expert. Having received the customer’s report, the Securities Complaint Board requests the adverse party (for example, a bank, investment firm or mutual fund company) for a written rejoinder, which will also be brought to the attention of the complainant. The adverse party is presented with a request for response and copies of the complaint documents. A copy of the response is sent to the customer for possible comments, which are usually sent to the adverse party for information.

The Board may request for an expert statement from an expert not connected with the Board. An expert statement can be requested, for example, in matters dealing with taxation.

The Securities Complaint Board follows written procedures; the parties or witnesses cannot be heard orally or under oath. Recommended decisions by the Securities Complaint Board are not subject to appeal. Parties of a case handled by the Securities Complaint Board may take the case to a general court for settlement.

The Finnish financial ombudsman bureau functions as a secretariat for the board.

- Research Development Arenas
  Development arenas are periodical by nature. Potentially large co-operation projects can be created based on them, both in research and in the development and assessment of other activities. Development arenas offer a shared activity location for researchers and the users of the research information. Assisted by the Research Manager, arena facilitators are responsible for the thematic renewal of research in the arenas.

The following development areas will be started during the operational year:

- Consumer knowledge as a source of renewing policies (2009–2011):
  Based on systematic consumer knowledge, the arena stimulates discussion regarding the need to renew policy-level actions. The Arena offers a forum for renewing policies and improving the development of utilising research information.

- Climate Arena – citizens’ participation in climate policy decision-making (2009–2011):
  The arena is used to engage in discussion of citizens’ means to have an impact on decision-making regarding climate policies. It attracts the industry’s national and international researchers and decision-makers together to discuss their experiences and to seek methods that could be used to strengthen the role of citizens in decision-making regarding climate change. The arena is related to the World Wide Views on Global Warming project, which the Research Centre participates in.
