2. Consumer policies

2.1. Consumer Protection Legislation

The main consumer legislation in Latvia is:

- Consumer Rights Protection Law;
- Unfair Commercial Practice Prohibition Law;
- Advertising Law;
- Product and Services Safety Law;
- Law on the liability of product and services deficiencies.
The penalties for non-compliance with consumer legislation are specified in the Code of Administrative Penalties. The amount of penalties varies up to 500 Lats for natural persons and up to 10000 Lats for legal persons.

Some translations of the normative acts (mainly without newest amendments) can be found at www.ttc.lv.

2.2. CONSUMER ORGANISATIONS

The legal base of the non-governmental organisations is stated in the Consumer Rights Protection Law. Section 22 defines consumer organisations as public organisations (clubs, societies or associations) voluntarily regrouping consumers, which purpose is to protect consumer rights. These organisations act in accordance with regulatory enactments and articles of associations of the relevant public organisation for consumer rights protection.

There is no official list of consumer organisations at national level.

Consumer organisations are not funded by state.

Consumer organisations have no specific rights to prosecute infringements before the courts, because the courts in Latvia do not take decisions concerning prohibition of infringements.

2.3. ENFORCEMENT/REDRESS

The Consumer Rights Protection Centre has the right to take binding decisions concerning consumer complaints, also for individual complaints. Its main function is enforcement of consumer protection legislation, including protection of the collective interests of consumers.

2.4. INFORMATION AND EDUCATION

The Consumer Rights Protection Centre is the main institution dealing with consumer information - by preparing information materials on web pages and printed material. The Consumer Rights Protection Centre has established hot-line for consumers, where they can get information and consultation on their rights in specific cases. The Consumer Rights Protection Centre also informs consumers through the media.

There are not any specific policies concerning consumer education, however, consumer education is included in the curriculum of different subjects.

2.5. INFORMATION GATHERING/RESEARCH

In the framework of PHARE 2002 programme, a project “Market Surveillance System in the Non-food area” and in the framework of Transition Facility 2006, a project “Strengthening of market surveillance system” have been carried out. The main outcomes were strengthened administrative capacity of market surveillance institutions in the field of consumer rights protection, product safety and market surveillance.

Consumer Rights Protection Centre has carried out several social researches in 2005-2007 about consumer awareness level of their rights as well as traders knowledge regarding consumer rights. There have not been any researches or studies carried out recently.
